REPUBLICANS RAP NEW DEAL RECORD, 'BAFFLING' POLICY

Senator Hastings and Congressman Bolton Declare Situation Is Hindrance to Recovery.

COURSE UNCHARTED AFTER FULL YEAR

'Many Pledges Untried and Abandoned and Monetary Plan Bewilderingly Uncertain.'

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—An official Republican criticism of the "New Deal" policies, issued tonight in the form of a joint statement by Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware and Representative Chester C. Bolton of Ohio, chairman of the Combined Republican Senatorial and Congressional Campaign Committees, declares that the Roosevelt administration, at the end of its first year, is found "with many platform pledges untried and practically abandoned, with policies unshaped and conflicting, with its monetary program bewilderingly uncertain."

The situation is described as "baffling enough to prove a hindrance to the return of prosperity."

"Action," says the statement, in part, "is not necessarily progress. The result has been the arbitrary regimentation of industry under Government control through the NRA. Unemployment has been lessened only slightly in comparison with the vast sums expended. The desired benefit from manipulated increased wages has been more than offset by the increase in cost of living.

"Swept Off Gold Standard."

"The country has been swept off the gold standard. The dollar has been devaluated. Government contracts to pay obligations in gold have been repudiated. Inflationary powers were demanded and given the administration permitting a total of $6,000,000,000 inflation. This is the way the Democrats kept their promise of sound money 'at all hazards.'

"The administration has staged a money extravaganza. Unprecedented peace-time expenditures have been authorized despite promises to balance the budget. So profligate have been these expenditures that the executive expresses the hope that the national debt may not exceed $32,000,000,000 by June 30, 1935, a figure $7,000,000,000 greater than the debt at the close of the World War and an increase of $9,000,000,000 in the first two years of the Democratic administration.

"Bureaucracy, so bitterly assailed by the Democratic party in the past, has grown with such rapidity that everyone is befuddled. More than 30 new agencies having uncounted personnel have been created. More are in the making. Yet the Democratic platform promised a reduction in Government expense by at least 25 per cent.

"Series of Inconsistencies."

"The administration's farm policies are a series of inconsistencies. Proposed reduction in acreage and crops has been offset by authorization for more irrigation and reclamation projects.

"Taking the agricultural program as an index, it appears certain that many of the administration's policies are designed to create a huge political machine at the expense of all the taxpayers. It would perpetuate a Democratic dynasty.

"Since March a year ago, constructive criticism has been denounced, critics have been villified and dissenters have left administration councils—Woodin, Acheson, Prof. Sprague and a number in the NRA, just to mention a few. Citizens who dared to exercise their constitutional rights to be other than mere 'yes' men, have been 'cracked down' upon and called 'Tories'.

"This intolerance of criticism has started the people questioning the dictatorial course of Government. With the canceling of the air mail contracts, these questionings have given way to alarm that the administration should so disregard the constitutional rights of citizens as to abrogate contractural obligations without hearing and under circumstances which stigmatized as frauds, every holder of an air mail contract.

"The people of the United States will follow less readily a party whose leaders act so precipitously on such grave matters. The brusque, inconsiderate handling of the air mail situation has served to warn the American people that

ROOSEVELT ORDERS SPEEDY DISCIPLINARY ACTION FOR VIOLATION OF LABOR RIGHTS

National Board May Make Direct Recommendations to Justice Office; NRA Need Not Review Findings

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Roosevelt today issued an executive order to make possible speedy disciplinary action against employers under codes who interfere with union efforts of their workers or who seek to press them into company unions. To this end, also, the National Labor Board membership was increased.

What the President provided was to state the right of the Labor Board to send any case of an employer refusing to deal with his workers or to allow them freedom in selecting representatives to the Department of Justice for prosecution or the Compliance Board of NRA. The latter was required to take steps for compliance only, without making any review of the Labor Board findings.

In the past, notably in the E. G. Budd Manufacturing Co. case from Philadelphia, the Compliance Unit has reviewed Labor Board acts, postponing ultimate decisions.

The new appointments to the board by the President brought in as vice-chairman Clay Williams, tobacco magnate, and Leon Marshall, Johns Hopkins economist. Ernest Draper of Brooklyn, Henry Dennison, Massachusetts manufacturers, and Gerard Swope were added to the industrial members, giving the board a total of 13 members, who will be divided into panels so that some will be present at all times. Swope was on the board before, but withdrew recently.

Immediately on publication of the order, Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York, Labor Board chairman, called four companies to show cause week after next why they should not be cited for discipline, each case involving either alleged refusal to deal with unions or charges of discrimination against union men.

The companies Wagner cited were: Harriman Hosiery Mills, Harriman, Tenn.; A. Roth & Co., Chicago; Dresner & Son, Inc., Chicago, with two subsidiaries; and Patrick, Inc., Duluth, Minn.

Criticism of Wagner Bill.

The presidential labor order coincided with issuance by two national organizations of attacks on the new bill by which Senator Wagner would give the Labor Board sweeping power in the handling of industrial disputes. James A. Emery, counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, called it "the most amazing legislative proposal" he had seen in 30 years, and one which "ignores every fundamental concept of legal rights and remedies." Milder criticism issued from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The directors of the chamber adopted a resolution which said in part that "we oppose the use by governmental agencies of means for enforcing orders or regulations relating to employment not contemplated or provided for in the Industrial Recovery Act."

They took that action after Fred H. Clausen, president of the Van Brunt Manufacturing Co. of Horicon, Wis., told them the Wagner bill would give the Labor Board powers "foreign to the original purpose of the code program."

The new executive order amended an earlier one to specify that the Labor Board could in its discretion send cases directly to the Attorney-General for prosecution. It had done so with the Weirton Steel Co. case, but the action had been questioned in view of the earlier orders requiring that unsettled cases be referred to NRA. Until now the NRA Compliance Board has taken Labor Board cases and made an administrative inquiry of the facts before attempting to secure compliance. This process will now be eliminated.

The President's Order.

The President's order follows:

"Executive order number 6580 of February 1, 1934, is hereby amended by striking out paragraph numbered two thereof and inserting in its stead the following paragraph:

"2. Whenever the National Labor Board shall find that an employer has interfered with the Board's conduct of an election or has declined to recognize or bargain collectively with a representative or representatives of the employes adjudged by the Board to have been selected in accordance with section seven (a) (collective bargaining provision) or has otherwise violated or is refusing to comply with said section seven (a), the Board, in its discretion, may report such findings and make appropriate recommendations to the Attorney-General or to the Compliance Division of the National Recovery Administration. The Compliance Division shall not review the findings of the Board, but it shall have power to take appropriate action based thereon."

Wagner's Statement.

Simultaneously Senator Wagner issued a statement outlining his program under the new order:

"This order means that the Board

ADVERTISING MAN SLAIN WHEN AUTO STOPS IN TRAFFIC

No Explanation of Shooting of Eli Daiches, Chicago Agency Head—Two Assailants Escape.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Eli Daiches, advertising agency head, was killed today with a shotgun as he sat in his auto on the south lake front drive.

Daiches, 44 years old, was shot to death as his Negro chauffeur stopped in traffic. A car containing two men drew alongside. One got out, walked to the Daiches car, put a gun at the rear glass window, and shot. He re-entered his own car which sped away.

Unhurt, the driver of Daiches' car ran back to a hotel and called police. There, in Daiches' apartment, were Miss Lucille Osborn, a nurse, and C. J. Cronin of Wichita, Kan., a salesman and friend of Miss Osborn.

Sees Auto Disappear.

They told police they heard the shooting, rushed to the window and saw the slayers' car disappear. Miss Osborn told police she was engaged by Mrs. Belle Daiches, the widow, two weeks ago when Mrs. Daiches left for Palestine. Daiches, she said, was suffering from a recent tooth extraction.

Daiches headed the Thomas M. Bowers Advertising Agency. No explanation of the killing was offered by his employes or his household. The authorities recalled that in January, 1933, Daiches had been attacked and severely wounded in his office. He told them a gunman had beaten him, and he suffered a fractured skull and other injuries. At that time he could give no reason for the attack.

In Chicago Daiches was a member of the Art Institute, Chicago Historical Society, Field Museum of Natural History, and the Jewish Charities.

Naturalized in 1927.

A brother, Dr. Samuel Daiches, is a leading English barrister with offices in London. His father, Rabbi Israel Daiches, lives in London, and police were told Daiches had planned to join his wife there in June.

Daiches was born in Prussia. He came to the United States in 1910 and was naturalized in 1927. He had headed the Bowers agency for 10 years. He was graduated from Chicago Kent College of Law, and also studied at Hamilton College of Law in 1912. He was married to Belle Turner in Chicago in 1916.

The investigators evinced interest in a plain, white card signed "Clarice" on which was written: "In memory of the happy times we've had together." It bore a Minneapolis address. The officers said it was not designated whether the message was for Mr. or Mrs. Daiches. Another letter from an attorney threatened suit unless $68 were paid by Mrs. Daiches for the services of a maid.

FOUR PUT TO DEATH IN WAR FOR DISOBEDIENCE VINDICATED

Families of French Corporals Awarded Damages of One Franc (Six and a Half Cents).

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 3.—Four French Army Corporals, shot to death during the war by their own comrades for failure to obey orders, were vindicated today—16 years too late.

Their families were awarded damages of one franc (six and a half cents) each by a special court of military justice which declared they had been unjustly executed. Efforts to vindicate them had been in progress for several years.

PAY CUT FOR UNMARRIED MEN

ROME, March 3.—In keeping with Premier Mussolini's campaign for a bigger population, the Government was reported today to be considering a 10 per cent wage cut in Government service for unmarried men and married men who are not fathers.

Of candidates selected by the Fascist Grand Council for the Chamber of Deputies a dozen are unmarried. They told Premier Mussolini they would try to get married before the election on March 25.

MANY IN CITY JOIN IN CELEBRATING 'RECOVERY DAY'

More Than 1500 Attend Luncheon at Hotel — Large Crowd at City Hall Rally.

MAYOR DICKMANN AND OTHERS SPEAK

Kiel Gets Great Demonstration After Making Non-Partisan Appeal for Co-operation.

Two large downtown gatherings yesterday celebrated "Recovery Day," marking the end of the first year of President Roosevelt's administration. The New Deal, the progress of 12 months, and the promise of complete restoration of prosperity, were the themes of speeches at a luncheon at Hotel Jefferson and a meeting in the City Hall rotunda.

Downtown stores held special Recovery day sales, employing about 2200 extra salespeople for the day, and reported a large volume of business.

The luncheon at the Jefferson was attended by more than 1500 men and women, filling the main banquet hall, or gold room, and dining rooms on the second and first floors.

At the City Hall meeting, Boy and Girl Scouts, CWA workers and other groups filled the central standing space and lined the stairway and the balcony rails of the three upper floors.

Mayor in Leading Role.

Mayor Dickmann and City Counselor Hay took leading roles, and employes of the Democratic city administration were a considerable part of both the crowds, but the speaking was largely non-partisan, and one of the heartiest demonstrations of the day was evoked by the speech of Henry W. Kiel, former Republican Mayor, at the luncheon.

Delay in starting the luncheon, due to the size of the crowd, and the necessity of starting the speaking for radio purposes at 1 p. m., caused the meal, for which the lunchers paid $1.25 each, to be divided into two parts, with the final course served after the speaking was over. Kiel, in his brief speech, referred to this as "holding the feed-bag in front of you."

Rabbi F. M. Isserman of Temple Israel, in his invocation, said:

"A year ago today, clouds of gloom covered the nation. Catastrophe and chaos seem shrouded in them. Now the clouds are dispelled, and on the horizon the dawn heralding a new day is visible. The New Deal must have found favor in Thy sight. It brought a new spirit of service, a revived piety of moral cleansing."

Frank K. Harris and John J. Nangle, as preliminary speakers, preceded Thomas N. Dysart, new president of the Chamber of Commerce, who introduced the other speakers. Dr. Robert Emmet Kane made a fervent address, on the theme of leadership in historical crises of the United States with tributes to Washington, Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson as men, chosen seemingly by a higher wisdom than that of men, for meeting situations of desperate need. He then spoke of President Roosevelt as one brought to his present position "not by chance, but by the hand of Almighty God, to make the voice of the forgotten man heard." He paid a tribute to Mayor Dickmann, whom he introduced.

Reports Business Improvement.

The Mayor, after introducing three visiting Mayors, Crowe of East St. Louis, Shaw of Clayton and Millar of University City, read a list of testimonials sent to his office in response to letters of inquiry. The letters were from executives in various lines of business in St. Louis and the St. Louis area, and told an almost uniform story of gains in sales, payroll and number of employes. The exceptions were from concerns in some branches of the building industry, which were not able to show more than a beginning of improvement.

He told of a steel mill at Granite City, idle for two and half years, which plans to resume operation April 1 with 1000 employes. He reported a flour mill has increased its payroll 38 per cent and the number of employes 64 per cent; a retail hardware store has increased its sales and payroll 20 per cent; a milk company's sales increased 57 per cent in January and February as compared with a year earlier; a shoe manufacturer has increased its

LIFE FOR DR. DEAN, FOUND GUILTY OF POISON MURDER

Woman Physician Convicted at Greenwood, Miss., of Giving Dr. Kennedy Drug in Highball.

DEFENDANT SOBS AFTER VERDICT

Remains Free for 90 Days Under $10,000 Bond Pending Action on New Trial Motion.

By the Associated Press.

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 3.—Convicted of the poisoned highball murder of Dr. John Preston Kennedy and sentenced to life imprisonment earlier today, Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean this afternoon won her fight to remain free on $10,000 bond pending court action on a motion for a new trial. The court granted 90 days for preparation of arguments on the motion for new trial.

The jury returned its verdict this morning after 13 hours and 52 minutes of deliberation. The trial lasted five weeks.

Rain hammered on the window panes of the crowded courtroom when the jury, shortly after 10:30 a. m., knocked on its door, indicating a verdict. The panel had been out since 8:50 o'clock last night. The clerk read the verdict:

"We the jury find the defendant guilty as charged and fix the punishment at life imprisonment."

Dr. Dean's Calm Broken.

The stoic calm Dr. Dean had maintained almost throughout the trial gave way and she groped her way to a waiting room where she broke into sobs. Half an hour later, however, she was composed and smiling as she returned to the stand before presiding Judge S. F. Davis for sentence.

"The jury has found you guilty of murder and fixed your punishment," Judge Davis said. "It now becomes my duty to sentence you to spend the rest of your natural life at hard labor in the State penitentiary. That is the verdict of the jury. I have no discretion in the matter."

Judge Davis asked if she had anything to say. Dr. Dean, the smile suddenly gone, looked at her attorneys, then shook her head, keeping silent.

"You are under a $10,000 bond, so I am going to let you go home until 2 o'clock," the court said.

Retrial Hearing June 2.

Preliminary arguments on the new trial motion were heard during the afternoon when Judge Davis tentatively set a further hearing for June 2, at Indianola, Miss. Over strenuous State objections, the Court decreed that Dr. Dean should remain free on her $10,000 indictment bond, pending action on the motion. Her attorneys told the Court she was ill, suffering from a chronic stomach ailment.

In a prepared statement handed out tonight, Dr. Dean thanked her attorneys "for their untiring efforts in my behalf throughout this persecution." She then went into retirement at the home of relatives here.

In sharp contrast to the reception by Dr. Dean, her relatives and attorneys, of the verdict, members of the Kennedy family, which had employed special prosecutors to aid the District Attorney in pressing the murder charge against the 36-year-old baby specialist, expressed pleasure at the jury's finding.

Divorced Wife's Reception.

Mrs. Bessie Barry Kennedy, divorced wife of the dead surgeon, threw her arms around the District Attorney in joy and pushed forward to shake hands warmly with the jurors and Judge Davis. She had told the jury on the stand that Dr. Dean broke up her home.

"It's the happiest moment of my life," said Dr. Barney Kennedy, brother of the dead man, as he held his arms around his aged parents, who wept and smiled at the same time.

The jury took three ballots, the first last night being 9 to 3 for conviction, the next this morning standing 11 to 1 and the last unanimous for conviction without capital punishment.

Defendant's Testimony.

Dr. Dean on the stand denied that she had poisoned Dr. Kennedy or had even been with him on the night of July 27, 1933, when he was stricken with a strange illness from which he died 10 days later. Her testimony was that she had loved both Kennedy and Capt. Franklin C. Maull, a ship pilot of Lewes, Dela.

She said she had no motive for harming Kennedy because she had

WHITTLING CAUSED SLIGHT COMMENT

Indiana Woman Sheriff One of Leaders in Search —Killer Expected to Join John Hamilton, One of Allies in Crime.

By the Associated Press.

CROWN POINT, Ind., March 3.—John Dillinger, notorious desperado, made good his boast today that he would escape jail.

He walked out of the Lake County jail, known as "escape proof," cowing guards with a wooden pistol that he had whittled out in his cell.

Tonight he was at liberty, somewhere in the Chicago countryside, with officers in pursuit. Mrs. Lillian Holley, woman Sheriff of Lake County, from whose custody he escaped, said: "If I ever see John Dillinger, I'll shoot him with my own pistol."

"John the Whittler," was the way fellow prisoners referred to Dillinger, held for trial March 12, on a charge of murdering William Patrick O'Malley, East Chicago policeman, killed Jan. 15, in a holdup of the First National Bank of East Chicago. Dillinger was charged with killing O'Malley with a machine gun. Seventeen witnesses had identified him and the State asserted he was certain to go to the electric chair.

Whittling Aroused Little Interest.

Dillinger's whittling caused only casual comment from guards and fellow prisoners. Apparently it never occurred to the guards that Dillinger had an object in it. His pistol was made from a broomhandle.

After he had disarmed Guard Ernest Blunk with the wooden pistol, the outlaw held it aloft for them to see and laughed derisively.

Subsequently, armed with a revolver taken from Blunk, he locked up all available guards, after disarming them, confiscated two machine guns from the Warden's office, commandeered an automobile, and sped away with Blunk and Edwin Saagers, garage attendant, whom he took along as hostages. He released them later at Peotone, Ill., 25 miles south of Joliet.

When he left the jail, five iron doors were locked behind him. With him was Herbert Youngblood, Negro, held for a Gary murder, who aided him in the escape.

His Second Break.

Today's escape was Dillinger's second break from behind bars, and he engineered the delivery of 10 convicts from the Indiana State prison at Michigan City last summer. In his own previous escape, Dillinger broke from jail at Lima, O., with the aid of companions from the outside, the sheriff being killed in the delivery. Dillinger earlier had engineered the Michigan City prison break of 10 convicts. Some of these helped him escape, and he took them with him as recruits to a gang which terrorized the Mid-West for weeks, robbing banks and obtaining loot running into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

During that time, he and two of his gang, Harry Pierpont and John Hamilton, were among the most widely hunted criminals in America.

Hamilton is still at large. Dillinger and three members of his band, Russell Clark, Pierpont and John Makley, together with Mary Kinder, woman companion of Pierpont, were captured in Tucson, Ariz., a few weeks ago.

When Dillinger escaped guards detailed outside the prison went about their duties in ignorance of what was going on. For more than

MAN RESEMBLING DILLINGER SEEN AT JACKSONVILLE

Filling Station Attendant Reports He Is Traveling in Highway 3, Toward Alton.

An attendant of a filling station near Jacksonville, Ill., told police last night that a man closely resembling John Dillinger, notorious desperado, who escaped from jail at Crown Point, Ind., yesterday morning, had bought gasoline and oil from him at 8:45 o'clock and then driven south on Illinois Highway No. 3 leading to Alton and East St. Louis.

The attendant, Harland Doyle, said he recognized the man as Dillinger from pictures of him. Doyle said he was accompanied by another white man, who drove the car, and a Negro who sat between them. Dillinger, he said, paid for the gasoline and oil with money taken from a satchel.

Two of the three men in the car had been seen about an hour earlier in a restaurant in Jacksonville's business district. A waitress, overhearing one of them say, "Well, we've got 200 miles to go tonight and we may get killed yet," became alarmed. The pair, evidently noticing her nervousness, got up from the table abruptly, leaving the meal unfinished, and hurried from the restaurant.

Jacksonville police immediately notified the Sheriff's office at Edwardsville and police at Alton and intervening towns. Jacksonville is about 60 miles north of Alton.

GO TO PRISON RATHER THAN ARMY, SAYS NORMAN THOMAS

BALTIMORE, Md., March 3.—"Go to Leavenworth before submitting to Army service," said Norman Thomas, past presidential candidate of the Socialist party, in an address here tonight. He spoke under the auspices of the Johns Hopkins University and Goucher College Liberal clubs.

"Individual resistence to conscription and a general strike in the event of war are the Pacifists' best weapons," said Thomas. "Even disarmament as a means of preventing war does not seem possible with the advent of Hitlerism. International peace can never be attained until a system of commonwealth, based on socialistic economics, is substituted for the present private profit system of capitalism."

FRENCH OFFICIALS TAKE UP WAR DEBT PROBLEM AGAIN

Cabinet Members, Their Position Strengthened, Said to Be Seriously Considering Payment.

AWAIT MESSAGE FROM ROOSEVELT

This Is Expected to Give Government Some Idea as to Best Line to Take On Question.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 3.—For the first time since France defaulted in December, 1932, the Government today was reported to be seriously considering how the question of payment of war debts owed to the United States may be settled.

The Government, well informed circles understood, wants to find some solution of the problem, but so far there has not been any discussion of debt payment in Cabinet sessions. However, the Cabinet probably will take up the question, it was stated, immediately after pressing domestic affairs are settled.

Since Dec. 15, 1932, no government of France has made any decision on debt payments. Holding that Parliament's opposition to payment is well known, the various cabinets have passed up the question.

Parliament in Background.

Now the parliamentary situation is somewhat changed. Though there is still great opposition, Parliament is playing a less important part in national affairs under the strong government of Premier Gaston Doumergue, and may be induced, some persons believe, to approve some sort of debt solution.

It was learned that both the Foreign Office and the Finance Ministry are extremely eager for a settlement of the problem either by a symbolic payment or by payment following general negotiations.

It is expected that Vice Premier Edouard Herriot, who had to resign as Premier Dec. 13, 1932, when the Chamber of Deputies refused to pay the regular war debt installment, will lead the fight in the Cabinet for adoption of some sort of amicable solution. He probably will be joined by Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister, and Germain Martin, Minister of Finance.

Expect Word from Roosevelt.

These three leaders are particularly anxious for an early restoration of Franco-American friendliness, and they indicate that they will make a hard drive to convince the rest of the Cabinet that now is a good time to make some sort of arrangement.

It also is known that the Government is awaiting a message from President Roosevelt on the debt problem, and this message is expected to give the Government some idea of what would be the best line to take toward a settlement of the question.

DILLINGER AT LARGE, USES WOODEN "PISTOL" TO GET OUT OF JAIL

a half hour, no one was able to gain entrance to the jail, due to Dillinger's thoroughness in locking all doors.

Takes Sheriff's Car.

In the garage, Saagers was on duty. He looked up to see Dillinger threatening him with a machine gun.

"What's the fastest car?" demanded the outlaw.

Saagers replied, "The sheriff's there," pointing to a small black sedan. The car was equipped with a police, short wave radio set, and Dillinger could listen to broadcasts from police stations for his capture.

With the machine gun at his back, Blunk was forced to enter the car as driver. In the rear seat were Youngblood and Saagers, and the automobile sped off toward Gary and Chicago. Throughout the day, it was reported seen near Joliet, but no apparent definite clew as to the whereabouts of the desperado was available. Blunk and Saagers were released at 11:30 a. m. and returned to Crown Point.

How Break Occurred.

Dillinger began his break about 8:30 a. m. today. At that time, Guard Blunk entered the cell to obtain fingerprints of Harry Jellenek, confined on a robbery charge. Youngblood was in the cell with Dillinger and Jellenek.

Dillinger pointed the wooden pistol at Blunk and the surprised guard turned over his weapon.

He then forced Blunk to call the five guards on duty in the jail, and one at a time, he disarmed them and locked them in a cell. Guard Ernest Baar, who was off duty, was asleep on the third floor of the jail, armed with a .45 caliber pistol and 21 rounds of ammunition. He failed to awaken, as Dillinger locked up the guards in such a manner that they could not reach alarm signals scattered throughout the jail. Had they reached any of the signals, Baar would have been awakened by the clamor and might have killed Dillinger.

With the guards all locked up, and others outside unaware of the situation, Dillinger forced Blunk to accompany him, shouting to Jellenek as he left, "Come on, Harry, let's go."

"Go to hell," replied Jellenek, "I wouldn't walk two feet with you."

Machine Guns Seized.

Dillinger, Youngblood and Blunk went to the Warden's office, which was untenanted, and the outlaw seized two machine guns, the only weapons of that type owned by the Sheriff's office.

Then, the group, with Blunk in front of the machine gun, began a slow and careful march to freedom.

To the jail kitchen, Dillinger proceeded, there encountering Mrs. Irene Baker, matron and cook. "Be a good little girl," Dillinger said, "and we won't kill you." The woman obeyed and down to the jail garage marched the outlaws and their hostage.

There were several cars in the garage, but all were locked, and Dillinger, unable to start one to make a getaway, carefully tore out the ignition wires in each.

Then, the group left the jail and proceeded to the main street public garage, nearby, quietly entering the back door.

"Dillinger's Loose."

Mrs. Holley lost no time in pursuit of Dillinger. As soon as she learned of the break, she telephoned police at nearby Gary, shouting over the wire, "Send all the police and guns you've got—Dillinger's loose."

The desperado and his accomplice scaled an eight-foot wall, surrounding the jail, compelling Blunk to climb over after Youngblood had gone first.

A total of 33 persons were intimidated and locked up in three separate places in Dillinger's getaway, an investigation disclosed.

15 Locked in Cell.

In the cell from which he escaped, Dillinger locked Deputies Kenneth Houks, Sam Cahoon, Marshall Huntley, Turnkey Lewis Baker, W. A. Bryant of the Lake County Protective Association, President Matthew J. Brown of the Protective Association, seven trusties and two porters.

On his way out through the jail basement, Dillinger encountered the kitchen staff. He forced Mrs. Baker, her mother, Mrs. Mary Linton, who is the jail matron; Cook Joe Zeiger, and two trusties into a storeroom.

Three prisoners who had come that far with him were also left in the storeroom. Ten other prisoners were chased into the bull pen by the desperado and locked in there.

The owner of the garage, where Dillinger stole the car in which he escaped, was Clyde Rotherwell, foreman of the grand jury which indicted Dillinger for the killing of O'Malley.

Officials think that Dillinger will be joined by Hamilton and other fugitives.

Description of Dillinger.

Dillinger is an Indiana farm boy, turned desperado. He is 30 years old, is about 5 feet 7 inches in height. Police descriptions of him includes "yellow slate eyes," chestnut hair, medium complexion and build, brown mole between his eyes, a half-inch scar on the back of his left hand and a scar on his upper lip. The police felt sure he would disguise his appearance in some manner. They believe he has money hidden and said at the time of his arrest in Tucson he intended to build up his fortune to $100,000 by bank robberies and head for South America. He has boasted he could "go through" a bank and take all the money out of it in three minutes and 40 seconds.

Captain John Stege of the Chicago police said Dillinger probably would gather up his gang, raid an armory or a police station over the week-end to obtain guns, and rob a bank "the first thing Monday morning."

Dillinger is said by police to have robbed more than 100 banks. Last September he was identified in Dayton, O., as having robbed four Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania banks, in which nearly $100,000 loot was taken.

Orders Three Prisoners Be Shot If Lima Break Is Attempted.

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, O., March 3.—Sheriff Don Sarber was ordered tonight to "shoot the prisoners" if John Dillinger makes an attempt to liberate his henchmen in the Allen County jail and it looks as though the attempt might be successful.

"It's a strong order," commented Prosecutor E. M. Botkin, who issued it, "but they are not going to get out of here."

Sandbag barricades were thrown up about the prison where the Dillinger henchmen, Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley and Russell Clark, are awaiting trial for first degree murder in the killing of Sheriff Jesse Sarber last Oct. 12.

It was the memory of that killing—a bold invasion of the jail, slaying of the Sheriff and release of Dillinger from a cell—that caused officials here to double their guard.

Pierpont, alleged "trigger man" in the Sarber killing, goes on trial Tuesday. His attorneys and Prosecutor E. M. Botkin and Sheriff Don Sarber, son of the slain official, were on a mission to Crown Point, Ind., to obtain Dillinger's deposition for the trial when Dillinger escaped today.

Brigadier-General Harold M. Bush of the Ohio National Guard, assigned to organize the force to guard the jail, when the three were brought here following their capture with Dillinger at Tucson, Ariz., ordered additional machine gun nests to be built and the sandbag barricade to be thrown up.

Machine gun nests are manned at strategic points in the vicinity of the jail. Another machine gun stands at the end of the corridor that leads past the cells of the three gangsters. No one is permitted to enter the jail without a written order from Sheriff Sarber, Prosecutor Botkin or Judge Everett.

CAPTURED GUARD TELLS OF FLIGHT WITH DILLINGER

Ernest Blunk at Wheel Drove Car in Ditch Once — Outlaw Asked About Road to Lima.

(Copyright, 1934.)

JOLIET, Ill., March 3.—Deputy Sheriff Ernest Blunk gave his version tonight of being forced to accompany John Dillinger in the outlaw's escape from the jail at Crown Point, Ind.

Blunk was released at Peotone, 25 miles south of here, together with Edwin Saagars, a garage mechanic who was also taken captive.

Blunk's story is as follows:

"I was fingerprinting in the receiving room at the jail in Crown Point, when Sam Cahoon, the turnkey, called me and told me to come out.

"Dillinger shoved me into a cell. He said: 'Get in there,' and gave me a push.

"Cahoon came along, and Dillinger grabbed him, and opened the cell, and shoved him in with me. He went away and came back in about a minute. He opened the door and pulled me out of the cell.

"He kept Cahoon in there. He said to me: 'Call the warden back here.'

"I shouted for the warden, Lou Baker, and Houks and Younk. They were in the office. When they came down and stepped out into the hall, Dillinger covered them. He marched them back to the cell where Cahoon was, and locked them in with him.

Machine Guns Seized.

"Then Dillinger took me up to the office with Herbert Youngblood. He is a Negro murderer. The three of us went up to the office. Dillinger took a machine gun, and told Youngblood:

"'Come on, quick. Get one of those guns there.'

"Youngblood also grabbed a machine gun. Just then some guards appeared at the front, several National Guardsmen. They walked in and Dillinger covered them. He marched them back to another cell, took their sidearms away from them and locked them in.

"Then Dillinger turned around and sort of surveyed the scene. He said to me:

"'Now what the hell are we going to do?'

"Let's Get Out."

"He marched me back into the office, where he looked for some automobile keys. He couldn't find them. He said: 'Come on, the hell with this. We gotta get busy. Let's get out the back door of this joint. Show me the back door.'

"As we were walking along, Dillinger said: 'Where the hell is that garage?' I told him it was across the way. He still had the pistol. We walked into the garage and walked right into Ed Saagars.

"Dillinger said: 'Where's the fastest car in this garage?'

"Saagars was cowed by the pistol. He took one look at Dillinger and said: 'Right there.'

"Dillinger told the mechanic to get into the back seat with Youngblood. He said to Youngblood: 'Get in there and watch that guy. Give it to him if he moves.'

"He told me: 'Get behind this wheel. We're going places.'

"Then Dillinger jumped into the seat next to me. He made me drive out of the garage. Dillinger said:

Car Goes in Ditch.

"'Now drive, but don't drive too fast. Not over 40 till we get out of town. When we get out to the country, turn off at the first road.'

"We turned and went south and west. We got out about 15 miles and went into a ditch.

"'What's the matter with you,' Dillinger demanded. 'Why don't you watch where you're going?'

"Dillinger turned to Youngblood and said: 'Get out and guard these guys with the machine gun. We've got to put the chains on.'

"Saagars was forced to put the chains on. We were there for about 40 minutes.

Asks About Lima Road.

"Then we started again. We got along a road with no telephone wires. There was a house nearby.

"Dillinger said:

"This will be enough for you guys.

"Dillinger said to me:

"'How far is Lima, O., from here? Have you got any idea of the road to Lima?'

"I told him I didn't. He reached down in his pocket and got out some money. He handed me four dollars and said:

"This will get you back to that jail?"

"He told us to get out of the car. Dillinger slid behind the wheel of the car and put his machine gun alongside of him on the seat. Then he told us to shut up, stepped on the gas, and shouted as the car sped away: 'So long, lads.'"

WHITE HOUSE WARNING BRINGS HOUSE INTO LINE ON BILL

Insurgents Surrender, Measure Permitting Use of U. S. Obligations to Back Reserve Notes Wins.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—After warnings that friction between the White House and Congress would undermine the recovery program, Democratic insurgents in the House collapsed and Congressional action was completed today on the Fletcher-Steagall bill which permits the continued use of Government obligations to back Federal Reserve notes.

The administration measure was sent to the White House by a vote of 310 to 38 after the Brown amendment to deny the President power to continue the authority for an additional year was defeated by a standing vote of 123 to 80.

Leaders of the insurgents, Representatives Brown of Kentucky and Patman of Texas, who sponsored amendments to limit the continuance and the President's authority, gave in and voted for the bill on final passage.

Democratic leaders, who were defeated late Friday by the insurgents, aided by some Republicans, rounded up their forces overnight. Warning by Representative Sumners (Dem.) Texas of danger to the recovery plan brought many Congressmen into line.

it may forecast ill-considered actions as grave or even graver.

"Course Still Uncharted."

"Thus the administration enters its second year, its course still uncharted but its trend very obvious. Under the guise of emergency legislation powers of regulation, taxation, appropriation and others dealing with the 'life, liberty and pursuit of happiness' of our citizens and heretofore considered the constitutional duties of Congress, have been granted the chief executive. Seemingly, there is no stop to these demands. Further powers have been asked. A continuation of this tendency leads away from the form of Government which has made this country a great nation.

"Republicans in Congress patriotically supported the President for the common good of pulling the country out of the depression. An emergency had been declared. Measures, confessedly experiments, were offered as emergency needs. Now, with many of them failing to meet expectations, the administration nevertheless would foist them upon the public permanently. Republicans in Congress feel it incumbent to acquaint the American people with this. Never in the history of the country has it been so necessary for American citizens to awaken to the situation and give proper heed to just criticism."

Working Out of NRA Codes As Viewed by Economists

Brookings Institute Studies Note Inconsistencies But Suggest Method of Group Action Will Continue.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Two studies of the aims and procedure of the National Recovery Administration have been completed by the Brookings Institution and will be published Monday.

Two hundred and fifty codes were examined by George Terborgh, who reports in his study of "Price Control Devices in NRA Codes" that he found "little indication that the NRA, in the course of considering and approving the codes reviewed, applied any clear-cut principles or standards of public policy in the matter of price control."

Continuing, the author says: "A comparison of proposed and approved codes shows a number of instances in which a device was approved for some industries and denied to others of similar character. This apparent lack of consistency may be explainable by the haste of the codifying process, the confusion which accompanied it, especially in the early stages, and the bargaining character of that process. Regardless of the explanation, the problem remains of developing some reasonably consistent criteria of public policy in the matter of price control, and of revising the codes, where necessary, in conformity with them."

A B C of the NRA.

In a study entitled "The ABC of the NRA," four economists, Charles Dearing, Paul T. Homan, Lewis L. Lorwin and Leverett S. Lyon, point out that the Recovery Act resulted from a "desperate business situation," which "opened the way for new and unconventional experiments in economic policy."

The act is described as primarily a piece of enabling legislation, which, while giving the President unprecedented powers, requires nothing of him.

"If administered on the plane of voluntary co-operation," the study proceeds, "the act provides potentially a constitution for limited self-government by trade groups, subject to governmental supervision. If, however, administration on that plane does not accomplish the desired results the constitution may be made one, not of self-government, but of highly autocratic control of business men by the Government."

New Economic Doctrine.

In its recovery aspects, the authors say, the NRA may be regarded as "a pragmatic experiment, based upon a belief that unrestrained competitive forces were ruining the country and that the process must be halted by collective action." Other aspects of the NRA, however, are seen as significant expressions of a new economic philosophy.

"The Recovery Act," it concludes, "may be said to imply a partial loss of faith in the individualistic organization of economic activity. This may be thought of as temporary and related merely to a state of industrial depression, or as something deeper and more permanent. But it appears unlikely that the method of group action and a more intimate relationship between the activities of business and the Government will disappear with the expiration of the act or with the end of the depression."

MORGENTHAU QUESTIONS BANKS ON THE CREDIT CONDITIONS

Seeks Information on Needs of Business for Five Year Loans.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Seeking information on the demand for capital funds, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has telegraphed 112 selected banks for reports on credit conditions. He declined to make public the text of his messages, but the telegram was said to ask for a report on the need of commercial and manufacturing houses for credit of the five-year type.

The banks, covering every area of the country, also were asked to say what effect supplying such capital credit would have on employment and industrial revival.

The information was sought in connection with the project of Eugene Black, Governor of the Federal Reserve Baord, for establishing a chain of intermediate industrial banks to meet long term credit needs of business, especially heavy industries.

The proposal has been discussed with President Roosevelt but no final dcision has been reached.

LONDON PAPER PRAISES ROOSEVELT'S FIRST YEAR

Observer Declares His "Moral Achievement Is Clear and Lasting."

LONDON, March 3.—The Observer, a Conservative newspaper, said editorially today:

"President Roosevelt celebrates his first anniversary in office. It is unknown to American experience that a President's prestige should survive one year intact. But Roosevelt is something new in American experience. His courage and resource have in one year rescued a great people from the edge of despair. Although in economics and financial statistics the process of recovery cannot yet be measured, the conviction is general that it has begun. Mr. Roosevelt's moral achievement is clear and lasting."

can act directly, promptly and effectively in cases of violation of section 7a. Today the Board acted immediately under this order and will continue so to act. At the same time the President has appointed three additional industrial members and two vice chairmen, thus enabling us to carry out a panel system to expedite consideration of cases. Altogether the National Labor Board system is now in position to deal expeditiously with that small minority of employers who violate the self-organization and collective bargaining rights of labor.

"In the report from Regional Labor Boards just put before me, there is a total of over 8000 separate reinstatements of workers discharged through discrimination and put back on their jobs by the Board.

"I wish to emphasize that cases of this kind should be taken promptly to Regional Labor Boards and with our new facilities for rapid action they will be dealt with directly."

Industrial Code Assembly.

Hugh S. Johnson, NRA Administrator, and his assistants worked today on the program of action for the industrial assemblies, which begin Monday morning with an address by the President and continue for three days and nights of group sessions on selected code problems.

Official today explained that the plan for allowing advisory votes by industrialists in these sessions on disputed points may be used only in the discretion of the group chairman. It will not extend to administration plans, and may be abandoned altogether if any misapprehension exist that such votes would dictate Government action or policy.

INSULL'S EXPULSION ORDERED BY GREECE

Chicagoan Still Reported Ill—May Seek Refuge in Syria.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, March 3.—Notice that Samuel Insull Sr. must leave Greece was signed today by the Foreign Minister. The notice informed the Minister of the Interior that Insull's residence permit—which expired Dec. 31 and since has been renewed on his plea of illness—was no longer valid.

There was no indication as to where the former Chicagoan will go, but it is thought he might seek refuge in the Near East, perhaps Syria.

Insull apparently continued ill in bed and it was considered unlikely that he would be expelled before early next week.

Today's action was a sequel to two court hearings in which the United States sought Insull's extradition for trial in Chicago on charges of larceny and embezzlement in connection with the collapse of his utilities organization. Insull defeated the plea for his extradition both times on the ground that his case was not covered by the extradition treaty between the countries.

ROOSEVELT SPEAKS AT DINNER

Guest of Capitol Newspaper Men at Their Annual Banquet.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Roosevelt spent the last evening of his first year in office with those constant attendants of his capitol newspaper men. The President, Vice-President Garner, Cabinet members and other officials were guests at the annual dinner at the Willard Hotel of the White House Correspondents' Association. Mr. Roosevelt addressed the gathering informally, and, as custom dictates, his remarks were not reported.

Francis M. Stephenson was installed as the correspondents' new president.

broken her engagement to him in order to marry Maull at the time Kennedy was stricken. She produced stacks of love letters from both men to substantiate her story.

Maull, during the trial, was quoted in Philadelphia as denying he and Dr. Dean were engaged. He never appeared at the trial.

The State attempted to show that Dr. Dean had been spurned by Kennedy when Kennedy planned to re-wed his divorced wife.

"If Capt. Maull had appeared to testify for Dr. Dean, I undoubtedly would have changed my verdict," said Juror W. L. Stephens this afternoon. "As it was, I felt her story of her engagement was not sincere."

DR. WYNEKOOP COLLAPSES WHEN CROSS-EXAMINED

Woman Doctor Revived, Returns to Stand but Is Hysterical After Session Ends.

TELLS PROSECUTOR SHE CAN'T REMEMBER

Defense of Chicago Woman, Accused of Murder of Daughter-in-Law, Virtually Ended.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Weak and exhausted after her collapse on the witness stand today, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, on trial for the second time, charged with the operating table murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta Wynekoop, went to bed immediately after completion of her cross examination at noon.

At the conclusion of the court session, the 63-year-old physician cried out hysterically as her wheel chair was pushed through the passageway back to the county jail.

Half an hour after the morning session opened Dr. Wynekoop collapsed on the stand. Judge Miller ordered the jury removed.

After the defendant had been removed to the Judge's chambers and placed on a cot, she was treated for 20 minutes by her daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop and Dr. Frank McNamara, the jail physician. Then she was carried back to the stand, and the questioning was resumed.

Says She Can't Remember.

When Dr. Wynekoop returned to the stand she had regained control of herself, but her tightly clasped hands trembled and her face was deathly white.

Prosecutor Dougherty had opened the session by questioning the defendant about a conversation he had with her the afternoon after she signed the statement that she had fired a bullet into the body of Rheta after the girl had apparently succumbed to an overdose of chloroform. In a tired voice she denied having any recollection of the conversation with Dougherty, even when the prosecutor read the alleged statement question by question.

When she returned to the stand after her collapse, Dougherty confined his questions to her financial status at the time Rheta Wynekoop was killed.

"You were in a bad way financially on Nov. 21?" he asked. "I didn't have any obligations," she replied. She said that taxes on part of her property were past due and were in the hands of a lawyer. It had been previously brought out that these taxes were being protested.

Defense Virtually Complete.

At the conclusion of the court session, W. W. Smith said that the case of the defense was virtually completed.

"There is a chance that we may wish to question other witnesses on redirect examination," he said.

Prosecutor Charles S. Dougherty said he would place five rebuttal witnesses on the stand Monday, if the defense had concluded its presentation.

Thus it appeared doubtful that final arguments would begin before late Monday afternoon, or Tuesday morning, with a possibility that the case would not go to the jury before Wednesday.

In contrast to the thousands who sought admittance to Friday's session, the courtroom today could have accommodated many additional persons.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., March 3.—A divorce was granted here today to James P. Ball of St. Louis from Lina M. Ball. Attorneys for Mrs. Ball gave notice of appeal.

Ball, who has been a resident of Fayetteville for several months, is a son of the late Philip de Catesby Ball, who owned the St. Louis Browns. It was the second suit for divorce filed by Ball. A decree was denied him last July in Kansas City. They had been married 15 years.

JUDGE FARIS CRITICISES REAL ESTATE DEAL

Says District Attorney Might Well Investigate Transfer of Property.

Remarking that the District Attorney might well investigate the case, Federal Judge Faris on Friday set aside an injunction preventing foreclosure and sale of property at 5240 Pernod avenue, recently sold by the Mardel Realty Co., to one of its employes.

The motion to set aside the injunction, granted under the amended bankruptcy laws for the protection of home owners, was filed by the attorney for Mrs. Anna Schmoll, holder of a $5000 first mortgage. She contended that Theodore E. Shannon, who had obtained the injunction, was a straw man and that the real owner was the Mardel Realty Co.

Shannon did not appear in court, but his deposition was filed by Edward T. Feinstein, attorney for Mrs. Schmoll. Shannon had stated that he bought the property Feb. 6 for $5500, under terms providing for a $600 down payment, $500 represented by five shares of the company's stock at a value of $100 each and $100 to be taken from his pay as repairman.

Asked to describe the property he said he was unable to do so, having been in it only once. Shannon said he had been employed more than a year ago by David P. Leahy, an officer of the real estate company.

Corporations are not entitled to relief sought by Shannon since the object of the amended bankruptcy law is to protect home owners. However, Judge Faris has held that individuals holding all the stock of a corporation are entitled to the protection of the new bankruptcy law.

Leland C. Caldwell Is Fourth Man to Be Sentenced in Swindle.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 3.—Leland C. Caldwell, convicted bond forger, was sentenced to serve 40 to 840 years in the State penitentiary by Judge Otis E. Hungate today. Roy Angle, attorney for Caldwell, said there would be no appeal as Caldwell lacked the necessary funds.

The sentence was 1 to 21 years on each of 40 counts, and Judge Hungate specified the 40 sentences should run consecutively.

Caldwell was the fourth person to be sentenced to the penitentiary as the result of criminal charges growing out of the municipal bond swindle manipulated, the State contended, by Ronald Finney, bond broker, and formes employer of Caldwell.

APPELLATE COURT ISSUES WRIT TO RELEASE THROOP

Illinois Tribunal Grants Request of Former St. Clair Tax Board Head Pending Review of Case.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 3.—A writ of supersedeas for the release of Addison J. Throop pending review of his case was issued late this afternoon by Judge L. E. Stone of the Fourth Appellate District.

Throop, former chairman of the St. Clair County Board of Review, has been in jail at Belleville since Thursday, when he was sentenced to an indeterminate term of not more than five years in prison and fined $2000 on charges growing out of the tax graft scandal in St. Clair County.

Bond for his release, pending a hearing before the Appellate Court, was fixed at $10,000. Throop's attorneys, from the office of Pope & Driemeyer in East St. Louis, took the writ to Belleville to effect his release.

Question to Be Decided.

The question to be decided by the Appellate Court is the propriety of Circuit Judge Joyce's ruling Thursday when he refused to permit Throop to withdraw a plea of guilty and stand trial. Judge Joyce held that to grant Throop's request, and give him the presumption of innocence after his confession and testimony before the grand jury, would be "trifling with the Court and with justice." Throop, his counsel, Philip Listmann, contended, was under a misapprehension of his rights when he pleaded guilty Jan. 8, thinking he had to do that or be charged with perjury.

Four men, indicted with Throop on charges of conspiracy to solicit bribes, are scheduled to go on trial tomorrow before Circuit Judge Mudge at Belleville. The case was continued from last Monday, when Throop, scheduled to be the State's star witness, changed his mind and refused to testify.

Those Awaiting Trial.

Those awaiting trial are Frank P. McKane, member of the Board of Review; Arthur P. O'Leary, a former member; Charles E. Melvin, a member of the Board of Assessors, and Edward J. Delmore, vice president and auditor of the Hunter Packing Co. in East St. Louis.

Throop also has another charge to face, a warrant charging bribery, which was issued when it became apparent that he might be unwilling to testify against the other defendants.

Throop remained in jail last night, but his attorney hoped to effect his release on bond this morning. Listemann served the writ of supersedeas on Sheriff Munie, and with it presented an affidavit of Throop's brother, H. L. Throop, setting out his qualifications as a bondsman.

The affidavit had affixed to it a notation by Judge Stone, that it appeared to be satisfactory evidence of H. L. Throop's qualification as bondsman, but on the advice of Assistant Attorney-General P. C. Otwell, Munie declined to approve the bond without further inquiry. He indicated he would give a decision this morning.

H. L. Throop's affidavit was that he is the owner of property valued at more than $37,000. In response to a question by Otwell, he said his property was worth $47,000, and was encumbered by mortgages of only $8000.

Throop Needed in Case.

State's Attorney Zerweck, who will prosecute the trial Monday, should it be possible to conduct a trial, said he had not talked with Throop while he was in jail. Without Throop, the State's Attorney has said, the State's case against the other four defendants can not stand.

Zerweck said he had no intention of communicating with Throop before the case is called for trial. "If he wants to talk, he'll call me," Zerweck said.

Throop was to have had a preliminary hearing yesterday on the bribery charge, but it was continued until March 13. This charge was brought to strengthen the case against him. Zerweck said the evidence against Throop would be his own statements before the grand jury and elsewhere, and it will not be necessary for the State to prove a conspiracy involving others.

WOMAN IS CALLED TO DOOR, SHOT; ACCUSES HUSBAND

Mrs. Theresa P. Drinning, Beauty Shop Operator, Says They Had Argument Over Finances.

Mrs. Theresa P. Drinning, 46 years old, operator of a beauty shop at 4428 Lee avenue, was shot in the face last night by a man who fired a revolver as she opened her front door in response to a ring of the doorbell.

Shortly after the shooting her husband, John Drinning, 65, a brewery mechanic, drove up to the house and went with police to City Hospital, where his wife had been taken.

Mrs. Drinning's wound was found at the hospital to be a superficial one, the bullet entering the right side of her face and lodging under the right ear.

At the hospital she told police her husband had shot her. She said they had quarreled at the dinner table over finances, and that he had left the house, returning later and shooting her when she answered the call to the door.

Drinning denied shooting her. He said he had warned his wife repeatedly of the danger of holdups since she established the beauty shop on the first floor of their home.

He was taken to the Ruskin avenue police station.

It is a low-wing monoplane and the fuselage is designed to reduce engine noise in the passengers' cabin. On the trip from Kansas City the ship was handled by D. W. Tomlinson, assistant to the president of TWA, and Larry Fritz, veteran pilot. Its scheduled departure for the east was delayed by fog.

'FROM RACKET TO A BUSINESS'

Clarence Chamberlin's Comment on Air Mail and Army Flying.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Clarence D. Chamberlin, aviator, today pledged co-operation with Postmaster-General Farley in what he called efforts "to change Nation's air transportation system from organized octopus racket to a business." His telegram, made public by Farley, said commercial air lines were succeeding in building up a public belief that the contract cancelations were bad policy.

Commenting on the fact that the Army is on the job, Chamberlin said: "If Army pilots don't know how to fly at night between two fixed air fields on charted courses they had better learn. Their biggest job in war will be to fly at night from temporary landing fields to moving ships or unfamiliar cities, deposit bombs there and return to base."

FOUR ARRESTED HERE FOR ILLINOIS HOLDUP

Two Admit Crime, Stolen Bonds Recovered From Two Others Held With Them.

Four men, two of them ex-convicts, are under arrest in connection with the holdup of Dr. William Smith at St. Elmo, Ill., Feb. 12, in which $400 in cash and $1100 in Liberty Bonds were taken. The bonds were recovered when the men were arrested Friday.

Chauncey Ernest and Richard Honald, ex-convicts, both of Decatur, Ill., admitted the robbery and were identified by Dr. Smith.

The bonds were recovered in the possession of Herbert Bareiter, 1218 Lynch street, and William Newton of Springfield, Ill., who were arrested at Twelfth boulevard and Chouteau avenue. Police had information that Bareiter and Newton had attempted to dispose of the bonds. After arresting them, they went to Bareiter's home, where Ernest and Honald were arrested.

Federal warrants were issued, charging Bareiter and Newton with illegal possession of a registered Liberty bond. Ernest and Honald are to be taken to St. Elmo for trial on the robbery charge.

ADMITS KILLING WIFE AFTER OFFICIALS USE "LIE DETECTOR"

Illinoisan Says He Shot Her Because He Was "In Love With Another Woman."

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., March 3.—State's Attorney John Coale of Christian County announced tonight that Hollis Butterfield, 26-year-old letter carrier, had admitted that he shot and killed his wife last Oct. 22 as she lay asleep in her home 10 miles south of here because he was "in love with another woman."

The wife was found shot in the head, a shotgun laying on the bed beside her with a string attached to the trigger. A Coroner's jury, however, returned an open verdict.

Coale said Butterfield made the admission after three hours of questioning, in which use was made of a "lie detector," brought here from Northwestern University. Brought for use in another matter, the "detector" was employed in questioning Butterfield, who had been suspected by authorities, Coale said.

Butterfield is held in jail here pending issuance of a warrant charging murder.

Kills Himself on Wedding Day.

DALLAS, Tex., March 3.—A few hours before he was to be married, D. V. Brown, 27 years old, shot and killed himself today in front of the home of his fiancee, Miss Thelma Lively. Brown left her home when Miss Lively was called to the telephone. Mrs. Mildred Lively, mother of the prospective bride, said she asked Brown "not to feel that way, as his fiancee was not talking with another man."

OUTLAW TERRORIZES ROADHOUSE; KILLED

Ford Bradshaw, Hunted by Guardsmen, Shot by Deputy When Making Break.

By the Associated Press.

FORT SMITH, Ark., March 3.—Ford Bradshaw, wild-shooting Smart Aleck, who fancied himself the outlaw king of the notorious Cookson Hills, died today at the back door of a little Oklahoma roadhouse.

"Don't do it—don't do it," were his last words as he fell mortally wounded, after attempting to escape from half a dozen officers at Arkoma, Ok., just over the state line five miles southeast of here.

Bill Harper, operator of the roadhouse, called Fort Smith officers after Bradshaw, for three hours, held customers and employes in a state of terror, boasting of his badness.

But it was Harper, also a deputy sheriff, who killed the outlaw while he scuffled with Bob Harper, a brother of Bill.

Hunted by Hundreds.

Two weeks ago, hundreds of Oklahoma National Guardsmen and peace officers sought him in the Cookson Hills, but the reputed confederate of Clyde Barrow, another outlaw, and Barrow's cigar smoking woman companion, Bonnie Parker, eluded the posse. Barrow and his companion are still at large.

A woman companion of Bradshaw's, identified by officers as Mary Jane Fields, first said Bradshaw was Barrow. Positive identification was made by a comparison of scars by the Oklahoma Bureau of Criminal Identification.

When officers arrived, Bob Harper, who was operating the roadhouse for his brother at the time, told them to wait outside and entered the place from a rear door. He fired one shot over Bradshaw's head, then told Bradshaw he would kill him if he didn't put his hands up. Bradshaw reluctantly complied, and Harper forced Bradshaw's pretty companion to raise her hands, too.

The officers then followed Harper into the house, removed from the outlaw a bullet-proof vest and a pistol, and ordered the two to go with them.

Bradshaw Makes Break.

At the rear door, Bradshaw made a break, presumably to reach his parked car, in which an automatic shotgun was found. Attempting to open the door, he was caught by Bob Harper. Just as Bradshaw was about to escape, Bill Harper shot him four or five times in the abdomen and once in the shoulder.

As Bradshaw fell, the woman, a 22-year-old brunette from Muskogee, Ok., collapsed, murmuring, "Oh my Daddy; oh, my daddy!" A few moments later she sobbed:

"He was all I had in the world."

Bradshaw was wanted for killings and bank robberies.

payroll 55 per cent and the number of employes 38 per cent.

Two paint companies, he said, reported large sales increases in the last year, one 106 per cent and the other 26 per cent, and their increases in employment were 70 and 37 per cent, respectively.

A lime and cement manufacturing company reported an increase of employes from 54 to 72 and a district improvement in business. A box manufacturer reported his general business has gained 30 to 35 per cent, but his total volume was larger a year ago because he was then filling rush orders for beer boxes.

Says Beer Aided Business.

"That company," Dickmann said, "is one of a large number that benefitted by President Roosevelt's and the Democratic party's courageous stand on beer and prohibition, even before the President took charge of the affairs of the nation."

Other reports were: A salt company's sales increased 26 per cent, employment 19 per cent and payroll 52 per cent; a furniture company's sales were up 20 per cent and employment 16 per cent; a metal specialty manufacturer had an increase of 365 per cent in shipments and 11 per cent in employment; a pipe manufacturing company reported a 68 per cent gain in sales and a 45 per cent increase in employment; a fiber container manufacturer's sales increased 34 per cent with a like increase in employment and payroll.

A manufacturer of crushing and pulverizing machinery reported it has put its regular force back to work and added five more. A stove company has increased its weekly payroll from $3600 for 310 employes to $10,600 for 580. Its average sales are 51 per cent better than six months ago.

A distributer of musical and electrical appliances has had an increase of 86 per cent in general business and 200 per cent in electric refrigerator sales, compared with a year ago.

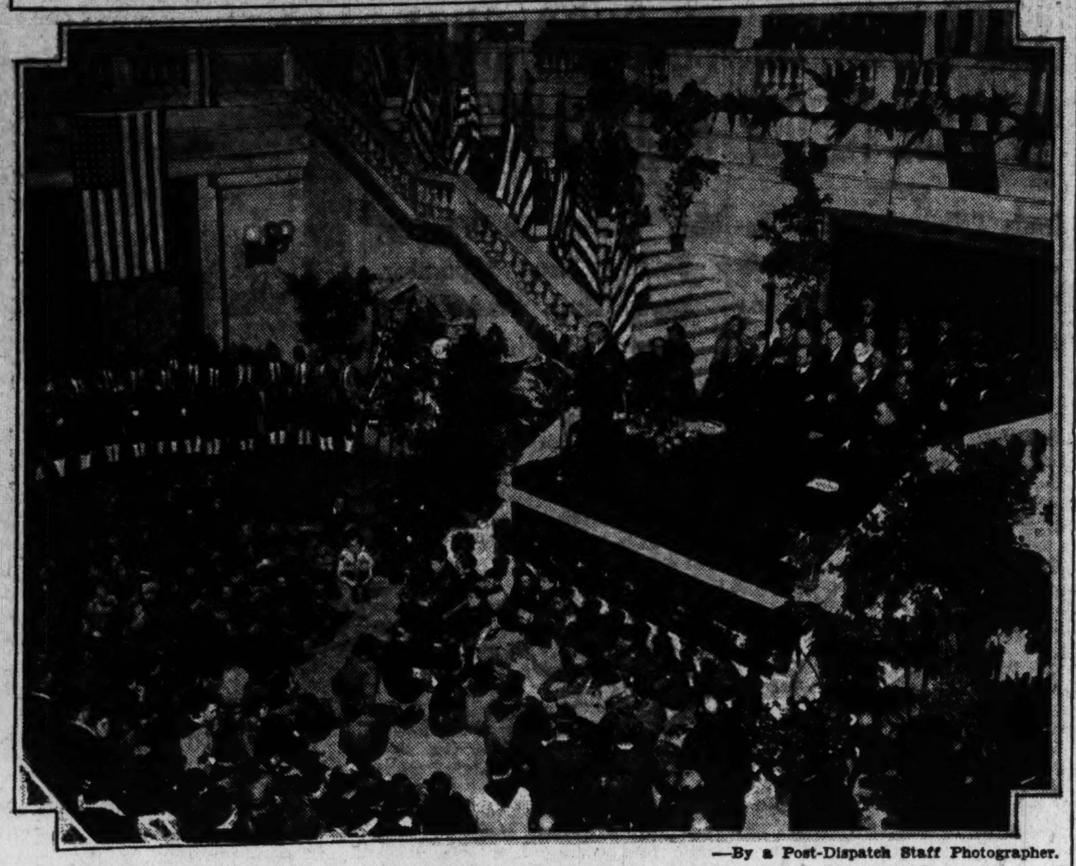
$1,600,000 Profit for Firm.

A wholesale novelty and dry goods house reported net profit of $1,600,000 in 1933 compared with loss of $2,000,000 the year before. It now has 43 per cent more employes. A tailoring company has increased its payroll 27 per cent and a canned milk company has added 25 per cent more employes. Jewelry firms reported improvement, a retailer's sales gain being 15 per cent and that of a wholesaler, 21 per cent.

A department store reported: "For the last six months of the year we had a substantial increase in sales volume, number of transactions and in number of people we employ. We are glad to report that this increased volume has been progressively larger each month for the last four months."

The Mayor expressed the belief that President Roosevelt's action in support of the guarantee of the principal of Home Loan bonds would stimulate building repair work, and would thus help in the delayed revival of the building industries. The Mayor, in closing, repeated his request that pastors of churches should take note, in today's services, of the first anniversary of President Roosevelt's inauguration.

Mayor Dickmann Speaking at "Recovery Day" Rally



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

SCENE at City Hall, where one of two "Recovery Day" celebrations were held yesterday. Boy and Girl Scouts are sitting on the floor in front of the stairway, and Knights of Columbus Zouaves are standing at the south entrance of the rotunda. The picture of President Roosevelt, over the stairway, was presented to Mayor Dickmann by the Board of Aldermen.

Mayor's Telegram to President.

He read the telegram sent by him to President Roosevelt, which was:

"As you have been advised, St. Louis is celebrating the week-end of March third and fourth, 1934, as the first anniversary of national recovery, in line with the marked improvement in practically all lines of business since your inauguration one year ago. Local industrialists, merchants, civic organizations and their leaders are participating in a mammoth luncheon celebration at noon Saturday at which time reports of improvements in all local fields of business will be broadcast.

"These reports will be forwarded to you so that you may know personally of the success of your plans for national recovery upon business in the Greater St. Louis area. The luncheon celebration will be followed by a mass meeting in the rotunda at the City Hall in which citizens representing various groups will participate. In view of the wonderful response of our citizens to this celebration and the whole-hearted indorsement of your recovery plans as shown in the response of our business leaders, I feel assured that the citizenry of Greater St. Louis join me in this testimonial of our admiration of your fine courage, wisdom and statesmanship during the most difficult year in our nation's history and assure you of our continued loyal support in the future.

"May you continue to enjoy good health and may you forge onward to a complete victory over a depression that is rapidly being replaced by a renewed activity and new business which have been encourage and guided uphill through your leadership."

Jacob M. Lashly, attorney, gave a review of the national aspects of the "New Deal," in agriculture, industry, finance and credit, unemployment relief, re-employment, and relief to debtors.

No Time for Partisanship.

Former Mayor Kiel said he was glad to join in a demonstration of appreciation for so much recovery as has occurred, and in a pledge of co-operation for further and lasting recovery.

"Partisanship has no place in this national situation," Kiel said. "Economists differ widely as to the causes of the depression, but all agree that recovery depends on restoration of confidence among the people. I am one who will co-operate to further any program which will furnish confidence and bring prosperity. I wish such a meeting as this might be held in every city. We should have no mutiny in the face of a storm."

Applause was so hearty after Kiel's speech that Mayor Dickmann beckoned to the gathering to stand, in honor of the speaker.

Leo C. Fuller, speaking for the retailers, William T. Nardin, for the Chamber of Commerce board, and City Counselor Hay were the other speakers. Fuller said retail business, at its lowest ebb a year ago, was showing steady improvement, and that factories, mills and railroads were benefiting from this increase. Hay suggested to the Mayor, President Igoe of the Police Board and Mayor Millar, bachelors, that they might do something to aid the recovery of the retail jewelry business.

Entertainment features at the luncheon, in the period of serving the meal before 1 o'clock, included dancing by a half-dozen girls in two-piece costumes of red and black, the two parts of the costume failing to meet at the waistline, skirt dances, and singing by Miss Elizabeth Canty, soprano, who made her high notes heard above the din of dishes. The final stage act was the unveiling of pictures of President Roosevelt, Gov. Park and Mayor Dickmann.

Inaugural Speech Read.

At City Hall, parades of Scout troops and Knights of Columbus Zouaves, and music by the Salvation Army Band, preceded the speaking. Lawrence McDaniel started the exercises, Brigadier Lundgren of the Salvation Army pronounced an invocation, and President Roosevelt's inaugural speech, delivered a year ago today, was read by William E. Hoeflin, president of the young men's division of the Chamber of Commerce. Phrases from this address were, "This is a day of national consecration," and "The only thing to fear is fear."

Harry Scullin was presented by Counselor Hay as an example of recovery, as the head of a steel plant which has been idle, and which is now resuming activity and employment.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt said we needed action," Scullin said. "Did we get it? I'll say we did. We've been getting it all the time.

"Things are improving, business is raising its head, men are being employed, but the war is not over. We can't say it is over, so long as people are still destitute, and when many are probably unable to see, in their immediate surroundings, much evidence of improvement. We can't recover in a moment; a man may be able to leave the hospital, but may yet be far from full normal strength."

Scullin urged his hearers not to condemn all business men for the sins of some high financiers, and not to listen to "propaganda arraying masses against classes," since, he declared, the poor boy still has the opportunity to rise to the top in the business world.

Paper From Nolte Read.

Comptroller Nolte, who was absent, sent a paper, read by Deputy Comptroller Cunningham, testifying to improvement in credit and in the bond market.

Mayor Dickmann, before beginning his speech, asked the boys and girls, who had been standing for an hour and a half, to stack their flags and sit down. They accepted the suggestion with a cheer.

The Mayor's City Hall speech was a discussion of President Roosevelt's program, and a reply to criticisms, from partisan and other sources.

"To the people of St. Louis," he said, "I can say that we have a great deal to look forward to this spring, in the way of opportunities for increased employment, in the millions of dollars' worth of public projects which the city intends to complete, with the aid of funds to be advanced as a result of the President's program. In the meantime, and pending the opportunity to commence the Public Works projects referred to, the President, through the Civil Works Administration, has made available a vast sum of money, which has been spent on work of a public nature, which could be accomplished notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. We in St. Louis have seen and felt the benefits of this Civil Works program, in the fact that thousands of our citizens have been taken off the relief rolls and put on the payrolls; and they, in turn, by spending the money thus earned, have stimulated, to a very encouraging degree, business and industry in the city."

In Defense of President.

The Mayor replied to criticisms of President Roosevelt, based on fatalities in the flying of the mail by army aviators. He said the Army must resent "the silly, sentimental, partisan patter about sending rosy-cheeked boys to their death." While he deemed the accidents due to weather conditions chiefly, he said Army pilots must be trained to fly under all conditions, and that the flying men themselves desire every opportunity to meet the needs of the nation.

Of the President's monetary policy, he said the President's critics were not honest. "They know," he said, "that the President does not believe in printing-press money, or bloney money. Debt inflation, a child of the gold standard, was largely responsible for getting us into our present condition. Sound money is what the President promised us, and sound money is what he will give us.'

Counselor Hay read "The Creed of the New Dealer," items in which were, "We believe that getting something for nothing is dishonest, whether by outright theft or by manipulation within the letter of the law," and "We believe that hunger and want in the midst of plenty are un-Christian, un-American, and morally unconstitutional."

Closing the City Hall program, Alderman Collins presented a portrait of President Roosevelt to the Mayor, who said it would hereafter hang in his office, and the Boy and Girl Scouts repeated their oath. The speeches were transmitted by loud speakers to the east and north entrances, where several policemen and other bystanders heard them.

Among those at the speakers' table at the luncheon, besides speakers and visiting Mayors, were President Johnston of St. Louis University. Mrs. George Gellhorn, Lee Meriwether, Superintendent of Education H. J. Gerling, retired Chief of Police Gerk, President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, James W. Byrnes, Thomas J. Sheehan, J. W. Hannauer, Assessor Coale, State Senator Joseph Brogan, Dean Isidor Loeb, Miss Mayme Dickmann, J. Walter Goldstein and heads of several city departments. The group seated on the City Hall speakers' platform was in part the same.

La Scala Directress Withdraws Suit Against Husband of Prima Ballerina for Defamation.

By the Associated Press.

MILAN, Italy, March 3.—Jia Ruskaia Evans, directing the Ballet Academy of La Scala opera house, today withdrew her suit for defamation of character which she brought against Paul Fabbri, husband of Attilia Radice, the principal dancer.

Miss Evans must pay the court costs in the case. She had sought a jail term for Fabbri, who is one of Italy's foremost critics.

The directress and the prima ballerina clashed over dancing technique, and everyone in the opera house took sides with one or the other.

Fabbri, marrying Miss Radice at the height of the trouble between her and the head of the ballet school, has often attacked Miss Evans' methods in the press, and his articles caused her suit.

ROW IN MILAN BALLET OVER TECHNIQUE ENDED

La Scala Directress Withdraws Suit Against Husband of Prima Ballerina for Defamation.

By the Associated Press.

MILAN, Italy, March 3.—Jia Ruskaia Evans, directing the Ballet Academy of La Scala opera house, today withdrew her suit for defamation of character which she brought against Paul Fabbri, husband of Attilia Radice, the principal dancer.

Miss Evans must pay the court costs in the case. She had sought a jail term for Fabbri, who is one of Italy's foremost critics.

The directress and the prima ballerina clashed over dancing technique, and everyone in the opera house took sides with one or the other.

Fabbri, marrying Miss Radice at the height of the trouble between her and the head of the ballet school, has often attacked Miss Evans' methods in the press, and his articles caused her suit.

7 SUSPECTS HELD, TWO SOUGHT IN PEDDLING FRAUD

Ohio-Made Lace Said to Have Been Offered as "Genuine Irish" and Rabbit Fur as Hudson Seal.

The source of "genuine Irish lace" and "genuine Hudson seal fur coats" which have been peddled from door to door in St. Louis recently by young women who speak with a brogue and young men who sometimes wear natty sailors' uniforms, was traced yesterday to an apartment in the 4200 block of Westminster place.

A representative of the Better Business Bureau said the lace was made in Cincinnati, and the fur coats were fashioned of rabbit pelts.

Seven men, said by one of their number to be members of a wandering band which has offered the merchandise for sale in various cities, are held at the Deer Street Police Station, and their St. Louis customers will have an opportunity to see them again this morning when they will appear in the show-up at police headquarters. Two women said to have traveled with the party are sought.

Stories Told by Peddlers.

The women, the Better Business Bureau said, have represented that they were on their way back to Europe after having appeared in the Belgian Village at the Century of Progress Exhibition, and were tarrying to dispose of laces exhibited there.

The men, on occasion, have worn uniforms with the caps of a ship's petty officer. They have offered the fur coats for sale for $150 or thereabouts, representing that each coat was an extra one which found its way into a shipment on their boat. As evidence of the authenticity of this story, they have displayed the lining of the cap, which indicated that it was sold in Sydney, Australia, their "home port."

$90 For Lace Worth $10.

Complaints about the lace have been most numerous among those received by the Better Business Bureau. One woman who lives on the Country Club grounds is said to have paid $90 for lace which could have been bought at any department store for less than $10, and another $50 for lace which might have been bought for $12 or so.

The men are said to have come to St. Louis about two weeks ago, although the women, the Better Business Bureau said, have worked in St. Louis since January. Records found in the apartment occupied by the men, indicated they had been recently in Memphis and Nashville, Tenn., Birmingham, Ala., Washington, Cincinnati and other cities.

The Bureau will seek to have them charged with failing to obtain peddlers' licenses, unless some of their customers charge them with the more serious offense of obtaining money by false pretenses.

YOUNG JAIL BREAKER CAPTURED BY POSSE

THOMAS A. DAVIS, JR.

YOUTH WHO BROKE JAIL FOUND IN CLOTHES CLOSET

Back in Cell in Illinois Pending Extradition East on Charge of Killing State Trooper.

By the Associated Press.

CARLYLE, Ill., March 3.—Thomas A. Davis Jr., 19-year-old Pittsburgh high school student, who escaped from the Clinton County jail last night, where he was held pending extradition to Pennsylvania to face a charge of killing Herbert Branglinger, a State trooper, last September, was captured by a posse tonight near Centralia, Ill.

The youth escaped from the jail by prying apart bars to his cell with a drain pipe he tore from the wall. He is alleged to have slain Branglinger when the officer surprised him in the act of robbing a filling station.

The posse found him in a closet at the home of Arthur Dempsey, Centralia teamster, on a tip that he was hiding there. He was not armed. He was returned to jail.

Pennsylvania officers said Davis had confessed the slaying of Branglinger. Davis is accused of shooting a deputy sheriff here who sought to arrest him on suspicion but prosecuting officials waived their claim to him.

SAMUEL KOPMAN FREED IN GASOLINE TAX CASE

Illinois Judge Rules Ex-dealer Should Not Be Prosecuted Under Felony Statute.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 3.—An indictment against Samuel Kopman of University City, former East St. Louis gasoline dealer, charging embezzlement of Illinois State funds, based on his alleged failure to turn over to the Department of Finance $11,400 in gasoline taxes he was alleged to have collected from gasoline purchasers, was dismissed here today by Circuit Judge Stone.

The Department of Finance resorted to embezzlement charges against Kopman, after a charge against him alleging failure to pay gasoline taxes in the St. Clair County Circuit Court had been dismissed. Kopman was fined $500 in the St. Clair County Court on his plea of guilty of operating without a dealer's license.

Judge Stone ruled gasoline dealers, who failed to pay the tax, should be prosecuted under the gasoline tax act, which provides that violations are a misdemeanor, instead of under the general criminal code. If Judge Stone's decision stands, Kopman cannot be prosecuted under the gasoline tax act because of the 18-month limitation for prosecution. His alleged violation was in 1931. The State has not indicated whether an appeal will be taken.

BREWERY HEAD HELD UP IN OFFICE, $100 TAKEN

Two Men Force Fred N. Hoelzer to Lie on the Floor at Carondelet Co.

Fred N. Hoelzer, president of the Carondelet Brewing Co., 2025 Gravois avenue, was held up last evening by two men who forced him to lie on the floor, took about $100 from his desk and fled.

Hoelzer said the men entered his office at 6:15 o'clock, when he was alone and, each drawing a revolver, told him to "lie on the floor." They took the money from a cigar box in his desk, he said.

Body Found Hanging to Tree.

ELGIN, Ill., March 3.—The body of a young man was found today by State police hanging from a tree near the Elgin airport. In the clothing was found a courtesy card to a cafe in Chicago, bearing the name John G. Lessell. The man was about 27 years old, five feet seven inches tall, had black hair and blue eyes. He wore a leather zipper and had been hanging for some time, police reported.

STEWART-WARNER SUING EX-OFFICERS FOR $1,000,000

Alleges That Amount Was Illegally Paid in Salaries and Bonuses.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 3.—The Stewart-Warner Corporation and four of its subsidiaries today filed suit against four former officers seeking to recover more than $1,000,000 it says was paid out illegally as bonuses and salaries.

The suit filed in Circuit Court named Charles B. Smith, former president; L. H. La Chance, former chairman of the board, and two former vice-presidents, Vail R. Bucklin and Winfred J. Zucker.

The complaint alleges that the defendants for many years constituted a majority of the board of directors and voted to themselves as officers the salaries and bonuses.

The suit charges the officers "wrongfully and unlawfully confederated with each other to defraud the parent company."

Reports $30,000 Jewel Robbery.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Louis G. Sachs, Chicago agent for several New York diamond brokers, tonight reported to police he was held up and robbed of jewelry valued at from $30,000 to $40,000. Three men armed with pistols threatened him as he sat in a loop restaurant, the agent informed officers, and forced him to give up two grips, one of which contained diamond rings and unset diamonds.

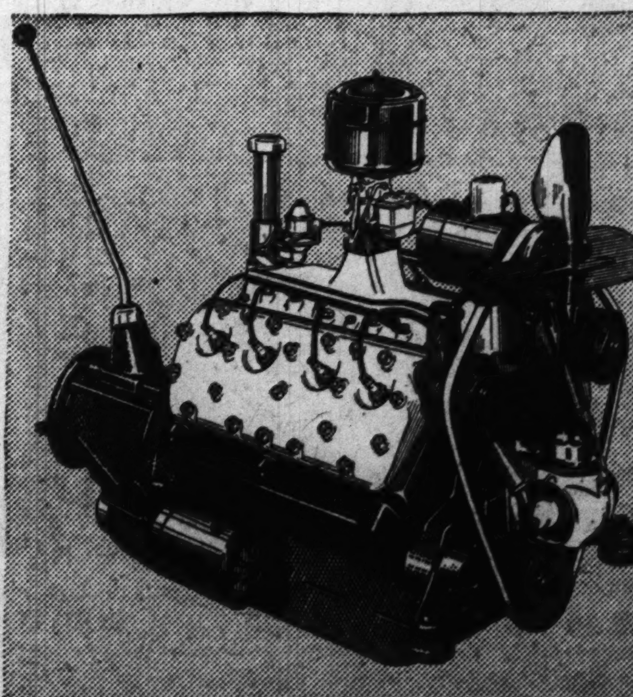
Performance Shows Value of V·8 Engine

THE most important part of any automobile is the engine. Other features may contribute to your comfort and convenience, but it is the engine that runs the car. Performance, economy, reliability and long life—all these depend on what's under the hood. . . . The New Ford V-8 is an unusually fine car because it has an unusually fine engine. Millions of miles of use have proved the efficiency of its V-8 cylinder design. We invite you to ride in it and let it tell its own story of performance, comfort and all-round satisfaction.



The New Ford V-8 is the only car under $2000 with a V-8 cylinder engine. It combines eight-cylinder speed, power and smoothness with unusual gasoline economy. Dynamometer tests show that the Ford V-8 engine delivers more horsepower per gallon of fuel than any Ford engine ever built.

ALTON WOMAN WILL BE 103 YEARS OLD TOMORROW

Mrs. Celia A. Parker, Because of Feebleness, Will Have Simple Celebration.

Mrs. Celia A. Parker of Alton will be 103 years old tomorrow. Her birthday celebration, because of her feebleness, will be the simplest in recent years, and her only change in routine will be a dinner with her companions of the Alton Woman's Home, instead of in her room.

While her general health is said to be excellent, her vision and hearing have failed considerably in the last year, according to home officials, and she seldom travels beyond the corridor outside her room. Because she can no longer read, her interest in current events has lessened recently, and she lives mostly in the past.

Her husband, Dr. Philander Meade Parker, who practiced for many years at Pittsfield and Barry, Ill., died several years before she went to Alton in 1923. She entered the home eight years ago. Her only living relative is an adopted son, the Rev. Harry Tilbe, who resides in Cincinnati.

5 KILLED, 2 HURT WHEN TRUCK AND AUTO CRASH IN FOG

Basketball Player, Wife, and Two Sisters and Mother-in-Law. All of Carmi, Ill., Lose Lives.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GRAYVILLE, Ill., March 3.—Five persons were killed and two injured in a collision between their automobile and a truck in a dense fog on State Highway No. 1, six miles south of here, last night.

The white fog, caused by condensation of moisture in warm air passing over ground chilled by recent snow, enveloped Missouri, Illinois, Ohio and states immediately south, grounding air service and making highway travel hazardous.

The dead, all from Carmi, Ill, were: Norwood Stone, 18 years old; his wife, Maxine, 17; Virginia Stone, 16, and Mary Ellen Stone, 14, sisters of Norwood Stone; Mrs. Gertrude Cochran, 42, mother of Mrs. Maxine Stone. Mrs. Clyde Stone mother of three of the victims, and wife of the Carmi postmaster, suffered a compound fracture of the leg. Juanita Veatch, 16, also of Carmi, suffered burns and scalp wounds.

The automobile crashed head on into the truck, which was loaded with sweet potatoes from Tennessee. The gasoline tank of the small closed car was punctured, and both machines caught fire.

Two men on the truck, Harland Douthitt and Lawrence Land, of Carlisle, Ind., pulled the dead and injured from the burning machine. Stone and his sister, Mary Ellen, were killed outright. Mrs. Maxine Stone and Mrs. Cochran died a few minutes after they reached a Carmi hospital, where Virginia Stone died early today.

Douthitt and Land, who were unhurt, said they saw no lights on the automobile. An inquest will be held Monday.

Stone and his wife attended Carmi high school. He was a member of the high school basketball team, and was high scorer in a game at Grayville last night. He and his companions were on their way home following the game when the collision occurred.

Three Killed in Auto-Truck Collision Ner Fulton, Mo.

FULTON, Mo., March 3.—Three men from Warrensburg were killed early today on United States Highway No. 40, northwest of here, when an automobile and a truck collieded headon.

Willard Marr, John Lisac and Olin Sturke were returning home from St. Louis when the accident occurred on the Cedar Creek bridge. A heavy fog is thought to have caused the crash.

The driver of the truck, Gale Poe of St. Louis, was taken to a hospital in Columbia. His condition is serious.

Poe told hospital attaches that the automobile was on the left side of the highway when the automobile and truck crashed. Poe is a driver for the Brashear Truck Lines of St. Louis.

PEORIA, Ill., March 3.—Judge FitzHenry of the Federal Circuit Court today ordered a decree in favor of the Caterpillar Tractor Co. in the patent infringement suit for $10,000,000 brought against it by Charles Paridy of Belleville.

The Judge overruled Paridy's exceptions to the report made by Wallace J. Black, special master. This report found for the company. Paridy first took the case to court in 1929.

SLAYER OF TWO HANGS SELF

Idaho Man Confessed He Killed Sheriff and Brother-in-Law.

By the Associated Press.

AMERICAN FALLS, Ida., March 3.—Leroy Utely, 46 years old, hanged himself here today after confessing he killed Sheriff Robert S. Walton of Minidoka County and William P. Gardner, Utely's brother-in-law.

Utely also confessed, Sheriff D. C. Pace of Cassia County said, that he shot and seriously wounded his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elva Gardner at her Rupert (Ida.) home, last night, over domestic difficulties. Sheriff Walton was killed when he sought to arrest Utely in response to a call from Mrs. Gardner. Utely then went to the Gardner home, where William P. Gardner was killed. SCOUTS NAMED TO TAKE OVER CITY FOR A DAY

Bill Unwin of Roosevelt High School to Be Mayor—Rivals Get Appointments.

Bill Unwin, Roosevelt High School sophomore and a star Scout in Troop 86, will be "Mayor-for-a-day" next Saturday when the Boy Scouts take over all positions at City Hall and the key jobs in the police and fire departments.

Unwin, whose troop is in the South District, was named yesterday at a Scout election. Ballot boxes were stationed in the Scout departments of downtown department stores. Nine other Scouts from the South District were swept into the major offices along with Unwin, and his brother, Edwin, was appointed head of the marriage license bureau.

"Scout day" at City Hall is part of a campaign in which the Scouts hope to raise $139,000 with which to carry on this year's program. The campaign will get under way officially next Monday and will close March 23.

Scouts who were named to the other nine elective offices are as follows: Bert Shilling, Troop 14, comptroller; William Linter, Troop 68, circuit attorney; Harold Krause, Troop 163, prosecuting attorney; Tennyson Meyer, Troop 139, circuit clerk; Edward P. Schneider, Troop 232, city collector; Joe Metzger, Troop 168, assessor; Gerry Boyle, Troop 20, recorder of deeds; Paul Herriott, Troop 128, sheriff; and Bill Erb, Troop 76, marshal.

George Cech, who was the North District candidate for mayor, will be chief of police, and John King, the West District mayoral nominee, will be chief of detectives.

Other mayoral candidates received the following appointments: Pete White, fire chief; Melvin Thomas, supply commissioner, and Theodore Stamas, auditor. Scouts will assist traffic policemen at 40 corners in the downtown district and will also be in charge of some private business houses.

ARRESTED ON WAY TO BURY HUSBAND, ACCUSED OF MURDER

Kentucky Woman, Two Negroes Say, Paid Them to Shoot Man to Death.

By the Associated Press.

CORBIN, Ky., March 3.—While taking the body of her husband, Charles W. Taylor, 30 years old, a Lexington restaurant proprietor, to his old home for burial today, his widow was arrested on a warrant charging she paid two Negroes to kill him. She denied the charge.

Mrs. Taylor was taken into custody following the arrests in Lexington of her son by a former marriage, Charles Robert Smith, 16, and two Negroes, who police said made confessions implicating Mrs. Taylor as having paid the Negroes to shoot her husband. Taylor was shot to death Thursday night and police first believed he was killed by "hijackers."

The two Negroes, Robert Jones, 22, and Wylie Graves, 28, were arraigned on murder charges and held without bail for a hearing Tuesday. Young Smith, who police announced confessed he got the money from his mother and gave it to the Negroes, was placed in jail on a murder charge. The Negroes' confession said they were to have received $100, but got only $50.

Stauft, 36 years old, died and A. B. Farmer, 29, is in a serious condition at a hospital. Both men were married and employes of the International Petroleum Co.

AZALEA SHOW TODAY AT SHAW'S GARDEN

Annual Display, in Striking Japanese Setting, to Continue Three Weeks.

The annual azalea show opening today at Shaw's Garden to continue for three weeks is presented in a Japanese garden designed by Paul A. Kohl, who has designed all of its shows for several years.

Symmetry is achieved by an avoidance of the tritely regular, a tasteful abstention from the stale devices of landscaping.

Every change in elevation of the flower mounds, every turn in the brief pathways, is a surprise. The result is an affect of ease and spaciousness in an area actually tiny, of refreshing change and variety in a palette which actually has only pure white and a few shades of pink.

A novel yet natural touch is the carpeting of autumn leaves beneath the flowers. Around the walls runs a rush fence. At one end of the central mound is an unobtrusive fountain, near it a stone lantern, and across the far end a rocky ledge studded with flowers and evergreens, with a thatched gate opening a brief vista among pink azaleas and snow-white early hyacinths.

The fresh colors of those evergreens may be a mystery to St. Louisans who have tried to grow them here but had them smothered under the yearly deposit of smoke-grime. The answer is that these are kept in greenhouse, and allowed to "breathe" through the leaves, despite the smoke, by weekly baths.

For the benefit of St. Louis amateurs, the garden also displays in this show the new "Golden Gleam" nasturtium, large, semidouble and increasingly popular.

SUES TO VOID ORDER OF ELECTRICAL EXAMINERS

Victor Co. Attacks in Court Ruling Rejecting Work It Did at 2647 Adams St.

The Victor Electric Co., 4143 Blaine avenue, filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday for a review of the action of the Committee of Electrical Examiners of the city in a case involving electrical work performed by the petitioner at 2647 Adams street last November.

It is set forth that Ralf T. Toensfeldt, city electrical engineer, rejected the work, which was under the first floor. The reason for rejection was that the materials used were not in accordance with requirements of the electrical code of the city pertaining to the kind required in basements. It is pointed out by the company that the house in question has no basement.

The Committee of Electrical Examiners, composed of Toensfeldt, president; Thomas M. Woods and George A. Gerstner, sustained the engineer's ruling Feb. 21. The Court is asked to set aside the finding.

SHELVE PARTISANSHIP, SAYS HIRAM JOHNSON

Senator Assails G. O. P. Chairman Sanders for Attack on Administration.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Senator Hiram Johnson (Rep.), California, who supported Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency, today assailed as a "sorry policy" an attack on the administration last night by Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

In a statement, he said it was a "matter of rejoicing to observe that some authority recently curbed the issuance of a book by the Democratic National Committee, which, it is alleged, was a mere partisan statement of what had been done."

"I observe today," he added, "a like partisan statement issued by the chairman of the Republican National Committee preaching a doctrine of defeat and despair.

"What a pity that some authority in the Republican party did not do with this statement exactly what was done with the partisan statement of the Democratic Committee."

Sanders had said the reasons advanced by the Democratic National Committee for its withdrawal of its review of President Roosevelt's first year in office "must rank as the outstanding piece of fiction so far this year." Charles Michelson, Democratic publicity director, had said the review entitled "One Year's Record" had been withdrawn to avoid any statement which might be construed as "partisan propaganda."

"The plain truth," Sanders said, "is the record has been suppressed because the ballyhoo it contained about the success of the 'new deal' would have excited derision among all classes of people."

Johnson said "any statement at this time which would destroy the confidence of our people, which would transmute their present optimism into a disgruntled pessimism, which, instead of citing the gains which have been made, which none can deny, would decry them for partisan purposes, does not serve either party or country."

"Party lines," he continued, "have never been so loose as at present. Partisan activity has never been so little in evidence as during the past year. A common purpose has actuated every man of patriotic instincts in every party—the purpose of acting in co-operation with the President in doing what was essential for the public weal.

"It is not necessary to agree with all that has been done in every conceivable particular, but unfair and unjust would be the individual who would not emphatically concede that with an enlightened audacity the President has acted, and has accomplished amazing results.

"It is a sorry policy that now says to 120,000,000 people that nothing has been done that is right and that the President has brought them no relief, and the future holds for them no hope.

"We are better, and our country is better, and our people are better, and our times are better for what the President has done during the past year.

"Those Legislators who in this crisis in the affairs of the nation have placed country above party and have co-operated to bring about recovery are proud of the part, whether great or small, that they have played in the astonishing work that has been done."

Johnson is up for re-election this year with support of his State's Democratic Delegation in Congress.

CORONER REPORTS MAN FOUND DYING WAS HIT BY AUTO

Grocer Says Pair Told Him of Accident and Promised to Return to Scene.

A Coroner's jury conducting an inquest yesterday in the death of Marcus Dillon, 41 years old, who was found with his chest crusehd in an alley back of 1734 Chouteau avenue, Thursday evening, returned a verdict that Dillon died as a result of being struck by an automobile operated by an unidentified driver.

John Ries, a grocer, 1201 Grattan street, testified that about 6:45 p. m. Thursday a man and a woman drove up to his store, which is near the alley in which Dillon was found, and the woman said they had run over a man. She asked Ries to notify police, and she and the man drove away after saying that they would return to the alley. Ries said they were driving a sedan, which he thought was a Hudson, bearing 1933 license plates.

Dillon, a presser for the Curlee Clothing Co., died at City Hospital Thursday night without regaining consciousness. He was married and resided at 1206 South Eighteenth street.

OVERCOAT LEFT BEHIND LEADS TO BURGLARS' ARREST

By Tracing Cleaner's Marks Police Find Three Who Admit Charge.

Tracing a cleaner's mark in an overcoat abandoned by a burglar who was frightened from the store he had just broken into early Friday, police caught the burglar, a Negro, and two companions yesterday. All of them signed statements admitting participation in burglaries, police said.

The store from which the burglar was frightened was the drug store of Julius Sanowski, 918 Pendleton avenue, and the policemen who found the coat with the cleaner's mark in it, and traced the owner of it, were Patrolmen Otto Frerricks and Ola McCallister.

FOR FORECLOSURE SALE OF SIMMONS COMPANIES

Trustees, Answering Suit, Admit Need of It; to Clear Way for Reorganization.

An answer was filed in Circuit Judge Ryan's court yesterday by the Associated Simmons Hardware Cos., an unincorporated voluntary common law trust, to a petition asking for foreclosure under a trust agreement securing $4,791,500 in notes. The answer admits foreclosure sale of the securities protecting the notes is necessary to meet payments due.

Robert Burnett, of counsel for Kenneth Teasdale and L. E. Crandall, operating trustees of the firm, said the answer was a step in clearing the way for the sale and reorganization of the business. It was said an application asking for approval of a reorganization plan had been submitted to the Federal Securities Commission.

The original petition for foreclosure was filed by the trustees in a receivership action brought in May, 1932, by a noteholder. It was alleged that provisions of the trust agreement had been violated in that the association failed to maintain the prescribed ratio of quick assets. Teasdale and Crandall were appointed in December, 1932.

$12,456,090 IN BACK TAXES COLLECTED BY U.S. IN JANUARY

Amount 75 Per cent of Quota; Morgenthau Trying to Gather in $800,000,000 of Such Debts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3. — The Treasury made a $12,456,090 start in January on Secretary Morgenthau's campaign to collect more than $800,000,000 in back taxes. This was only 75 per cent of the quota set for the month when Morgenthau, early in January, summoned all Internal Revenue agents and personally ordered an intensive drive to get all taxes due into the Treasury. Most of the delinquencies were income taxes.

Treasury officials said today 10 districts had exceeded their quotas. They explained quotas were set on the basis of last year's collections in each district and as a result, some districts had quotas larger than the uncollected income tax assessments.

The Treasury looks for a bigger showing when February figures are completed. Last January's back tax collections were $15,592,711.

In eight months of the fiscal year, the Treasury has collected $359,817,000 in income taxes as compared with $384,546,000 in last year's corresponding period.

ROOSEVELT SEES WIDER INTEREST IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS

"Amazing and Universal Increase" Being Taken by People in Subject, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Roosevelt today pronounced one of the outstanding features of the first year of his administration the "amazing and universal increase" in the interest of people in government.

On the close of his year in office, he gave notice in an address at exercises of the American University that the "New Deal" was not temporary and was pointed to "eradicating the deeper causes of the immediate illness and of many other illnesses of the body politic."

This address was at installation of Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray as chancellor of the university.

Text of the Address.

The text:

"It is very delightful to me to become today an alumnus of American University. I am honored also in the association with your new chancellor which it affords.

"It is a good thing for our American life that this university should be situated in the capital of the country. It is good in the opportunity which it gives to higher education to come into a more intimate understanding of the problems of what we call government; it is good for government to expand its associations with the teachers and pupils of a liberal institution.

"It is, of course, natural that I should take special interest in the announcement of the creation of a School of Public Affairs by American University. Many articles have been written, many speeches are being made which seek to review and to estimate the history of the United States during the past year. I am willing to hazard a guess that few of these epitomes will stress what to me stands out as one of the most salient features of a salient year in our American life.

"I speak of the amazing and universal increase in the intelligent interest which the people of the United States are taking in the whole subject of government. In cities, in hamlets and on farms men and women in their daily contacts are discussing, as never before, except in time of war, the methods by which community and national problems are ordered; and war is not, in the true sense, an exception because in such case there is but a single objective.

Thinking for the Future.

"In the broader problem of government of all kinds, local and state and Federal and international, we in this country today are thinking not merely in terms of the moment, but in terms that apply to the rest of our lives and to the lives of our children. It is true that the immediate cause of this logical and deep-seated interest was a crisis—an immediate crisis which broke over our heads a year ago. It would have been possible perhaps for all of us to have sought only a temporary cure for the immediate illness of the nation. We can be thankful that we have studied and are engaged in the process of eradicating the deeper causes of that illness and of many other illnesses of the body politic.

"In so doing, we need very definitely practical contacts between the collegiate and educational world and the operations of government. The development of our economic life requires the intelligent understanding of the hundreds of complicated elements in our society. Government needs very definitely not only the sociological and economic points of view, but also the practical assistance of men and women who represent the academic, the business, and the professional elements in the community.

Needs of Government.

"We need a trained personnel in government. We need disinterested, as well as broad gauged public officials. This part of our problem we have not yet solved, but it can be solved and it can be accomplished without the creation of a national bureaucracy which would dominate the national life of our governmental system.

"That is why I am especially happy in the announcement of the establishment of this School of Public Affairs. I can assure you of the hearty co-operation of the administration. In the conduct of this school the more widely you can draw on every part of the nation for the membership of its student body, the greater will be its influence in the dissemination of knowledge of government throughout the country.

"Among our universities, you are young; you have a great future—a great opportunity for initiative, for constructive thinking, for practical idealism and for national service."

Dramatic, Satin-Finished

CANDLEWICK PRINTS!

Like a rocket, these radical new prints have burst into prominence! In fact, they are so important an innovation, they were created behind locked doors!

Inspired by the lovely old colonial hand-tuftings, they have been so ingeniously reproduced by a new photographic process, you seem to see the actual tufts stand out on the printed fabric!

Fresh, colorful and endlessly practical, (the glazed sheen of this satin-finished fabric retains its lustre despite frequent laundering) we predict these prints will surpass their colonial ancestors in popularity!

So enthusiastic are we about them, we have grouped them in a special display in the Drapery Shop, Fourth Floor. Here are just a few of our favorites!

3 KIDNAPERS NAMED BY YOUNG O'CONNELL

At Trial of Intermediary He Mentions Fugitives Who Seized Him.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 3.—Three men were named today by John J. O'Connell Jr., members of the gang that kidnaped him last July.

O'Connell, testifying at the trial of Manney Strewl, the intermediary who effected O'Connell's release and later was accused of being a principal in the abduction, said Strewl did not enter the case until after he had been seized.

Cross-examining him about the events that occurred in front of O'Connell's home the night of July 7, Defense Counsel Daniel H. Prior asked:

"Didn't you recognize any of the men who seized you?"

"Yes," replied the 22-year-old O'Connell, "I recognized several of them later when I saw their pictures."

"Who were they?"

"John Oley, Percy Geary and Francis Oley."

"Did you recognize Strewl as one of these men?"

"No sir."

The three men named by O'Connell, all Albany figures, are fugitives. Police said Oley once served a term with Strewl in Atlanta penitentiary for a box car robbery. His brother, Percy, has no police record, but authorities said Geary had been involved in minor trouble.

Strewl, who leaped to his feet and called O'Connell a "liar" yesterday when the witness identified him as having been associated with the kidnapers, remained silent today.

Prior sought to weaken O'Connell's identification of Strewl by bringing out that the kidnap victim had seen or heard the defendant's voice on only two occasions before the trial.

One of these was when Strewl, in his capacity as intermediary, drove O'Connell back to Albany after his release in New York City on July 29.

Under direct examination, O'Connell completed for District Attorney John T. Delaney the story of his 22-day confinement. He told how his captors turned him over, blindfolded, to Strewl at a place 30 minutes' drive from Broadway. This was after his uncles, Ed and Dan O'Connell, Albany political leaders, paid $40,000 ransom to Strewl as intermediary. John Oley is now believed by police to have fled with this money.

Judge Earl H. Gallup permitted general laughter at a remark by Prior which brought a flush of embarrassment to the face of the witness.

"What did Strewl say to you in New York?" Prior asked. "He said 'You will have to have some go-betweens. Start to name them.'"

He Named Defense Attorney.

"Whom did you name?" "Joe Hagan, James O'Brien and Barney Riley."

"Whom else did you name?" "I named you."

Prior smiled. "Local racketeers, eh?" O'Connell flushed and tried to explain.

"That's all right, John, you don't need to apologize," Prior assured him.

O'Connell said: "But I want to explain. I mentioned people I had heard of who were racketeers or knew them, but he (Strewl) told me they didn't want any lawyers."

DEPARTMENT STORE SALES UP 18 PER CENT IN JANUARY

Retail Dry Goods Association Compares Business Conditions With a Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 3.—An upward trend in the retail business from conditions of a year ago when the depression was at its low point was reported today after a nation-wide survey by the National Retail Dry Goods Association, representing 4500 department and specialty stores.

The situation a year ago was described as follows:

"Department store sales in 211 cities in February had run 25 per cent under the same month in 1932. This in turn was 16 per cent under the same month in 1931. Business in cities was almost completely paralyzed."

The situation today, beginning with December:

"Chain stores and mail order houses reported phenomenal increases over December, 1932. Some department stores reported gains as high as 50 per cent. The country-wide average was 7 per cent over the previous December.

"Retail dollar sales in January exceeded expectations, and an 18 per cent increase in department stores was reported. February sales are expected to at least equal those of January."

ST. CLAIR COUNTY BOARD SEEKS REFERENDUM ON MINE UNIONS

Supervisors Ask Roosevelt to Arrange State-Wide Vote on Question.

The St. Clair County Board of Supervisors forwarded a request yesterday to President Roosevelt asking him to arrange for a referendum of all coal miners in Illinois to determine whether they desire to affiliate with the United Mine Workers of America or the Progressive Miners.

The board refused to seat A. E. Kraemer as chief supervisor from Belleville succeeding the late Joseph J. Anton, taking the position that the Belleville City Council should have reconvened as a Town Board before offering his name.

REICHSBISHOP TIGHTENS REINS ON GERMAN CHURCHES

By Decrees Virtually Eliminates Power of Opponents in Protestant Congregations.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 3.—Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller tightened his control of the German Protestant Church today by issuing a set of decrees whereby his opponents were eliminated from influence within the church.

By abolishing the general synod and depriving provincial synods of deliberative powers he made criticism of his measures impossible. He decreed that the United Prunssian Church be merged with the Federal church and thereby took the first step toward similar action in other states, thus preparing the way for the elimination of Bishops who for months have challenged his power. He also issued an order abolishing the Constitution of the Rhenish Westphalian churches. These bodies enjoyed special privileges in that their synods were independent of any Bishops. The churches in Rhenish Westphalia, on Feb. 23, met in a synod and defied Bishop Mueller.

MORGENTHAU NOTES LIQUOR STAMP LAW IS VIOLATED

Issues Nation-Wide Order for Its Enforcement Following Personal Inspection.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—After a personal inspection of window displays in liquor stores here today, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau issued an order to all revenue agents in the United States to enforce the law requiring a red stamp to be pasted over the mouth of every bottle of liquor sold. He saw several bottles lacking these stamps.

He directed the agents to notify dealers that all bottles lacking the stamp were subject to seizure and that the owner was liable to five years' imprisonment or $1000 fine. the order directed that where dealers could make an affidavit of good faith and declare there was no intetition to violate the law, they should be permitted to purchase the red stamps.

OUTLAW HELD FOR RETURN

Ed Davis Wanted by Oklahoma and Kansas; U. S. Not Interested.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 3.—Maurice Milligan, U. S. District Attorney here, said today that Ed Davis, fugitive convict who is under arrest at Los Angeles, is not wanted here in connection with the slaying of four officers and Frank Nash, convict, at the Union Station here last June. Today, however, Gov. Alf M. Landon said extradition of Davis to Kansas would be sought and the papers forwarded to California next week.

Since the Government does not want Davis, it is probable that Oklahoma will seek to return him to the penitentiary at McAllester from which he escaped while serving a life sentence for the murder of a night watchman at Marlow, Ok. Davis participated in the Memorial day prison break at Lansing, Kan., last year while serving a long term for a Fort Scott bank robbery.

Hogs to Top Since October.

Under favorable marketing conditions, hog prices shot up to the highest levels since last October, reacted sharply at midweek but recovered at the close to finish 10@20c higher than last Saturday. Marketings on the last two sessions were so scanty as to scarcely provide enough to definitely determine quotations. Pigs and light lights were in narrow demand and ruled steady to 25c lower for the week, packing sows also declining 15@25c. Supplies this week approximated 47,300, compared with 53,947 last week and 48,700 same week last year. On Monday and again on Saturday, the top reached $5, although for very small numbers on Saturday. Bulk of 160 to 250-lb. weights wound up at $4.75@4.90, 250 to 300-lb. descriptions being scarce but quotable from $4.60 @4.75. Desirable 140 to 150-lb. weights scored $3.50@4.25 and 80 to 130 lb. pigs mostly $2.50@3. Packing sows finished mostly at $3.25@3.60, smooth lightweights Friday up to $3.80.

Fat Lambs Advance.

Fat lambs advanced a quarter during the week under review but other classes were unchanged all the way through. In fact, other classes were almost too scarce to quote with any great degree of accuracy. Supplies this week totaled around 6700 head, compared with 8395 last week and 6498 same week last year. Shippers and city butchers paid the week's top of $10.25 almost each day of the week; the packer top not exceeding the $10 level. Bulk of wooled lambs cashed at $9.50@10; common throwouts on down to $6.50 or a little below. Clipped lambs topped at $8.60 for some fall shorn offerings, bulk of clippers selling from that price down to $7.75. Clipped yearlings were confined to a few lots which sold at $7.50@7.75. PREPARING CHICAGO FAIR FOR RE-OPENING Russia Expected to Have Exhibit—Henry Ford Takes 11 Acres.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 3.—With $5,000,000 in new money, the world's fair is booming with preparations for its 1934 edition.

Although the opening date, June 1, is three months away, the exposition's 424 acres along Chicago's lake front already have been transformed from a "ghost city" of the winter months into a zone bustling with construction activity.

Rrom Rufus C. Dawes and Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, the commanding generals of the fair, came predictions today that its second season's rnu of five months or more would be equally as successful as it was in 1933.

Incidentally, Lohr pointed out, only about 10,000,000 visitors will be needed in 1934 to put the exposition "out of the red" and on a money-making basis. There were 22,450,000 paying visitors last year.

"Contracts with concessionaires last year were such that we couldn't stop some of the productions that visitors might consider objectionable," one of the exposition officials said, "but this year weve got new contracts.

"Any concessionaire who attempts to include a fan dancer or any similar entertainment on his program will find himself outside the grounds."

Several additional states and perhaps one new nation—Russia—are expected to be among the exhibitors. The Russian Government has been reported planning an exhibit to tell the story of the 16-year-old Soviet republic and to trace the progress of the first and second five-year plans.

The biggest of the new exhibits will be Henry Ford's. He has contracted for 11 acres of exhibit space. The smallest application was received from Mrs. Alma Eklund, asking for two square feet, but not naming the product she wished to display. Fair officials said the Ford exhibit would cost $1,000,000.

One of the innovations of the fair will be a substitute for the rays of the star Arcturis, which turned on the lights of the exposition every night during the 1933 run. Tentative plans have been made for use of a radio beam from the Byrd Exposition at the South Pole.

In its first showing, the fair was officially a Century of Progress, commemorating the incorporation of Chicago as a village. This is the 101st year since that date, but the expositions' name will be unchanged.

ITALIAN COTTON INSTITUTE TO REGULATE INDUSTRY

Organization, Approved by Ministers, Will Control Manufacture and Sales.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, March 3.—The Council of Ministers today approved the creation of an Istituto Cotoniero Italinao—or Italian cotton institute—to purchase cotton for manufacture and regulate the production and sale prices of cloth made of cotton or cotton mixtures. The institute also would seek markets for the product.

The Cabinet has thus founded a Government institute through which it is believed all sales of American cotton eventually must pass. The following communique was issued:

"Although the crisis in the cotton industry is grave, it is believed the creation of a central organ to increase the rhythm of production and give direction to the commercial currents will produce favorable results, especially in regard to market sales."

FARM PRODUCTS UP 2 POINTS

Advance in General Level of Prices Feb. 7 to 14.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—An increase of 2 points in the general level of farm product prices from Feb. 7 to Feb. 14 was reported today by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Prices farmers paid for commodities were unchanged. At 75 per cent of the pre-war average, farm prices were only one point less than they were last July, but with that exception were the highest since August, 1931.

Prices of cotton, hogs, cattle, butterfat and apples increased during the week, while prices of wheat, tobacco, potatoes, chickens and eggs declined slightly. In per cent of the 1910-1914 average of 100, the index of prices of farm products on Feb. 14 was 75, compared with 70 on Jan. 15 and 49 at depression low point in February, 1933. The level of prices paid by farmers was 117.5 per cent of the pre-war average, compared with 101 in February, 1933. The index of purchasing power of farm products was 64, 31 per cent higher than in February, 1933.

DENIES PLEA FOR RECEIVER FOR GOV. FERGUSON'S FARM

Court, "In View of the Times," Bars Claim on Alleged Default of $40,000 Note.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., March 3.—An application for the appointment of a receiver for the 626-acre dairy farm of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson was denied today in District Court.

The suit was brought by the Dallas Joint Stock Land Bank in connection with its action to foreclose on the land alleging Gov. Ferguson failed to continue payments on a $40,000 note.

"In view of the times," Judge W. M. Taylor said, "and in view of the policy of the National and State Governments, the Court considers certain things that ordinarily would not influence the Court in making a decision. It does not seem that the appointment of a receiver in this case would improve matters."

LABOR MENACE IN CUBA

President Told to Act Quickly in Provincial Railway Strike.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, March 3.—The Attorney-General of Cuba tonight told President Carlos Mendieta that he must act quickly and with a "firm hand" if he wants to end labor troubles in Camaguey Province, where a serious situation exists. Almost immediately afterward five Army planes and several detachments of troops were dispatched to Oriente province and Camaguey.

The Attorney-General, Lopez Garrigo, made the recommendation after a survey of the area, where a general strike of railway employes tied up all rail traffic, and other workers have joined the movement. Employes of the Consolidated Railways of Cuba declared a strike at midnight as a protest against the arrest of several labor leaders and the "unjustified discharge" of several railroad office employes. Street car men, hotel and cafe employes and bus drivers joined the walkout as a general strike threatened the whole Province.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 3.—Mac, a fox terrier, died today, but saved his master and mistress, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius McNamara. Mac ran upstairs and awakened the McNamaras, sleeping in a second floor bedroom. The McNamaras leaped 15 feet to the ground, into the snow and safety.

FOUNDER OF HANDMAIDENS TO BECOME SAINT TODAY

Maria Micaela Desmaisieres of Spain Will Be Honored in Papal Ceremony.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, March 3. — A new name will be added to the calendar of saints tomorrow when Pope Pius XI will preside at ceremonies recognizing the sanctity of Blessed Maria Micaela Desmaisieres, founder of the Handmaidens of the Most Holy Sacrament and of Charity.

Mother Maria Micaela was born to an aristocratic Spanish family in Madrid in 1809. Her own earthly title was Viscountess of Jorbalan. She showed a desire to take the veil early in life, but family obligations kept her in the limelight of Madrid and Paris court life until 1850, when she renounced the world.

Her first chapter of the Handmaidens was established in Madrid in 1845. Many chapters now exist in Europe and South America. She died in Valencia, Spain, in the cholera epidemic of 1865.

The Pope in an address tonight to 3000 Spanish holy year pilgrims expressed the hope the church's troubles in Spain were at an end and that "the full beauty and consolation of Christian life will return."

He blessed "all children of Spain, even those who refuse to listen to the voice of the Holy Father."

YOUTH STABS GIRL ON STREET, USING NEEDLE AS WEAPON

Assailant Runs When Victim Screams; Wound In Abdomen Serious.

Miss Myrtle McFarland, 3850 Maffitt avenue, was stabbed in the abdomen Friday night by a slim youth who ran away when she screamed. The youth's weapon apparently was a needle.

Miss McFarland, who is 18 years old, was walking with a friend, Miss Agnes Hanley, 4019 North Market street, on Vandeventer avenue near Palm street when the youth, who appeared to be about 16 years old, approached them, jabbed the weapon into Miss McFarland's side and ran away.

Miss Hanley assisted Miss McFarland to her home, and her father took her to Christian Hospital.

ALUMINUM WORKERS STILL OUT

Refuse 11 Pct. Increase and Demand 80c an Hour.

By the Associated Press.

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., March 3.—Willingness to return to work was expressed by a small group of employes of the Aluminum Co. of America today, but 3000, a large majority of workers, rejected a proffered wage increase of 11 per cent and decided to stay out.

Paul Howlett, acting president of the union, said a secret formal election will be held tomorrow to confirm the vote. The action of the majority group was taken in the face of urgings by American Federation of Labor representatives that they resume their jobs as directed by the Regional Labor Board. The company is a Mellon-owned concern. Howlett said they want a minimum wage of 80 cents an hour or "nothing." The existing rate is 40 cents.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Security and commodity markets were inclined to stabilize this week, after the rather pronounced recession of the previous week.

Trading in securities subsided to close to the slowest pace of the year, but prices held up well, in fact, showed some disposition to recover.

Among principle staples, wheat and corn futures registered net gains for the seven-day period of around a cent a bushel, but cotton finished the week virtually unchanged.

Business news was marked by further gains in industrial production, and corporate developments included another quota of increased dividend disbursements, notable among which was General Electric increase in its quarterly payment on the common stock to 15 cents, from 10 cents.

Wall street, however, was disposed to move cautiously, pending further legislative and industrial developments. Washington hearings on legislation designed to control the security markets still held the attention of the financial community. Gossip was heard in some brokerage quarters that divergence of opinion over the Fletcher-Rayburn bill might prevent enactment at this session of Congress, but elsewhere it was suggested that the wish was evidently father to the thought.

Factors in Quietness.

Among the chief factors in the quietness of the security markets appeared to be a desire to await clearer indications of the probable extent of the spring business rise, and a feeling the current prices about discounted recovery thus far accomplished.

The hearings on the NRA codes, with a view to modification, was followed intently, and President Roosevelt's address scheduled for Monday was awaited with keen interest. The probable effects of a further shortening of working hours was a favorite subject for conjecture.

The sprinkling of labor disputes, principally in the automotive industries, continued to receive much attention, and prompt moves toward settlement were gratifying.

The price average of 90 representative stocks ended the week at 87.9, up 1.1 points from a week earlier, and of 60 corporate bonds, at 84.3, up only 0.1 of one point. Standard Statistics Co.'s commodity price index, including both speculative and non-speculative items, ended the week at 69.2 per cent of the 1926 average, or unchanged from a week earlier. This was far above the 47.5 per cent level of a year ago, however.

Narrow Week-End Range.

Financial markets apparently did not have the courage of their convictions at week-end sessions and most of them failed to follow through on yesterday's revival.

Stocks started out as though they would duplicate their late flourish of the preceding session, but the bullish spasm was brief. After the first few minutes traders started taking profits and prices mulled about in a narrow and irregular range to the close.

Brokerage circles reported that some clients, while waiting for completion of the revised N. R. A. program, had decided to lighten commitments.

The turnover in stocks amounted to only 798,820 shares, the smallest Saturday aggregate since Jan. 13, last. Most of the leaders backed and filled diffidently. While the close was steady, the average for 90 selected issues was unchanged at 87.9.

Brief Rally in Metals.

Commodities did little. Most of the grains finished a trifle higher, but cotton, after an early spurt, reacted under heavy realizing and ended with losses of 45 to 65 cents a bale. While bar silver eased, the futures were firm. Other staples held to a narrow groove. International dollar rates furnished no stimulus, being virtually unchanged. Bonds managed to emerge with small fractional gains.

The metal stocks had a brief upward flurry on word that the House Coinage Sub-Committee would report a bill for the purchase of a large amount of foreign silver in exchange for American Agricultural Products. The spurt was only momentary when it was realized that this bill probably might encounter many difficulties in Congress.

The 1933 earnings statement of Sears-Roebuck drew a following to this issue and the shares closed with a gain of nearly a point. Union Pacific and N. Y. Central eased, American Telephone and Consolidated Gas were off slightly. U. S. Smelting gained a point and American Smelting was a trifle higher. U. S. Steel eased. The rubbers were fairly firm, but the aircrafts did virtually nothing. General motors was a bit higher and Chrysler as much lower.

Automobile production for the week, as estimated by Cram's reports, recorded a small advance "despite persistent material shortage, month-end tapering of schedules and labor troubles at plants of several parts manufacturers and one automobile producer." The output of cars was said to have approximated 71,510 units, an increase of 463 over the preceding week. The volume was more than double that of the corresponding 1933 period.

The British pound ended unchanged at $5.07½ and French francs were slightly higher at 6.58 cents. Dutch guilders eased 93¼ of a cent at 67.22 cents and Belgian belgas and Swiss francs were unchanged. Canadian dollars also held to their previous rate of 99½ cents.

TO TAKE OVER BOND BUSINESS OF BANK

Negotiations for a new corporation to take over the business of the bond department of Lafayette-South Side Bank and Trust Co. were completed last week. G. R. Eckhardt and Joseph G. Petersen, formerly of the bond department of the Lafayette, will be officers in the new firm, which will have quarters on Broadway near the Manufacturers' Bank and Trust Co., successor to the Lafayette, which is in liquidation. The new bank will not have a bond department and will not sell securities.

COTTON CLOSES LOWER AFTER EARLY ADVANCE

NEW YORK, March 3.—Cotton sagged after an early advance today. After advancing to 12.50 on the initial demand, July declined to 12.20 in the late trading and closed at that figure with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 9 to 13 points.

Initial prices were 6 to 11 points higher on overnight buying orders prompted by yesterday's reports of progress on the cotton control bill.

The advance of approximately $3 a bale from the low prices of last Tuesday attracted a good deal of realizing, and after the initial demand had been supplied prices turned easier. There was some late selling from Southern sources as well as profit-taking or liquidation. Active months sold off some 20 to 25 points from the high levels and closing quotations were at the lowest for the day.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 147,000 bales against 150,000 last year.

Spot steady, middling 12.40.

MEMPHIS SPOT COTTON

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 3.—Spot cotton had a steady tone. Middling closed at 12c, compared with 12.10c Friday. Sales amounted to 13,303 bales.

LEAD AND ZINC ORE PRICES ARE UNCHANGED

JOPLIN, Mo., March 3.—A cold wave and snow at the beginning of the week resulted in reduced production of zinc and lead ores in the Joplin district. Zinc output was placed at 5000 tons, or about 1800 tons below normal. Mild weather later this week enabled plants to resume.

Ore prices this week were unchanged, zinc bringing $30 a ton and lead ranging from $40 to $42.50. The zinc purchase was reported at 4500 tons. Several mines and tailing mills are expected to close at the end of next week to curtail production.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, March 3.—The dollar was little changed in terms of other currencies in foreign exchange markets today. Trading was quiet and the London gold market was inactive, with only $2,461,375 in gold offered. It was purchased at an equivalent of $34.73 a fine ounce, an increase of about 3 pence over yesterday's figure.

The dollar opened steady at 5.07½ to the pound in London, but light offerings caused a slight decline to 5.08 at the close. In New York, the British unit was ⅛ of a cent higher in later trading at $5.07⅝. It closed at $5.07½.

In Paris the dollar moved narrowly in light trading after opening at an equivalent of 6.58 cents to the franc. In New York the French currency was a minor fraction of a cent higher at 6.58, compared with an overnight quotation of 6.57¾ cents.

Based on the franc at its final New York rate, the dollar was valued at approximately 59.58 per cent of its former parity, compared with 59.57 per cent Friday and 61.93 per cent a month ago.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, March 3.—A somewhat steadier undertone developed in copper during the week owing to absorption of small resale offerings at slight concessions and appearance of moderate buying interest for prompt shipment at the producers' quotation of 8 cents for electrolytic. Foreign demand continued fair at prices slightly above the domestic basis, aiding the tone of the market.

Tin was quieter but fluctuations were narrower. Slight declines early in the week were recovered later in sympathy with the action of sterling. Purchases of metal by consumers thus far this year are said to be under consumption. Tin plate mill perations continued at around 60 per cent of capacity.

Lead was steady and unchanged. Moderate daily buying from various consuming branches for March shipment was reported. Battery and cable makers were said to be among the more prominent buyers. Demand was centered in nearby requirements, with little interest thus far for April needs.

Zinc was quiet. Inquiry was confined to prompt carload lots with smelters holding prices unchanged. While sellers hoped that expanding steel operations would result in improved demand, interest centered principally in the ore situation and efforts being made to improve the supply and demand position through a program of mine curtailment.

While somewhat better interest in antimony was attracted by continued firmness of Chinese prices, forecasting higher futures replacement costs, business was still limited. Sellers held firm, however.

On top of a further rise in steel operations to the estimated 45.7 per cent of ingot capacity in the past week, the steel trade continued optimistic of further gains. Prices were unchanged. Sales and shipments of pig iron were increasing in some districts but quiet conditions were reported elsewhere.

MAY WHEAT HAS NARROW RANGE IN LOCAL TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, March 3.—The wheat market was in a waiting mood today. May wheat had lower range of but ¼c, closing unchanged for day. A sustaining factor was estimate of 2,000,000 bushels export business at Winnipeg yesterday.

Liverpool wheat closed ½ to ⅝d higher.

Winnipeg opened unchanged to ⅛c. Early it was unchanged to ⅜c lower. The close was ⅛@¼c net higher.

May wheat opened at 86⅜c, unchanged. July opened 85½c.

Local wheat receipts which were 24,000 bushels, compared with 21,000 last week and 35,000 last year included six cars local and 10 through. Corn receipts which were 43,500 bushels, compared with 52,500 last week and 37,800 last year, included 17 cars local and 12 through. Oat receipts which were 32,000 bushels, compared with 26,000 last week and 28,600 last year included 12 cars local and four through.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was ½c higher, with a car of choice starchy type bringing a premium. A local mill took the hard wheat at ½c lower level. The demand was fair. Corn was ½c higher. The demand was slow in a dull session. Oats were unchanged and the bulk of the day's receipts, which were larger than recently, were carried over due to the very slow demand.

Red wheat was ½c higher and hard ½c lower Corn was ½c higher and oats unchanged.

Sales of cash grain made on the floor of the exchange Saturday were as follows:

Wheat: No. 2 red winter wheat 90@90½c; No. 2 hard wheat 88c; No. 2 mixed wheat 88c.

Corn: No. 2 yellow corn 50¼c; No. 4 yellow corn 49c; No. 3 white corn 50c.

PRICES LITTLE HIGHER IN WAITING WHEAT MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Mill buying of wheat futures, both here and at Minneapolis helped grain prices to average a little higher today.

A rather pronounced tendency, though, among most wheat traders was shown to adopt a waiting attitude pending legislative and code developments at Washington. Word that export purchases of wheat yesterday at Winnipeg were on a big scale totaling 2,000,000 bushels, served as a counterbalance when at one stage the Chicago market today underwent a moderate sag as a result of profit-taking sales after prices had touched a new top point for the week.

Wheat in Chicago closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜ higher, corn ¼@⅜c up; oats unchanged to ⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

An upward trend shown at the start in the Chicago wheat market was attributed largely to early strength displayed by securities. Fractional gains by wheat, however, led quickly to realizing sales on the part of holders who were in a position to collect profits. The ensuing downturn of Chicago prices went about ½-cent under yesterday's close, and then rallies followed, aided by firmness of the Winnipeg market.

In contrast with relative strength of the Chicago and Winnipeg wheat markets, Liverpool reported active selling of wheat futures, with most of the selling believed to be for Argentine account. Cable told of expectation that the official estimate of the Argentine wheat crop would be enlarged. Something of an offset was noticed from Buenos Aires that on Monday the Argentine Government would advance the wheat price paid to farmers about 1½ cents a bushel.

Corn and oats showed independent strength owing largely to announcement that permits to use imported molasses instead of domestic cereals to manufacture alcohol would not be renewed. This was expected to provide a demand for 45,000,000 bushels of grain annually.

Provisions were firm, aided by indications of better export demand.

GRAIN EXCHANGE TO VOTE ON 5000-BU UNIT TRADE

The members of the Merchants' Exchange will vote on two propositions March 13 to change the rules affecting trading in grain futures. One is to change the unit of trading in the pit to 5000 bushels. Heretofore it had been 1000 bushels. The other is "Any offer to buy or sell large quantities of commodities for future delivery, with a limitation requiring the buyer or seller to purchase or sell the entire amount, is not permissible, and is hereby forbdden. All offers to buy or sell grain shall be open for acceptance by any member in units of five thousand bushels; provided that when specifically bid or offered as one thousand bushels, the unit may be one thousand bushels or multiples."

Other propositions will also be voted upon dealing with butter and egg futures.

MAY WHEAT HAS NARROW RANGE IN LOCAL TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, March 3.—The wheat market was in a waiting mood today. May wheat had lower range of but ¼c, closing unchanged for day. A sustaining factor was estimate of 2,000,000 bushels export business at Winnipeg yesterday.

Liverpool wheat closed ½ to ⅝d higher.

Winnipeg opened unchanged to ⅛c. Early it was unchanged to ⅜c lower. The close was ⅛@¼c net higher.

May wheat opened at 86⅜c, unchanged. July opened 85½c.

Local wheat receipts which were 24,000 bushels, compared with 21,000 last week and 35,000 last year included six cars local and 10 through. Corn receipts which were 43,500 bushels, compared with 52,500 last week and 37,800 last year, included 17 cars local and 12 through. Oat receipts which were 32,000 bushels, compared with 26,000 last week and 28,600 last year included 12 cars local and four through.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was ½c higher, with a car of choice starchy type bringing a premium. A local mill took the hard wheat at ½c lower level. The demand was fair. Corn was ½c higher. The demand was slow in a dull session. Oats were unchanged and the bulk of the day's receipts, which were larger than recently, were carried over due to the very slow demand.

Red wheat was ½c higher and hard ½c lower Corn was ½c higher and oats unchanged.

Sales of cash grain made on the floor of the exchange Saturday were as follows:

Wheat: No. 2 red winter wheat 90@90½c; No. 2 hard wheat 88c; No. 2 mixed wheat 88c.

Corn: No. 2 yellow corn 50¼c; No. 4 yellow corn 49c; No. 3 white corn 50c.

PRICES LITTLE HIGHER IN WAITING WHEAT MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Mill buying of wheat futures, both here and at Minneapolis helped grain prices to average a little higher today.

A rather pronounced tendency, though, among most wheat traders was shown to adopt a waiting attitude pending legislative and code developments at Washington. Word that export purchases of wheat yesterday at Winnipeg were on a big scale totaling 2,000,000 bushels, served as a counterbalance when at one stage the Chicago market today underwent a moderate sag as a result of profit-taking sales after prices had touched a new top point for the week.

Wheat in Chicago closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜ higher, corn ¼@⅜c up; oats unchanged to ¼c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

An upward trend shown at the start in the Chicago wheat market was attributed largely to early strength displayed by securities. Fractional gains by wheat, however, led quickly to realizing sales on the part of holders who were in a position to collect profits. The ensuing downturn of Chicago prices went about ½-cent under yesterday's close, and then rallies followed, aided by firmness of the Winnipeg market.

In contrast with relative strength of the Chicago and Winnipeg wheat markets, Liverpool reported active selling of wheat futures, with most of the selling believed to be for Argentine account. Cable told of expectation that the official estimate of the Argentine wheat crop would be enlarged. Something of an offset was noticed from Buenos Aires that on Monday the Argentine Government would advance the wheat price paid to farmers about 1½ cents a bushel.

Corn and oats showed independent strength owing largely to announcement that permits to use imported molasses instead of domestic cereals to manufacture alcohol would not be renewed. This was expected to provide a demand for 45,000,000 bushels of grain annually.

Provisions were firm, aided by indications of better export demand.

GRAIN EXCHANGE TO VOTE ON 5000-BU UNIT TRADE

The members of the Merchants' Exchange will vote on two propositions March 13 to change the rules affecting trading in grain futures. One is to change the unit of trading in the pit to 5000 bushels. Heretofore it had been 1000 bushels. The other is "Any offer to buy or sell large quantities of commodities for future delivery, with a limitation requiring the buyer or seller to purchase or sell the entire amount, is not permissible, and is hereby forbdden. All offers to buy or sell grain shall be open for acceptance by any member in units of five thousand bushels; provided that when specifically bid or offered as one thousand bushels, the unit may be one thousand bushels or multiples."

Other propositions will also be voted upon dealing with butter and egg futures.

BOND TRADE SLOWEST SINCE EARLY IN YEAR

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Bonds generally marked time today in one of the slowest sessions of the market since early last January.

Sales totaled only $7,503,000, par value, against $8,310,000 last Saturday. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues closed with a net gain of one-tenth of a point. At 84.3 this average was up one-tenth of a point on the week. For the six days transfers aggregated $73,468,000 against $69,588,000 in the previous week of only five business days.

With the NRA convention at Washington next week expected to bring some important recovery problems to the fore, both traders and investors were not inclined to extend commitments. There was little important news that might have affected listed loans.

U. S. Government securities were still diffident in the face of uncertainties connected with the Treasury's March 15, financing.

Most of the Treasury loans held gains of 1-32 of a point, but the Liberties eased.

The majority of corporation loans followed an extremely narrow range.

The more active rail gainers of fractions to around a point included some liens of Alleghany Corporation, Atlanta & Charlotte Airline, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate, New Haven, Wabash and Chicago & Eastern Illinois. There were a number of minor losers.

Among the better utilities and industrials were loans of American Water Works, Goodrich, International Telephone, Pan-American Petroleum, Richfield Oil, United Drug and Western Union.

Obligations of Batavia, Finland and Warsaw were up 1 to 3 and issues of Dutch East Indies, Argentina, Australia, Austria and France improved moderately.

CURB TRADE QUIET IN WEEK-END MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Some specialties worked higher on the curb exchange today, but otherwise the list closed generally steady without much change. Trading was quiet.

Transfers were about the same as last Saturday at approximately 233,000 shares.

Metals showed a little improvement coincident with a mild upturn in this group on the big board. Newmont and Lake Shore Mines rose 1½ points each and Hollinger Gold and Hudson Bay Mining were fractionally higher.

587 STATE BANKS NOW ON A NORMAL BASIS

112 Others Operating Under Restrictions Year After National Moratorium.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 3.—State Finance Commissioner Moberly announced today that 587 State banks and trust companies now were operating on a normal basis in Missouri, without restrictions, one year after the national banking holiday was declared by President Roosevelt.

The commissioner said 112 other State-supervised banks and trust companies still were operating under restrictions on withdrawals of deposits, imposed at the termination of the banking holiday, but that many of these banks were working on reorganization plans designed to remove the restrictions.

When the banking holiday was declared in March, 1933, there were 750 State banks and trust companies in Missouri, 27 of which had temporarily suspended regular banking operations under the McCawley bank moratorium law.

Moberly said virtually all of the 587 banks now operating on a normal basis, without restrictions, were operating under the Federal deposit insurance act.

"It is characteristic of the people to forget, and perhaps now few give thought to the distressing situation that existed a year ago when the growing lack of confidence in banks resulted in the necessity for the President's proclamation closing every bank in the nation," Moberly said, "in order that the credit of the country might be saved and the depositors protected.

"Out of the chaos that existed at that time new laws, both Federal and State, have been enacted in order that banking may be placed on a sound basis. The results appear to have fully restored the confidence of the public in the hands of our State, as well as throughout the nation."

Roosevelts Unchanged After Year in White House

President and Family Still Informal—Each Has Maintained Individuality and Daily Habits.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Twelve months of living in the White House have not erased the identity and individuality of Franklin D. Roosevelt and family.

The proud old place with its ever-present psychology of greatness has caused no deviation in Rooseveltian daily habits. They have kept the same spontaneous way of doing things.

There has long been a saying in Washington that the White House subtly transforms all who go to live within its walls. Even the White House staff implicitly believed it. Presidents arrived informal and joking, became burdened with the affairs of state. Presidents' wives came in calling their husbands by their first names, determined that the place should make no difference in their habits, and before they realized it were saying "the President."

Thus far this has not been true of the Roosevelts. Instead of falling into the White House pattern, the entire family set about making White House attaches accustomed to their way of doing things.

Franklin D. Roosevelt kept right on cracking jokes to his Negro valet, McDuffie, as well as to dignitaries who came to counsel with him on public affairs. He continued inviting newspaper men and women in to suppers, where he led the conversation off in a merry manner, and then listened to his guests hotly debate every subject under the sun. There's not a current of present-day thought that hasn't been discussed at the Roosevelt table during the past year.

In some way, too, the President finds time to follow all his hobbies still—stamps and ship print collecting. Mrs. Roosevelt, too, has managed to live her own life in the White House, even to minute details of house management.

Breakfast may be a jolly meal in a sunny upper-floor corridor-end, instead of sedately served in the family dining room. Instead of butlers hovering at all times, anticipating every service, Mrs. Roosevelt uses a tiny silver call bell.

There used to be an unvarying rule at the White House that only the authorized servants could work the automatic elevator. But Mrs. Roosevelt punches buttons as she pleases, though she often prefers to run upstairs.

Daughter Anna Dall, too, goes as unaffectedly and breezily on her way with her old friends as though she lived in Hyde Park still; her small daughter "Sistie" goes to a school, in the same routine as other children, and no more fuss made about it.

The whole fabric of family jokes and customs was taken, in toto, into the executive mansion. Thanksgiving still meant Warm Springs and a foregathering with the crippled children there! Christmas a family party, and the reading of the Christmas Carols; the President's birthday the rallying of his old "1920 gang"; the wedding anniversary a recalling of St. Patrick's day, 1905, when Theodore Roosevelt went to New York to give his niece away.

LECTURE SERIES ON ARTISTS TO BE GIVEN AT MUSEUM

Miss Jessie B. Chamberlain to Give Illustrated Talks on Wednesday Mornings.

A series of 10 illustrated lectures on great artists and their times will be given at City Art Museum in Forest Park, starting Wednesday, by Miss Jessie B. Chamberlain, of the educational department.

The talks will be given each Wednesday at 10:30 a. m., each talk presenting one great master of the past, seen against the background of his country and period. In subject the talks will range from fifteenth century Florence to eighteenth century London. Most of the artists to be considered are represented in the museum's collections.

Another series of lectures, dealing with the principles of design, will be given on Tuesday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock by Miss Margaret Wuerpel, of the educational department. An analysis of selected paintings and decorative art objects from the museum's collections will illustrate the practical application of these principles.

LINEMAN FATALLY INJURED IN 50-FOOT FALL FROM POLE

William E. Foland Comes in Contact With 33,000 Volts; Charles Lloyd Also Suffers Burns.

William E. Foland, a lineman for the Union Electric Light & Power Co., was burned and fatally injured when he came in contact with a wire carrying 33,000 volts of electricity and fell from a pole at Eleventh and Mallinckrodt streets yesterday afternoon. Charles Lloyd, another lineman, was burned on the shoulder by an electric spark.

Patrolman Adolph Karrash, who was standing at the intersection watching Foland and Lloyd transferring wires from an old to a new pole, reported that there was a flash, accompanied by a crackling sound, and Foland's clothing burst into flames. The lineman hung on the pole for several minutes, until his safety belt burned through, then fell 50 feet to the ground.

He died last night at City Hospital. He resided at 8558 Lowell street.

Lloyd, who was assisted from the pole, was treated for burns and shock. He lives at 2025A Farrar street.

ARIZONA TROOPS ORDERED TO PREVENT WORK ON DAM

Governor Acts to Prevent Construction Pending Agreement With California.

By the Associated Press.

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 3.—In a move to prevent construction of a diversion dam across the Colorado River at Parker, Ariz., pending formulation of an agreement with California relating to state rights, Gov. B. B. Moeur today ordered a squad of Arizona National Guardsmen to the border area to "observe and protect this State's interest."

He said: "I am not going to have any encroachment upon our rights."

He added, however, he was not blaming California for "encroaching upon the rights of Arizona" because "the work is being done by the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California."

In Los Angeles, officials of the water district expressed surprise at the Governor's action and said the dam was being built by the Federal Government's Bureau of Reclamation and not by the district itself.

Gov. Moeur's contention has been that, since Arizona had not agreed to the construction of a dam at Parker, any construction work carried out on the Arizona side of the line would be an encroachment of this State's rights.

First Year of the Roosevelt Recovery Program

War Does Not Now Impend, Is View Of Lloyd George

Disarmament a Failure, He Writes, but Present Arming Is Only Precautionary; European Nations Have No Intention of Fighting.

By David Lloyd George.
War-Time Prime Minister of Great Britain.
(Copyright, 1934.)

LONDON, March 3.

FAILURE of efforts to disarm Europe—either militarily or economically—is becoming every week more apparent.

Economically, there is a real war of attrition going on without any indication of approaching peace. Tariffs, far from being reduced, are gradually being increased and restrictions are everywhere multiplying.

Probably Great Britain and France will come to some sort of temporary agreement, but it will leave matters slightly worse for international traders of both countries. That is why we cannot expect world trade to recover just yet.

An understanding on armaments is also remote and the present situation will inevitably lead to a competitive increase in arms. Agitation in Britain for a more powerful air fleet and a larger number of cruisers is growing in momentum and its influence will be felt in the coming budget.

Hitler Keeping His Head.

Chancellor Hitler of Germany seems to be the only one who is keeping his head in this excitement. He is busily engaged in removing causes of irritation with his neighbors.

His pact with Poland is a notable event. It is an act of courageous statesmanship. None of his predecessors would have dared to effect such an arrangement, and it is proof of the confidence he has inspired among all classes in Germany that they should have accepted this understanding with all its implications without a murmur.

At Hitler's bidding, Germany has ceased growling about the Polish corridor. The pact will make it more difficult for a Chauvinistic ministry in France, should the crisis in that country eventuate in formation of such an administration, to make trouble over the Brown Shirts or over rumors of German rearmament.

If Poland holds aloof in the neighborhood of the Vistula, France can hardly take strong action across the Rhine. The British public would certainly discourage aggressive action against Germany.

As to Sir Austen Chamberlain.

Chancellor Hitler's conciliatory utterances on foreign affairs had a distinctly soothing effect. When Sir Austen Chamberlain, who is a fanatical gallophile, some months ago denounced Hitlerism in the House of Commons, in terms of rather hysterical execration, he was cheered to the rafters by the sympathetic house.

A few weeks ago when he repeated his oratorical tirade in more moderate language, it fell flat and there was a general feeling the attack was injudicious.

The Leipzig Reichstag fire trials with their exhibition of dignified impartiality displayed by the judges of that famous court, made a considerable impression on Britain, all the more because we had all been led to expect proceedings which in their passion and fury would have reminded one of the revolutionary tribunal of Fouquiertinville.

This change in the public attitude of our country is reflected in all countries and is all to the good and makes for peace. France, even if it is fated to be ruled by Tardieu and Pertinax, cannot well march across the Rhine if both Britain and Poland ostentatiously refuse to join in and make it clear that they disapprove of violent actions.

Belgium an Important Factor.

Action by Belgium will also count. From a military point of view, her adhesion to aggressive action against Germany would not add anything to the strength of the invader, but morally its attitude would have great influence.

Refusal of Belgium to support extreme action would constitute such a reproof that France could not face it. In this conjunction, the tragic death of King Albert was a serious loss to the cause of European peace. Although a constitutional monarch, his personal prestige was so high that on great questions of

Unemployment Remains Country's Most Serious Problem Although Millions Have Been Put to Work

By CHARLES G. ROSS.
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1934, by the Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, March 3.

THE Roosevelt administration tomorrow rounds out its first year. By any test, the period has been one of the most remarkable in American history. New men have come to the front; new economic ideas are the commonplace of political discussion. We are on the way — somewhere. No man can tell the destination. It is not the purpose of this article to pass judgment on the Roosevelt policies; appraisal must await the further maturing of results. Perhaps in six months it will be possible, for example, to state with finality the effect of the new monetary policies on the national welfare; perhaps not for a year. It is not possible now.

The same is true, in greater or less degree, of the other experiments of the government—the regimentation of industry; the payment of bonuses for the curtailment of farm production; the employment of great public works funds in a "priming" operation to revive industry; the lavish use of government credit to aid mortgage debtors and shore up the business and financial structure; the effort, through security and stock market regulation to prevent the flow of capital into surplus-producing plants—and so on through a long series of plans and policies, some directed to immediate recovery, some to a permanently "planned" social organization.

These plans and policies did not spring full-grown into being on the fourth of March, 1933. They have developed gradually, under the compulsion of unfolding events. The program, in general, has been one of opportunism; as its champions would say, of enlightened opportunism.

A Presidential Simile.

THE best description of the way in which the administration has functioned is one given by the President himself at a conference with the reporters. He likened the country's progress to that of a football team driving toward a goal; he himself was like the quarterback, whose choice of a play at any given time must depend on the outcome of the preceding play.

One thing is abundantly clear: We are treading at the moment the path of economic nationalism. The National Recovery Administration, our monetary policies, and more especially the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, with its efforts to limit farm production, are all taking us along this road. How far we shall continue upon it remains to be seen.

Last summer's world economic conference at London, around which had centered high hopes of arrangements for the revival of international trade, was wrecked on the rock of President Roosevelt's refusal to agree to currency stabilization, because of its possible interference with his campaign to raise commodity prices at home.

Our progress toward nationalism has been accompanied with, and made easier by, a resurgence of Nationalist feeling in Congress. This has expressed itself in a hardened attitude against a reopening of the war-debt question and in a disposition to appropriate freely for the Navy. Disarmament as a policy, if not forgotten, has been pushed for the time being into the background.

WHAT may be called the grand strategy of the Roosevelt Administration has for its purpose the raising of commodity prices. In pursuit of this purpose the Administration took the country off the gold standard and devalued the dollar. The activities of the NRA; of the AAA, of the Public Works Administration through the disbursement of its huge fund, of the Federal Reserve Board in its open market operations, of the release of frozen bank deposits through government loans, have all been directed to this end. The object is to raise prices in the expectation that thereby business recovery and the re-employment of the jobless millions will be brought about.

The Problem of Jobs.

How to provide work for the unemployed is the outstanding problem before the administration. Figures given later in this article show that there is today an army of more than 10,000,000 without jobs in private industry.

Another of the many problems before the President is that of keeping the economies that he made last spring, under the emergency economy act, from being wiped out by a Congress, eager, as always, to show its solicitude for the war veterans. Of the estimated saving of $470,000,000 in veterans' benefits, amendments placed on the independent offices bill by the Senate this week would, if made effective, eliminate $354,000,000.

Index figures used by the Federal Reserve Board in its monthly bulletins form an authoritative guide to the extent of the business recovery since March 4 last. With the average for 1923-25 taken as 100, the index of industrial production, adjusted for seasonal variations, was 60 last March. By January of this year it had reached 78 and a further increase was predicted for February.

Looking at Statistics.

Statistics from other official sources show that freight traffic in net ton miles for 1933 increased 6.2 per cent over 1932, but declined 19.1 per cent under 1931. Retail food prices (based on 100 for 1913) are estimated to have increased from 94.8 in January, 1933, to 105.8 in January, 1934. The gross income of farmers in 1933 is estimated to have been 24 per cent greater than in 1932.

The President finishes his exacting year with his physical strength apparently unimpaired. His manner is as buoyant as ever, and his ability to keep going long hours under pressure remains a marvel to his associates. He gives the impression of being even surer of himself than he was a year ago.

In the following parts of this article is a factual summary of results, to date, on several important fronts of what has been called, by some of its chief protagonists, "the Roosevelt revolution."

FISCAL POLICIES AND COMMODITY PRICES.

IN his radio speech of Oct. 22, 1933, announcing his gold-purchase policy, the President said: "My aim in taking this step is to establish and maintain continuous control. This is a policy and not an expedient. It is not to be used merely to offset a temporary fall in prices. We are thus continuing to move toward a managed currency."

He said on the same occasion: "Ever since last March the definite policy of the Government has been to restore commodity price levels. The object has been the attainment of such a level as will enable agriculture and industry once more to give work to the unemployed. It has been to make possible the payment of public and private debts more nearly at the price level at which they were incurred."

Though the President has never definitely said so, it is generally assumed, from statements by Administration spokesmen, that the objective is the price level of 1926.

It was for the purpose of raising commodity prices that the administration took the United States off the gold standard in the spring of 1933, and the same purpose was behind the gold-purchase policy. The President's devaluation of the gold content of the dollar to 59.06 per cent of its old weight was a further step in commodity price control through currency management.

U. S. Action Unique.

In one significant respect, as shown in an article in these columns Feb. 11, the dollar-devaluation action of the United States was unique. The post-war devaluations of currencies in Europe were in recognition of existing facts; the devaluation of the dollar to a point lower than its value in foreign exchange and the creation of a $2,000,000,000 "stabilization fund" to keep the value down were for the purpose of creating a new price level.

The gold-purchase plan was based on Prof. George F. Warren's theory of a definite relationship between the price of gold and the general commodity price level. Whatever may be the merits of this theory, and whatever its application might have accomplished over a longer period of time, it is hardly disputable that the plan did not produce the desired results during the period of its independent operation, before it was absorbed into the larger gold-buying and dollar-devaluation policy announced by the President on Jan. 31.

In a speech at Philadelphia, after the gold-purchase plan had been effective for about two months, Prof. Warren sought to show that the rise in the price of gold had produced a corresponding rise in commodity prices. He cited increases in the prices of 15 selected commodities—some of them commodities entering largely into world trade and, therefore, peculiarly influenced by foreign-exchange fluctuations. But, unfortunately for his thesis, the Department of Labor's index number for the general commodity price-level—a number based on the prices of 784 commodities—was the same when Prof. Warren spoke as it had been just before the gold-purchase plan was announced, namely, 70.4 points, as compared with the base of 100 representing the 1926 level.

The 70.4-point level for the week ending Dec. 23 represented an increase of 10.8 points from the March 4 low—59.6.

The price index at the end of the year was 70.8 and by the middle of February it had risen to 73.3—that is, 13.7 points above the March 4, 1933, index.

Warren Theory Refuted.

Many economists, including those of the Brookings Institution, maintain that the figures as to commodity prices and the price of gold prove there is little or no correspondence between the two, or, in other words, that the commodity price level cannot be fixed or controlled by progressive changes in the price of gold. The Warren theory, in this view, is "without scientific validity."

The dollar was cast adrift on foreign exchanges by the executive order of the President on April 20, which made absolute the partial embargo on gold exports imposed on March 10. The April order was followed, as the Brookings Institution points out, by an immediate and substantial depreciation of the dollar exchange—that is, it took more dollars to buy a given amount of gold, or, conversely the price of gold rose.

Under the Warren theory there should have been a rise in the commodity price level commensurate with the rise in the price of gold. But the statistics show that against a maximum rise in the gold price amounting to 65 per cent during the seven months following April 20, there was a maximum rise in commodity prices of only about 20 per cent.

Speculation Soon Spent.

For three months of this period, or until the middle of July, speculative influences produced a rapid rise in the prices of many important commodities and in the general wholesale price index. The latter reached a point just under 70 in July and thereafter fluctuated in a narrow range to the end of the year. Clearly, speculation had spent its force. The failure of the price level to make any substantial upward advance after the first spurt induced by inflation was followed by the adoption of a policy of active depreciation of the dollar, first through the gold-buying plan and then, on Jan. 31, by reduction of the gold content of the dollar.

If it be contended that the "managed currency" experiments of the administration, while failing to produce a commodity price rise commensurate with the fall of the dollar, have nevertheless proved their usefulness, the answer is made by economists of the or-

British Industries Have No Faith in U. S. Experiment

Business in the United Kingdom Reported as Improving, but U. S. Recovery Plan Is Written Down as "Failure."

LONDON, March 3.

IN a penetrating analysis of world economic conditions, the Federation of British Industries regards the "Great Slump" as having ended in 1933 and finds the United Kingdom leading the way in recovery.

The organization's publication, the F. B. I. Business Barometer, for the first quarter of 1934, recently issued, reviews the business gains of last year, ventures a look into the future with some misgivings, and contrasts the sustained progress of recovery in the United Kingdom with the slowing up that occurred in the United States, France and Canada in the early winter months.

The situation in the United States is viewed with anxiety as the "principal prospective source of international disturbance;" and of the new Roosevelt policy of lavish Government spending, the review says, "a severe reaction is inevitable."

The function of the Federation of British Industries, which has a membership of more than 2500 industrial firms, is to collect, analyze and disseminate business information, and to promote British trade.

Domestic Trade Big Factor.

Domestic trade has been responsible for most of the recovery in leading nations, the review says, and it is not hopeful of early progress in international commerce now restricted by a wave of economic nationalism. British exports in 1933 were still 30 per cent below the level of 1928, but nevertheless the United Kingdom's production was 94 per cent of the 1928 volume, which leads the F. B. I. Business Barometer to remark that the "home trade in 1933 must, on an average, have approximated to the 1928 level—probably rising above it in the fourth quarter."

The principal measure of recovery recognized by the F. B. I. review is the index of production in the various countries, taking 1928 as the base, or 100. This shows the low point was reached in the United Kingdom, France and Germany in the third quarter of 1932; in the United States in the second quarter of the same year, and in Canada in the first quarter of 1933.

Beginning with the low point and ending with the fourth quarter of 1933 (November figures), the quarterly indices of production are given as follows:

United Kingdom, 82.8, 90, 89.9, 91.7, 91.7, 99.

France, 73.2, 76.1, 80.8, 85.8, 87.4, 84.3.

Germany, 59.6, 61.8, 64.1, 67.6, 70.6, 71.4.

United States, 54.7, 55.3, 59.5, 56.5, 70.9, 82.6, 65.8.

Canada, 52.5 61.6, 74.2, 71.4.

Improvement Not Even.

"As will be seen," the review states, "the improvement has been unevenly spread, and in certain cases it has been followed by a setback. The impression gained from a more detailed examination of conditions in the principal countries is that the recovery has been mainly confined to domestic trade, recovery in the international sphere having been largely a price movement. There are two principal reasons for the latter.

"First, the international remedies for depression have largely taken the form of schemes for restricting the production of standard primary commodities with the object of raising prices and reducing stocks. Since, however, ultimately sustained expansion in the sale of these commodities will, as it has always done, depend on the world's ability to produce them even more cheaply, the present price-raising must be regarded as a 'first aid' measure only. . . .

"In the second place, a large part of the pre-1929 international system of commercial interchange has broken down, and in the years that have elapsed relatively little has been done to restore it. In some respects, as a result of the imposition of exchange restrictions, quotas and protective tariffs, the field of international consumption has been definitely contracted. Such work as has been done on the reconstruction side has been, not in the direction of restoring the old world market to which all countries were admitted on more or less equal terms, but to the formation of inter-trading groups, whose internal market

An Argument for War Pensions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial of Feb. 28, "Resumption of the Pension Racket," and the cartoon by Fitzpatrick, would have been proper in the days when Americans fought for freedom and honor, as in the Revolutionary War, but now our wars are business propositions, either conquests for land or armed protection for our capitalists' foreign interests.

Just a handful of men start these wars and the soldiers are not asked if they want to go or not. They are forced to go—drafted. They fight the other fellow's battle for a few dollars a month, and the ones that come home wounded are well taken care of, but the able-bodied ones who come home are not supposed to ask for anything, no matter if they slaughtered a dozen of the enemy or captured a machine gun nest. They deserve nothing, not one red cent.

During the Spanish-American War, Dewey blew up the Spanish fleet at Manila and grabbed the Philippine Islands for the United States. After the war was over, we paid Spain $20,000,000 for the islands. Of course, that price was robbery or worse, but Spain was helpless, so it had to take it, or there would have been more fireworks. This being the case, why aren't the Spanish-American War veterans entitled to their share of the loot? They deserve a pension, wounded or not wounded.

We sent marines to Nicaragua a few years ago to protect some capitalistic interests down there. Those marines also should get their share of the gain.

Chicago gangsters had their private war, just like the big wars, only on a smaller scale. They paid their killers well and it wasn't stipulated that the killer had to come home wounded to get his pay—he got paid for killing.

This pension racket should be a lesson to the big fellows who always want to start wars. Let them get together with the soldiers and make it a stockholding proposition. If they decide to plunder some foreign country and grab the land, every soldier should get so many acres of land and so much of the gold. That way, the innocent taxpayer wouldn't have to pay the bill for the war dogs.

We came out of the World War with 11 billion dollars' worth of I O Us as our share. I doubt if the foreign countries will ever pay us. If they don't, the tax payer will make it up in some way. The soldier who helped win the war will have to help pay for it. What a war!

Whenever the time comes that our American shores are threatened with invasion by foreign countries, there will be millions and millions of men there to beat them off with guns and clubs. Men will not have to be drafted for a war like that. They will not ask for a bonus or pensions. But these other wars are business propositions, and must be treated accordingly.

MAY I take this opportunity to congratulate you upon the publication of Charles Dickens' "The Life of Our Lord"? It is the kind of thing I like to see newspapers doing.

Tory Opinion on Air Mail Action.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE air mail scandal offers a good example in distinguishing between Tories and liberals. I have in mind one particular newspaper that supports Lindbergh's statement about President Roosevelt's action in canceling air mail contracts having been a bit hasty. Certainly this step by the Government was timely, rather than premature. The President was entirely justified in taking the stand that he did and not waiting for the corruption to be exposed to the public, as another President did 12 years ago.

Perhaps the Tory press, that has opposed all of the administration's progressive actions, would have preferred to wait until the air mail graft had been turned into another oil scandal at the expense of another President.

Historical Note.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HATE to be an old meanie, and I know people won't like me if I insist on being pessimistic, but—I just can't help pointing out that F. W. L., who examined Caesar's NRA and Roosevelt's NRA and found them so strikingly similar, did not go on to a logical conclusion and say: "And look what happened to Rome!"

Dr. Sayman in His Well-Known Pistol Act

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NOTE Dr. T. M. Sayman is again in the limelight as a pistol toter, also that his pistol was returned to him by the police after it had been taken away from him by John Riley, Negro, who said Sayman flourished it at him. I always thought it was customary to confiscate weapons so taken. It would be interesting to know, if the case had been reversed, whether the Negro would have received his pistol back. Police justice seems to be administered in a strange way sometimes in St. Louis.

The First Year of the New Deal

March 4, 1933. Every bank in the country is closed. Some 13,000,000 workers are unemployed. Every fourth family in the country is dependent on charity. Industry is at a standstill. Business is flat on its back. Depression has endured for three and a half years. Business and political leadership is bankrupt. The people are bewildered. They despair of the future. Even Wall Street is talking revolution. From the welter of confusion, one clear voice speaks: "The people of the United States have not failed. This great nation will endure as it has endured; will revive and prosper. The only thing we have to fear is fear itself." With these words, Franklin D. Roosevelt assumes the responsibilities of the presidency. Behind him, an election which amounted to a political revolution; a mandate to do something, anything at all. Before him, chaos.

March 4, 1934. The banks are functioning. Three million men have gone back to work. Relief has been extended to the needy. Factory wheels are beginning to turn. Business is picking up. Depression is giving way to recovery. Inaction has yielded to action. The people face the future with renewed confidence. Courageous leadership has initiated a far-flung program of social and economic reconstruction. Again the nation marches. A transformation has been wrought, not by yielding in despair to dictatorship; not by resorting to violence and destruction; but through the employment of the orderly processes of democratic government.

The first year of the New Deal has been packed with action. For 12 long years, conservatism was in the saddle. It protected privilege. It prevented the progressive adaptation of political institutions to changing social needs. The new administration found much to do. It responded with a program of liberal legislation which surpasses even the record of the first congressional session under Woodrow Wilson. A mere catalog of the administration's measures would fill a volume. We can do no more than indicate their direction.

The financial crisis was met with decision and courage. Congress was assembled. The emergency Banking Act of 1933 was prepared, enacted and put into operation within the space of a few days. The sound banks were re-opened under conditions which assured the people of their strength. Desperate expedients were avoided. Hysteria was dispelled. Attention was then directed to other emergency needs.

Federal credit was re-established by reducing ordinary expenditures, reorganizing Government departments and preparing the way for the taxation of liquor. Measures were adopted to reduce the burden of farm and home debt. Further loans were extended by the RFC to avert the impending bankruptcy of railroads, banks and insurance companies. A Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation was appointed, to increase the efficiency and reduce the costs of the carriers, staving off threatened defaults. Before summer came, the financial emergency was definitely passed.

The problem of relief remained. There can be no question that this administration has done an incomparably better job of relief than its predecessor. It has abandoned the preposterous notion that private charity and local government alone must assume the responsibility of providing for the needy. It has made direct cash grants to the states. It has bought surplus crops for distribution among the destitute. It has put thousands of men to work through the CWA and the CCC. The President has fulfilled his promise that no one should go through another winter like the last. It is to this relief of distress that we may attribute the social stability which has been maintained in the face of dire need.

The past year has marked the resurgence of a social conscience in government. Social legislation, estopped for more than a decade by official taboo, has once more found friends in authority. The principle of nation-wide minimum wages and maximum hours has been recognized by the Federal Government. The right of collective bargaining has been explicity written into Federal law. The sweatshop has been outlawed; child labor abolished under the codes.

The Wagner bill, creating a national system of public employment exchanges, once killed by President Hoover's veto, has become law over his successor's signature. Senator Wagner and Representative Lewis have introduced a bill into Congress which would speed the enactment of unemployment insurance laws by the states. The President himself has appealed to the states to enact minimum wage legislation and has expressed his hope that the child labor amendment to the Constitution may be carried to ratification. This sympathetic support of social legislation is an attitude in which all liberals must rejoice.

The President, too, has proved that his denunciation of the money changers was not empty rhetoric. The Securities Act subjects the stock and bond merchants to public regulation. The Fletcher-Rayburn bill would extend this control to corporate financial practices and to trading on the exchanges. Other pending legislation would apply it to the commodity markets. The tax bill, now before Congress, plugs many of the gaps through which men of wealth have been able to escape the payment of income taxes.

The Banking Act divorced commercial banks from their investment affiliates and severed the business of deposit and investment banking. Public development of the power resources at Muscle Shoals and Federal assistance to municipal ownership of utilities have confronted the utility barons with the threat of effective regulatory competition. The Secretary of Agriculture has initiated action against the great packing houses. The Senate Committee on Banking and Currency has relentlessly pushed its investigation into corrupt corporate practice. The administration, with unexampled directness, has canceled mail contracts which were secretly granted to political favorites. It has broken all precedent in driving the purveyors of political influence from its doors. The present rulers of Washington are honest. There are even those who assert that they are too honest, charging that Secretary Ickes, by his meticulous scrutiny of applications for public works funds, has unduly delayed the initiation of public construction.

In addition to meeting the emergency, extending relief, enacting social legislation and subjecting business abuses to regulation, the New Deal has undertaken to promote industrial recovery. Three billion dollars have been allotted to public works projects. Prohibition has been repealed. Agricultural output has been reduced and subsidies have been extended to the farmer as a means of increasing agricultural purchasing power. Industry has been brought under codes of fair competition which check the further depression of labor standards and call for an increase in employment and payrolls. The dollar has been devalued to 59.06 cents in an effort to boost price levels and thus stimulate business activity.

Much of the New Deal presents possibilities of permanent economic reconstruction. The Tennessee Valley Authority is planning the economic development of a whole area. The Agricultural Adjustment Act is inducing farmers to co-operate for the solution of their problems. The codes of fair competition adopted under the NIRA may well evolve into permanent industrial constitutions. The Banking Act of 1933 has made a start toward the reorganization of our banking system.

The administration has placed its emphasis on domestic action. International relations have been subordinated, for the time being, to the requirements of the domestic situation. Not until two days ago did the President tackle the tariff problem, when he asked Congress for authority to make reciprocal trade agreements with other countries, to expand our foreign markets. Progress may be reported on other foreign fronts. Russia has been recognized. Pacification has been achieved in Cuba without formal intervention and the sugar agreement now promises to restore prosperity to that unhappy island. The world economic conference, it is true, ended in failure; but only because the time was not ripe for co-operative action. Our Latin American relations, thanks to the President's Wilson day address and to the diplomacy of Secretary Hull at Montevideo, are better than they have been for a generation. Only our overly ambitious program of naval construction beclouds the international horizon. And even here, one must recall the stirring appeal for disarmament which the President directed to the rulers of the nations last May 16.

Such is the record of the first year. And even this is incomplete. Much still remains to be done. The stock exchange bill, the tax bill, the Tugwell food and drug bill, the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill and many others are still before Congress. Construction of low-rental working class housing is still in the future. The war debt problem has been delayed; not settled. The railroad legislation of 1933 is admittedly temporary; definite action must eventually be taken. Compulsory unification of our banking system is still ahead of us. All these things will come in due time. Rome was not built in a day.

Many of the results of the New Deal can not yet be foreseen. Many of its problems still clamor for solution. Monopoly practices which have crept into the NRA codes must be removed by a major surgical operation. Defiance of the collective bargaining provision of Section 7A by industrial die-hards must be met with decisive action. A budget which is badly out of balance must again be brought into balance. A public debt which has grown by leaps and bounds must be gradually reduced. We must find a final solution to the riddle of monetary policy. Farm subsidies and crop curtailment must eventually give way to a trade policy which will enable the farmer to find a market for his produce. Measures contrived to meet an emergency situation must yield to planning for the longer future.

The New Deal must be taken for what it is. It is not laissez-faire. The present situation is obviously one which calls for social control. It is not Socialism. Individual initiative and freedom of enterprise are unimpaired. It is not a plot put over on an unsuspecting public by a group of college professors. The President's advisers have been as numerous and as diverse in their points of view as the various interests existing in the country at large. The New Deal is not all new. Much of it consists of measures which have been long in the making. It is not complete. The administration is necessarily feeling its way. Its parts are not all consistent one with another. Action has been dictated by the necessity of meeting specific situations, not by conformity to a logical pattern.

The New Deal is not perfect. It is not the ideal program of an academic theorist. Included in its scores of measures are some which experts may criticise. But government must inevitably compromise between the economically desirable and the politically feasible. It must satisfy itself, not with Utopia, but with the gains which can be realized here and now. It must often accept the lesser evil to serve the greater good.

The administration makes no pretension to infallibility. Its attitude is frankly experimental. Its program is flexible. It stands ready to discard the undesirable; to strengthen the weak elements in its policy. It is quickly responsive to public opinion. If the people want their government to do more or less than it is doing, they have only to make their wants known.

The common man will judge the New Deal by its purposes and its performance. He will look on it and he will call it good.

Want in the Midst of Plenty

A ragged old man, arrested while begging for nickels and dimes on the streets of Atlantic City recently, was found to have $5200 in cash and securities in his pockets. Magnified to national dimensions, this is almost what has happened to the United States. With tremendous financial, natural and industrial resources, 75 per cent of our people, even before the depression, were forced to live on incomes not sufficient, according to Bureau of Labor figures, to support minimum standards of decency and comfort. While warehouses are bursting with food supplies, we have our breadlines and relief budgets.

The paradox is perhaps more readily visible to a visitor from abroad than to our own accustomed senses. Stephen S. Dybetz, an official of the Soviet Automobile and Tractor Trust, had this to say about the anomaly a few days ago: "You are a very rich people. Either you don't know what to do with your great natural resources, or you don't know how to make them go around." It is a pertinent observation, justly condemning a system that results in hunger amidst plenty, want amidst riches.

Under the planned economy toward which we are striving, such a paradox could not exist. Mr. Roosevelt has said that our Government "owes to every man an avenue to possess himself of sufficient for his needs through his own work." We should know what to do with our great resources, and our country's security will not be insured until the rational remedy is applied. Capital as well as labor will gain from a more equitable distribution of income that will insure greater mass buying power.

The Ugly Duckling

THE BLACK EAGLE. By M. Coryn. (Funk & Wagnalls Co., New York City.)

HERE is the life story of Bertrand du Guesclin, the most celebrated French warrior of the fourteenth century. It may be recommended without hesitation as a great tale greatly told—that is to say, with a glowing sense of the enduring human values involved.

It has been said that all human stories may be classified as to plot under less than a score of heads; and perhaps the palm for universality of interest must go to the "ugly duckling" motif, for reasons not obscure. The common lot is one of frustrate yearning. To most men and women, life cannot but seem unjust in the distribution of rewards, for it is in the genius of the race to aspire, but, lacking gifts or opportunity or both, most cannot do the things they dream.

The "ugly duckling" story yields vicarious triumph to those who, through the vague indignity of fate, somehow never "get the breaks." The fable is profoundly democratic in the only sense that matters, and its truth is in the emphasis it lays upon potential greatness in the common. Crudely told, the tale is hokum; in its subtler versions, it achieves sublimity—as in the Lincoln legend, for example.

The immediacy of appeal in the present story is attributable to this motif. The ill-favored son of a provincial family of the lesser nobility, neither rich nor influential, scorned in boyhood by his brothers and even his mother, Bertrand, by virtue of a stout heart and a sympathetic love and understanding of common men—himself from the first to last "as common as an old shoe"—rises to greatness in all men's eyes, and dies beloved and honored even by his foes. The scorned boy becomes Constable of France; the ugly duckling becomes the eagle. Happily, the tale is true, unless all chronicles and legends err. And since greatness in the eyes of men is not enough to make the victory complete, Bertrand also knew the love of a wise, great-hearted woman—Tiphaine, his wife.

No doubt winnowing time and the mythopoeic faculty in men have greatly simplified the tale, omitting many shadows that the glory may seem greater; but if the legend be greater than the man was, who but men have shaped the legend from the stuff of their own potential greatness?

Those who may do themselves the favor of reading M. Coryn's "The Black Eagle" will find the significance of the story heightened if they bear in mind the fact that every social order in its turn, however evil in the end it may become, yields in the summer of its flourishing some fine flower of the human spirit. What flower the feudal system yielded at its best, the story shows; and, as always, the price men paid for it was great.

When chivalry was dying with the breakdown of the feudal system, backward-looking men mourned the passing of the lofty old ideal summed up in the expression, "noblesse oblige." We hear men mourning now the passing of the old ideal of "rugged individualism"—a fine flower, indeed, in its vanished summer, but costly now, beyond the ability of men to pay. A new ideal is growing, and no doubt shall have a summer for its flowering.

If chivalry has left with us some sense of the refinements of courtesy to equals; and if "rugged individualism" has taught us something in the nature of self-reliance and initiative, need we forget these lessons in learning the next and greatest lesson of them all thus far—the essential equality of all men in the right to live upon a planet that is theirs by birth?

For all the high-flown twaddle men have talked and many have believed, there never yet has been that flowering of the human spirit in this world.

GERMAN FAMILY. By L. C. N. Stone. (Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

THE purpose of the author (presumably Jewish), who writes under the pseudonym, L. C. N. Stone, is to reveal the tragic predicament of the German Jews under the Hitler regime. It might be supposed that the revelation has already been made in a manner sufficiently clear; but the most outrageous injustice, abstractly conceived and presented impersonally, lacks something of the emotional impact essential to realization by the average human being, who thinks and feels in terms of the personal and concrete.

In "German Family," the Nazi atrocities are personalized, the intimate human meaning thereof is "brought home" concretely to the reader.

The story is cleverly planned to serve its purpose, the transition from the Gentile to the Jewish point of view being accomplished through the marriage of a widowed English woman, with a daughter and a son, into a cultivated Jewish family of Cologne. The natural racial prejudices gradually lose their force as the reader proceeds with the developing love affairs between the young people of the two families; and the various characters, vividly realized, are like old friends and acquaintances, held in affection and respect, by the time Hitler comes to power and the Brown Shirts begin their persecutions.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN: A Dramatic Version. By A. E. Thomas. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York City.)

FIRST produced as a play in 1852, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" retained its popular appeal for nearly three-quarters of a century. There was a time, remembered by middle-aged people, when almost any village could count upon the annual appearance of a "Tom show," either "under canvas" or in the local "op'ry house," with the certainty that is commonly attributed only to death and taxes.

No doubt "Uncle Tom" is still playing here and there in rural communities, but with the advent of the movies, not to mention radio, the automobile and other agencies of popular sophistication, the Uncle Tom industry went into a slump. One might suppose that the old play is to be numbered definitely among the many casualties of "progress"; but when, in May of last year, the Players' Club of New York presented it at the Alvin Theater with Otis Skinner in the leading role and Fay Bainter as Topsy, it seemed to have lost nothing of its old vitality. At any rate, though announced for one week only, a run of three weeks was made necessary by public demand. Full houses, we are told, "wept and laughed, and always at the proper time."

In preparing this version used in the Players' Club production, A. E. Thomas, well-known American dramatist and novelist, was careful "to retain absolutely the spirit of the old play"; but, wishing "to give the ribald as little chance to scoff as possible," he was also careful to eliminate or tone down those old familiar high-flown phrases which might provoke laughter in the wrong places. He seems to have succeeded; and although it is conceivable that a reader may occasionally crack a smile where tears were originally expected, it is likely to be in no mood of ribaldry, but rather of amused affection. There is still plenty of hokum here; but what explains the appeal of hokum better than the fact that it is merely a more or less tasteless exaggeration of some homely and abiding human truth?

THE WORLD IS YOURS. By G. B. Lancaster. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York City.)

FOR her latest story here noted, G. B. Lancaster (Edith J. Lyttleton in private life) has sought her material about as far away as possible from Tasmania, the scene of her former best-selling novel, "Pageant."

"'The world is yours,' says God; 'but you must pay for what you buy'." With this questionable text as the expression of her theme, the author tells a romantic story of the Upper Yukon country and the dead or dwindling boom towns of the Klondike gold rush days.

The heroine is Tasmin McDonald, the hero Kirk Regard, who, having been children together in Dawson City when the gold madness was at its height, have lingered in the region with a few old-timers—"men old with that oldness which sees its youth god-high against the sun." Of course, it is the putative problem of the tale to get these two married somehow—a problem which they could have solved with the usual facility in real life, no doubt—but why bring that up? As it is, they are so greatly tried that their life-long yearning for each other is consummated only in the mystic union of accidental death by drowning. And so the customers get the maximum of passionate yearning for their money; which is fair enough.

Nevertheless, it is an excellent romance, beautifully written, even though, perhaps, a trifle overwritten in spots. Tasmin is such a girl as almost any feminine reader might wish to be; and no doubt Kirk is highly desirable—the more so for being a hard one to capture and domesticate.

The notable achievement of the author is the truly sublime mood that she creates out of her profound sense of man's relation to the titanic forces of nature. So powerful becomes this mood by the slow effect of cumulative detail that, when the book is closed, Tasmin and Kirk and all the others appear as minor characters in comparison with the enduring hills and winds and rivers that somehow seem divinely wise with a patient secret older than the questioning of men. It is for this that the book may, perhaps, be read with greatest profit.

thodox school that concurrently with these experiments the administration applied various other price-raising devices, such as the curtailment of crops, the raising of manufacturing costs through NRA codes, the expansion of purchasing power through public works and relief expenditures, the cheapening of credit through open market operations, and so on.

The Brookings Institution says: "No definite, predictable rise in the commodity price level can be assumed to follow a given depreciation of the currency. Such rise as occurs is not general or horizontal in character, representing an automatic adjustment of all commodity prices to alterations in the price of gold. The price changes that take place begin with commodities passing into international commerce, and even these changes do not necessarily correspond closely with the depreciation of the currency. Their effect upon the general level of costs and prices within the country is indirect and, at best, slow.

"The extent to which the general domestic price level will rise is affected by a large variety of factors in the general business and fiscal situation, and the specific influence of currency depreciation cannot be dissociated from the operation of these other factors."

MAKING OF CODES, ABOUT 300 SIGNED

DURING the eight months of the National Recovery Administration about 300 codes of fair competition, affecting all the great basic industries, as well as many others, have been signed by the President and become the law of the land. The NRA estimates that from 90 to 95 per cent of all industrial workers are now under codes. An outstanding achievement of the NRA has been the practical abolition of child labor. Minimum wages have been fixed under the codes, and basic hours of labor laid down. The right of employes to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, without interference by employers, is specifically set out in the codes, in the language of the famous Section 7A of the act creating the Recovery Administration.

A "clarification" of this much controvertible section was written into the automobile code, in the form of a clause granting employers the right to deal with employes on the basis of "individual merit," but Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, the National Recovery Administrator, later said he had sanctioned this clause in an unguarded moment and it was allowed in no further agreements. The "merit clause" of the automobile code was officially held to constitute no weakening of Section 7A.

Widely conflicting views as to the social value of the NRA have arisen. Senators Borah, Capper, Nye and others maintain that in its present form it tends to promote monopolistic practices and crush small business. Gen. Johnson warmly denies this charge.

Boasts of the NRA.

In a formal statement on Jan. 2, the NRA said that the "plan for national industrial self-government" had been practically achieved six months after the signing of the Recovery Act by President Roosevelt; that the increased pay and the reduction of working hours provided by the codes had brought about "great improvement in working and living conditions throughout the country"; that the NRA had provided "the means and the method not only of pulling out of the depression but of hastening a state of permanent economic security." The NRA was credited with having given American business its long-sought opportunity "to co-operate for the elimination of practices which were beyond control from within and which were destroying business itself." The Recovery Act sets aside the Federal anti-trust laws to permit this co-operation.

The same statement asserted that "some 4,000,000 workers" had been restored to gainful employment as a result of the vast administrative processes of the NRA. Figures given elsewhere in this article do not bear out this estimate.

According to the American Federation of Labor, we are now entering a "test period" under code control. The federation puts the issue as follows:

"Shall we operate code controls so as to raise living standards, distribute wealth, balance production with consumption and level out the ups and downs of business cycles? Or shall we let the codes become an instrument for domination by powerful groups, to concentrate wealth, increase poverty and continue the unbalance which leads to business booms and depressions? Codes can be operated either way."

The Federation sets out a complaint against NRA that is frequently heard, namely, that in the vast majority of cases there is no labor representation on the code authority. This condition, says the Federation, should be quickly remedied. Also, it calls for a reopening of codes to revise minimum wages and other provisions, for if wages are not increased "the rise in living costs will soon put wages far below even a bare subsistence living standard."

What direction the NRA will take in the future has not become clear. There are those who believe that the regimentation of industry which it has brought about should be abandoned as quickly as practicable; there are others who believe that this regimentation is essential to the recovery and maintenance of national economic well-being. There is here a clash of fundamental social philosophies.

In preparing this version used in the ayers' Club production, A. E. He seems to have suc- eeded; and although it is conceivable that reader may occasionally crack a smile here tears were originally expected, it is kely to be in no mood of ribaldry, but rath of amused affection. There is still plent hokum here; but what explains the ap- eal of hokum better than the fact that it merely a more or less tasteless exaggera- ion of some homely and abiding human uth?

HE WORLD IS YOURS. By G. B. Lancaster. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York City.)

OR her latest story here noted, G. B. Lancaster (Edith J. Lyttleton in private ife) has sought her material about as far way as possible from Tasmania, the scene f her former best-selling novel, "Pageant." "'The world is yours,' says God; 'but you ust pay for what you buy'." With this uestionable text as the expression of her heme, the author tells a romantic story of he Upper Yukon country and the dead or windling boom towns of the Klondike gold ush days.

The heroine is Tasmin McDonald, the hero Kirk Regard, who, having been children together in Dawson City when the gold mad- ess was at its height, have lingered in the egion with a few old-timers—"men old with hat oldness which sees its youth god-high gainst the sun." Of course, it is the putative roblem of the tale to get these two married omehow—a problem which they could have olved with the usual facility in real life, no oubt—but why bring that up? As it is, they re so greatly tried that their life-long earning for each other is consummated only n the mystic union of accidental death rowning. And so the customers get the maximum of passionate yearning for their money; which is fair enough.

Nevertheless, it is an excellent romance, eautifully written, even though, perhaps, a rifle overwritten in spots. Tasmin is such girl as almost any feminine reader might wish to be; and no doubt Kirk is highly desirable—the more so for being a hard one o capture and domesticate.

The notable achievement of the author is he truly sublime mood that she creates out f her profound sense of man's relation to he titanic forces of nature. So powerful ecomes this mood by the slow effect of umulative detail that, when the book is closed, Tasmin and Kirk and all the others appear as minor characters in comparison with the enduring hills and winds and rivers that somehow seem divinely wise with patient secret older than the questioning of men. It is for this that the book may perhaps, be read with greatest profit.

There are those who believe that the regimentation of industry which it has brought about should be abandoned as quickly as practicable; there are others who believe that this regimentation is essential to the recovery and maintenance of national economic well-being. There is here a clash of fundamental social philosophies.

President Roosevelt in his speech at the opening of the present session of Congress, Jan. 3, declared continuance, in some form, of the industrial controls set up by the NRA. "Though the machinery, hurriedly deviseed, may need readjustment from time to time," he said, "nevertheless I think you will agree with me that we have created a permanent feature of our modernized industrial structure and that it will continue under the supervision but not the arbitrary dictation of government itself."

THE PROBLEM OF UNEMPLOYMENT

THE Department of Labor estimated in February that about 6,550,000 persons had been given jobs since last March. Of these, private industry had absorbed some 2,000,000; the rest were on Government payrolls. The 4,555,000 in the latter class were divided as follows:

Public Works constructions	265,000
Civil Works (CWA)	3,800,000
Civilian Conservation Corps	330,000
State road work	160,000

In factory employment alone, the department estimated an increase of 1,129,000 workers and an advance of $30,000,000 in weekly payrolls for the period from January, 1933, to January, 1934. As a result of the total increase of 2,000,000 (factory workers and others) from the low levels of March, 1933, it was estimated that weekly disbursements to employes in private industry had risen nearly $55,000,000 since that month.

The effect of the depression on employment in manufacturing industries, and the degree of recovery that has taken place, are shown in the indexes of the Department of Labor covering employment and payroll totals month by month. The 12-month average for 1926 equals 100. In March, 1933, employment was 55.1 per cent of the 1926 average, while payroll totals were down to 33.4 per cent. The subsequent improvement is indicated by the following table of indexes (all confined to the manufacturing industries):

1933.	Employment	Payroll Totals
April	56.6	34.9
May	58.7	38.9
June	62.8	43.1
July	67.3	46.5
August	71.5	51.9
September	73.9	53.3
October	74.0	53.6
November	71.4	50.3
December	70.1	49.8
1934.
January	69.3	49.4

500,000 Let Out.

Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, noted in a recent statement that the decline in the indexes from December to January represented the release of 70,000 employes from gainful employment in manufacturing. She estimated that the combined decline in employment in manufacturing and non-manufacturing industries was 500,000 workers. Miss Perkins observed, however, that the slump indicated by these figures was seasonal, being, in fact, smaller than usual for this time of year, when shut-downs for inventories and repairs are customary. The drop in the non-manufacturing field was due in considerable degree to the release of retail store employes engaged for the Christmas trade.

The statistics of the Department of Labor deal only with employment. As to unemployment, those of the American Federation of Labor are generally accepted as the most accurate that can be obtained. Agreeing that approximately 2,000,000 workers had been added by private industry since last March, the A. F. of L. reported that at the first of this year there were still 10,769,000 to be absorbed. Of these, as we have seen, Government emergency projects were giving jobs to 4,555,000, leaving more than 6,000,000 without any kind of remunerative work.

In a subsequent report, last Monday, the American Federation of Labor said that industrial unemployment increased in January by 921,000, or to a total of 11,690,000. Estimating that emergency jobs had been given to 4,600,000, the federation calculated that nearly 7,100,000 were "without the means to earn bread."

CWA "Standing Army."

If these figures are accurate, the reabsorption of workers in normal industrial employment since last March stands now not at 2,000,000, as it did the first of the year, but at something over 1,000,000.

"For two years now," the federation said, "we have maintained a standing army of 10,000,000 unemployed. Shall we continue this policy, or give them normal jobs?"

The report added that workers' incomes were still falling short of the increase in living costs. In January, it was estimated, workers' average weekly income was $20.83 in 16 industries employing nearly two-thirds of all non-farm workers. This represented an increase of only 7.5 per cent over last April, as against an estimated increase of 16.7 per cent in food prices and 27.5 per cent in the prices of clothing and furnishings in department stores.

"Thus workers," the report stated, "are steadily losing by price increases, and we must expect their living standards to be further reduced as prices go on upward, unless the NRA program provides for wage increases."

The Hunt For Jobs.

Of all the problems pressing for solution as the first year of the Roosevelt administration comes to an end, none is more exigent than that of providing jobs for the unemployed—jobs not only for those now out of work but also for those who will be separated from the government payroll if the Administration carries out its present plan of ending the CWA by May 1. Some workers will be absorbed by Public Works projects; an increasingly large number, it is hoped, will find jobs in private industry; but even a tremendous business upswing would not, of itself, be sufficient to solve the problem. In good times and bad, it is being made more difficult by the continued displacement of men by machinery: the National Bureau of Economic Research has found that from 1929 to 1932, the average production per worker in factories increased 12 per cent.

Feb. 15—President signs bill for $950,000,000 additional relief and CWA funds.

There is widespread agreement that the problem can be successfully attacked only by a further shortening of the work week without reduction of the weekly wage.

No less an authority than Gen. Johnson holds this view. He expressed it forcibly in an interview published in the Post-Dispatch on Jan. 13. He did not believe that industry in general could now support a flat 30-hour week, but he said that a substantial shortening of hours was imperative.

The average work week under the present NRA codes is 38 hours. The pre-NRA average was 41. The American Federation of Labor, which is campaigning for a 30-hour week, as provided for in the Black bill passed by the Senate before the creation of the NRA, estimates that it would take a 26-hour week at the present industrial levels to put all the unemployed to work. With the present hours, the federation says, there would be 4,000,000 unemployed even if industry should get back to its 1929 level.

The conclusion cannot be escaped: Permanent jobs must be provided, or some permanent form of dole.

THE GOVERNMENT AND THE FARMER

THE agricultural adjustment administration is conducting what Secretary Wallace calls an "orderly retreat from surplus acreage." In the effort to balance production with consumption—a consumption greatly reduced by the shrinkage in export trade—farmers are being paid to take land out of cultivation. The cost of this ambitious experiment in social control is paid in part from direct appropriations to the AAA and in larger part from the new processing taxes, which fall ultimately upon the consumer. In the last analysis, of course, the operations of the AAA represent a shifting of burdens from one class of the population to another, but this is held to be justified on the ground that a prosperous agriculture is essential to the general welfare.

"As things are now," says Secretary Wallace, "our millions of surplus acres breed nothing but confusion, poverty and waste. As long as we remain a creditor nation with high tariff policies, refusing to accept foregn goods in payment, those acres should not be tilled." At present, says Wallace, we are merely "sparring with the situation until the American people are ready to face facts."

Wallace himself would like to see revival of foreign trade, through a general lowering of tariff barriers. Meantime, he accepts the highly nationalistic program of the AAA as a necessary expedient. But he warns that if we finally go all the way toward nationalism, we must be prepared for even stricter governmental control than we have at present. We might come to the point where "every plowed field would have its permit sticking up on its post."

Results of AAA.

What have been the chief activities of the AAA and their result?

First as to cotton. In return for plowing under 10,000,000 acres of the 1933 crop, the cotton farmers of the South have received $112,000,000 in cash benefits and an additional $48,000,000 in options on cotton inherited from the stabilization operations of the old Federal Farm Board.

The crop was held down to 13,177,000 bales; had it not been for the reduction in acreage, the AAA estimates that the yield would have gone to 17,500,000 bales, with a disastrous effect on prices. The high yield per acre—the highest since 1895—was not due, the AAA says, to intensified cultivation of the reduced acreage, but to an unusually favorable growing season.

The total 1933 income of the South from cotton is estimated by Secretary Wallace at $860,000,000, or double the income from the 1932 crop. The spot price of cotton on March 3, 1933, was a little over 6 cents a pound. It is about twice that today. Secretary Wallace holds that the results amply prove the effectiveness of the program.

The goal for this year is the withdrawal of 15,000,000 acres, to reduce the planted acreage to 25,000,000. It is estimated that the co-operating farmers will receive $130,000,000 in cash benefits.

The Bankhead Bill.

The Bankhead bill pending in Congress would substitute compulsion for the present voluntary system by limiting this year's crop to 9,500,000 bales and placing a heavy tax on cotton sold in excess of that limit. President Roosevelt has indorsed the principle of this bill.

The AAA's wheat plan, applicable to the crop coming in this year, called for a reduction of 15 per cent from the average seedings for the period 1930 to 1932. Contracts were signed by about one-half of the 1,200,000 wheat growers, controlling 80 per cent of the acreage. In a total wheat acreage of about 66,000,000 for 1930-1932, the reduction contracted for was about 7,500,000 acres, but in practice this was cut to 4,000,000, partly by increased planting by non-cooperators. The AAA has just started a campaign to procure additional signers of reduction contracts.

To compensate those who have signed, the AAA has agreed to pay cash benefits of $102,000,000, of which about $58,000,000 has been disbursed.

Wheat Income Rises.

The income of the wheat farmers for the crop year 1933-1934 is estimated at $250,000,000 more than for the previous year, due partly to the cash benefits and partly to higher prices resulting from a short crop and the anticipation of further reductions in yield.

As for tobacco, the AAA cites these figures: Manufacturers' profits on the tobacco consumed in the United States were $145,000,000 in 1932, as compared with a return to the farmers of $70,000,000. In 1933, manufacturers' profits were $70,000,000 and the farmers got $136,000,000. Acreage reduction and marketing agreements were used. Benefits of $1,546,175 have been paid to tobacco growers.

In the corn-hog program, the Government last summer bought and slaughtered over 6,000,000 pigs and 240,000 sows. The cost was $33,000,000. Edible parts were distributed for relief. The pig crop was the largest in years, and except for this drastic reduction, the AAA says, would have sent the price of hogs down to ruinous levels this spring. Early this year the AAA launched its permanent hog-corn plan with an invitation to farmers to sign reduction contracts. To date about 140,000 have signed. If all the eligibles come in, it is estimated that $300,000,000 will be distributed in benefit payments through 1935. The money for these payments will come from processing taxes.

Milk Policy Altered.

In the case of milk, the AAA has abandoned its earlier effort to fix consumers prices and is now drawing up codes governing farm prices only. The retail price fixing codes failed to work, as officials of the AAA have explained, because of the enormous supply of milk and the willingness of many dealers to sell to consumers at less than the fixed price. Faced with evils like those caused by the dry laws, the AAA confessed error and beat a retreat. It is now engaged in working out a program for the whole dairy industry.

Benefit payments to cotton, wheat and tobacco farmers, including $48,000,000 cotton options, now total about $220,000,000. Processing taxes on farm products have yielded approximately $200,000,000.

The AAA is not dependent wholly upon these taxes. It was given a flat $100,000,000 for central administrative expenses and another $100,000,000 in the so-called Bankhead amendment to the National Industrial Recovery Act.

The department of Agriculture estimates the gross farm income for 1933 at $6,383,000,000, or 24 per cent more than the $5,143,000,000 income for 1932. Included in the 1933 total is $289,000,000 of benefit payments made or to be made. The totals compare with $11,918,000,000 for 1929, $9,414,000,000 for 1930, and $6,911,000,000 for 1931.

OUR IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

IN TERMS of dollars, the export trade of the United States increased from $1,611,000,000 in 1932 to $1,675,000,000 in 1933, or about 4 per cent. The volume of exports remained practically the same, the dollar increase being due to the decline in the gold value of the dollar. The figures for 1933 and 1932 compare with an average of $4,777,000,000 for 1926 to 1930. Since that period there has been a decrease of 65 per cent.

From 1932 to 1933 there was a reduction of 21 per cent in the gold value of United States exports, as compared with an average of 10 per cent for 46 countries.

Both in quantity and dollar value, United States exports rose substantially in the second half of 1933 as compared with the first half. In this increase, the "paramount" factor, as pointed out in the Commerce Reports of the United States Department of Commerce, was the lower exchange value of the dollar. Domestic wholesale prices were about 18 per cent higher in December than in March, while the exchange value of the dollar was about 36 per cent lower. Thus a given quantity of gold currency purchased roughly 56 per cent more United States goods in December than in March.

The Dollar Abroad.

The increase in United States imports was from $1,323,000,000 in 1932 to $1,449,000,000 in 1933, or 10 per cent. The 1933 total represents a decrease of 64 per cent from the average of $4,033,000,000 for the period of 1926-30. Toward the end of 1933, the seasonally adjusted value of imports, exclusive of spirits and wines, showed a decline reflecting the reduced gold value of the dollar. A given quantity of United States dollars bought 36 per cent less foreign goods in December than in March.

During 1933, the Department of Commerce reports, tariffs, exchange controls and import quotas throughout the world tended to become more restrictive than otherwise. Moreover, an added element of uncertainty was introduced by the rapid and wide fluctuations in the exchange value of currencies. Hopes that the London Conference would break down some of the obstacles to trade among nations were dissipated by the unwillingness of "too many nations to relinquish in the slightest degree their existing controls."

"It seems now," the survey adds, "that any promise of concerted action on tariffs and the restrictions must rest with smaller groups or individual pairs of countries. This movement is likely to be the most important factor in the tariff picture in the months to come."

THE RECOVERY PROGRAM'S COST

EMERGENCY spending under the New Deal program has sent the public debt to a total of more than $26,000,000,000, or about $5,000,000,000 more than it was in March, 1933. The present total is only about half a billion short of the high level established just after the World War, and that level will soon be passed.

In his budget message of Jan. 4, described by him as "brutally frank," President Roosevelt estimated that further borrowings required by the recovery measures would bring the debt at the end of the current fiscal year, June 30 next, to $29,847,000,000 and at the end of the following fiscal year, June 30, 1935, to $31,834,000,000. He held out the prospect that the budget would then be balanced and no further borrowing would be necessary.

The President estimated that the Government would spend $10,569,000,000 this fiscal year and would close the year with a deficit of about $7,300,000,000. Expenditures to date (end of February) have been about $4,250,000,000, so that if the President's forecast is to be realized, about $6,250,000,000, will have to be disbursed in the next four months, or an average of more than $1,500,000,000 a month. This is greatly in excess of the average for the first eight months of the fiscal year—about $530,000,000. The figures strengthen the belief already expressed in these columns that the President, for strategical purposes, overestimated the Government's spending for the fiscal year 1934. Huge though the deficit will be, it seems likely that it will fall substantially short of the estimated $7,300,000,000. To the extent that it does fall short, the Administration can claim a better financial showing than had been anticipated. It can spend a billion a month from now to the end of June and finish the year with a deficit of $5,000,000,000.

The President's $10,569,006,967 estimate for the current fiscal year is nearly $7,000,000,000 more than the average for the predepression years 1922 to 1929. The total for 1922, for example, was $3,795,302,500, and for 1927 it was $3,493,584,519. These figures do not include public debt retirements from surplus.

Greatest Spending Agency.

The greatest spending agency of the Government—of any Government—is the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, organized in the Hoover administration to lend money to distressed banks, railroads and insurance companies, and now operating in a vastly enlarged field. The President estimated in his budget message that the R. F. C. would need close to $4,000,000,000, or about 40 per cent of the total estimated requirements of all the departments of the Government for the fiscal year 1934.

At the end of this fiscal year, the RFC will have been in existence 29 months—13 under Hoover and 16 under Roosevelt—and if the President's estimate for the year is realized, it will have rolled up for the whole period a net cash outlay—expenditures less repayments—of over $6,000,000,000. A large percentage of the RFC disbursements, if things go well, will ultimately be paid back into the Treasury and become available for reduction of the national debt. Meantime, the use of Government credit in the effort to "prime the pump" of industrial recovery represents an increasing charge against the Treasury that can only be met by additional borrowing.

To strengthen the banking structure of the United States and encourage the making of private loans, the RFC has agreed to purchase preferred stock and capital notes of about 6500 banks and trust companies, strong as well as weak, at a cost of about a billion dollars. In addition, it has authorized loans to over 6600 banks and trust companies aggregating about $1,857,000,000. Of this amount there has been disbursed in cash $1,482,000,000, of which 52 per cent has been repaid. Included in the loans to banks has been about $650,000,000 to closed institutions for the freeing of deposits. In this connection the RFC estimates that deposits frozen in banks which failed to open after the bank holiday aggregated $2,400,000,000, and that of this amount about $1,000,000,000 will eventually be paid to depositors from the proceeds of RFC loans.

Share of Others in RFC.

Cash disbursements to railroads by the RFC aggregate $398,000,000, of which $57,000,000 has been repaid. Mortgage loan companies have borrowed $220,000,000 and repaid $40,000,000; Federal Land Banks have borrowed $194,000,000; regional agricultural credit corporations, $160,000,000, of which $129,000,000 has been repaid; building and loan associations, $114,000,000, repaid $50,000,000; insurance companies, $88,000,000, repaid $31,000,000. Some of the other large items in a long list of cash advances for various purposes are as follows: To the Farm Loan Commissioner for loans to farmers, $145,000,000; to the Secretary of Agriculture for crop loans to farmers, $115,000,000; to the Federal Relief Administration, $436,000,000; to the states for relief purposes, $300,000,000; to aid in financing self-liquidating construction projects, $72,000,000; to aid in financing the sale of farm surpluses in foreign markets, $10,000,000; to the Commodity Credit Corporation for loans on cotton and corn, $132,000,000.

An official summary of the advances of Government money by the RFC from Feb. 2, 1932, when it began operations, to the close of business Jan. 31, 1934, places the total at $4,539,301,780 and the amount of repayments at $1,111,370,311.

Disbursements of the RFC for the period from March 5, 1933, to Jan. 31, 1934—the first 11 months of the Roosevelt administration—were about $1,750,000,000.

To return to the condition of the Treasury as shown by the detailed statement of receipts and expenditures for the current fiscal year. The last daily Treasury statement available as this is written is that for Feb. 23. To that date from July 1, 1933—about eight months of the fiscal year—the "general" expenses of the Government were $1,801,993,160 and the "emergency" expenses were $2,346,427,953, a total of $4,148,421,114. The largest single item of expenditure, apart from the RFC item was $718,000,000 disbursed by the Public Works Administration out of the $3,330,000,000 made available to it last spring. Of the $718,000,000, about $396,000,000 went to the CWA.

The credit side of the ledger for the fiscal year showed $4,665,026,910, which was $516,605,796 more than expenditures. But the receipts included $2,807,868,423 carried on the books are "increment resulting from reduction in the weight of the gold dollar." If this is deducted, the receipts for the period were $1,857,158,487, or $2,291,262,627 less than expenditures. This deficit for the period compared with a deficit of $2,039,051,481 for the same period of the preceding fiscal year.

As a result of recent borrowings and of its "profit" from dollar devaluation, the Government had in its general fund the unprecedented balance of over $5,000,000,000.

JOHN T. FITZSIMMONS TO RUN FOR JUDGE OF SUPREME COURT

Commissioner Seeks Democratic Nomination for Division No. 1; F. E. Atwood Incumbent.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 3.—Supreme Court Commissioner John T. Fitzsimmons of St. Louis today filed his declaration of candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Judge of the Missouri Supreme Court, Division No. 1.

Fitzsimmons has been a member of the Supreme Court Commission, assigned to Division No. 2, since April, 1931. Prior to that he served a short term as Circuit Judge in St. Louis, under an appointment by former Governor Caulfield. Before his admission to the bar in 1899 he was a newspaper reporter in St. Louis.

The place on the bench sought by Fitzsimmons now is held by Judge F. E. Atwood, Republican, whose 10-year term expires Dec. 31 of this year.

Judge C. A. Leedy will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination to retain his position in Division No. 2. He was appointed by Governor Park early in 1933 to succeed the late Judge Clarence Burney, who died a few weeks after he went on the Supreme Court bench. Leedy's appointment could hold only until the next general election. He will be a candidate for election for the remaining eight years of the term.

BRENTWOOD TO VOTE TUESDAY ON BONDS AND FRANCHISE

Proposals Are for $106,000 Issue for Improvements, and 20-Year Grant to Water Company.

Residents of Brentwood will vote Tuesday on a proposed bond issue of $106,000, and a proposed 20-year franchise with St. Louis County Water Co.

The bond issue would provide $30,500 for a new City Hall; $12,500 for fire department equipment, and $63,000 for sanitary sewers. PWA grants equal to 30 per cent of the cost of labor and material are anticipated.

Polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m., with a favorable majority of two-thirds of those voting required to pass each proposition. The water company franchise provides for rates lower than those now prevailing; the reductions would average about 35 per cent, according to those advocating the franchise.

C. of C. Tax Committee Head.

George C. Willson Jr., attorney, has been named chairman of the Legislation and Tax Committee of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, according to William T. Nardin, Chairman of the Board. H. I. Finch, president of the Emerson Electric Mfg. Co., was named vice-chairman.

GEN. TAYLOR'S ADVICE TO BOY VOLUNTEER

Letter From Mexican War Hero to Late Maj. Coghlan of St. Louis.

In the Mexican War year of 1847, when Major-General (later President) Zachary Taylor, "Old Rough and Ready," was a national hero, a 14-year-old boy in Belleville wrote to the General, then at the front, offering his services as a soldier.

Gen. Taylor replied to the boy's letter, telling him he was too young for the hardships of military life, and advising him to wait a few years, that an opportunity for service to his country might come later.

The opportunity did come, and the writer of the letter, Philip F. Coghlan, served four years in the Union army, through the Civil War. He treasured his letter from Gen. Taylor. Maj. Coghlan lived to be the oldest printer in the United States, and worked daily in the Post-Dispatch composing room up to his death, in 1927, at the age of 94.

Gen. Taylor's Letter.

Gen. Taylor's letter was found recently by Philip C. Coghlan, a Post-Dispatch proofreader, among his father's effects. It is written in short, broad characters, almost as inky as if done with a brush, and is dated "Camp near Monterey, Mexico, July 7, 1847."

"My brave young countryman," the General wrote, "I have read your letter with feelings of pride, interest and pleasure. While I greatly admire and appreciate your patriotic feelings, which induced you to offer your services to aid in carrying on this war, yet from long experience in military matters, I must say you are of too tender an age to endure the hardships common to a camp life; the long marches the troops have to make under an almost tropical sun require men of mature age, physical ability and great endurance; even many such have sunk under the fatigues and privations—many more than have fallen by the bullets of the Mexicans.

Advises Boy to Wait.

"I must therefore recommend to you not to think of taking the field as a soldier in any capacity for some years to come, but continue to cherish the patriotic sentiments you have expressed, as well as love of country, so as to be ready to fly to her standard when your services are required, and even to lay down your life for her should the sacrifice be necessary.

"Wishing you prosperity and marked distinction among your fellow-citizens, which you cannot fail to reach by industry and perseverance combined with correct principles. I remain with considerations of high regards, Your Ob't S't,

"Z. TAYLOR,
"Maj.-Gen. U. S. Army."

Gen. Taylor, renowned as the hero of Buena Vista, was elected twelfth President of the United States on the Whig ticket in 1848, and occupied the White House 16 months before his death in July, 1850. Jefferson Davis, later president of the Confederate States, was his son-in-law by Davis' first marriage. Maj. Coghlan, who gained his military title by his Civil War service, had three brothers, one of whom became Rear Admiral Joseph Coghlan, U. S. N., while another was a Congressman and a third a judge.

$78,000 TO BE RELEASED FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

Court Authorizes Use of Securities Provided in Will of Late George M. Burns.

Circuit Judge Ryan yesterday authorized attorneys for the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, 700 South Kingshighway, and the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co. to draft a decree under which about $78,000 in securities in the estate of George M. Burns will be released from a trust estate. The securities will be turned over to the Imperial Council of Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine for the benefit of the St. Louis unit of its hospitals.

Mr. Burns, who was sales agent of the Railway Steel Springs Co., died Aug. 16, 1926, at his home, 5385 Pershing avenue. He provided in his will that the residue of his estate, consisting of the securities involved in the decree, was to be held in trust for 10 years after his death, unless in the meantime the Shriners established an annex for convalescent patients. If such condition was not carried out within the specified time, the fund was to be applied for the general use of the hospital.

Testimony before Judge Ryan was to the effect that the terms of the will have been complied with, since various recreational equipment and other facilities for the use of convalescents have been installed. James T. Nolan appeared as attorney for the trustee, while the law firm of Bishop & Claiborne represented the Shriners.

Queens Ditches Tammany.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Queens County Democrats named James G. Sheridan, Astoria, today as their leader and spokesman. At the same time, John Theofel, county chairman, was stripped of all powers but allowed to retain his office. Sheridan previously had been recognized as distributer of Federal patronage in Queens by Postmaster-General Farley. Today's action virtually isolates Tammany Hall and ends leader John F. Curry's power in Democratic units of New York City boroughs other than Manhattan.

Shaw's Garden Produces Six New Lily Hybrids

Superintendent Pring Lists Them Among 17 Varieties He Has Originated in 20 Years.

Six new tropical lily hybrids, originated at Shaw's Garden, are announced in its current bulletin, describing and picturing in colors the world's finest group of these summer flowers.

No less than 18 water-lilies are listed in this record of 20 years' achievement. All but one are hybrids originated here, and that one is the Nymphaea Burttii, discovered in Africa after a 12-year search for the "lost yellow lily," and flowered here for the first time in the civilized world. Believed at first to be the "lost lily," Nymphaea Stuhlmannii, never rediscovered after a German botanist sent a section of a dried flower to the Berlin herbarium in 1890, it was found to be a ew species, and was named by Dr. Moore for its discoverer, B. D. Murtt, botanist of the Tsetse Research Bureau, Kondoa, Tanganyika Territory.

The already famous yellow "St. Louis" hybrid is an offspring of the Burttii, as are a starry yellow cousin of the "St. Louis" and the six hybrids previously unannounced.

Pring Produced 17 Hybrids.

All the 17 hybrids produced here were the work of George H. Pring, superintendent of the garden, whose initials are signed to the article. It covers 100 pages, giving full botanical descriptions of the various types, with 19 color plates, the first ever used in the 22 years in which the bulletin has been published.

Every one of the six new hybrids is viviparous — that is, producing young plants on the leaves and thereby simplifying and speeding propagation. Amateurs find it difficult to preserve the non-viviparous types, since the bulbs must be kept over the winter. The young plants of the viviparous lilies, however, may be wintered by removing them from the leaves, potting them and setting them in an ordinary fish aquarium.

The significance of producing six viviparous hybrids, in six different colors is noted in the bulletin article only in a terse sentence, "Up to the present time only four really viviparous water-lilies had been available, and all were in shades of blue."

Titled Only by Numbers.

Offspring of the yellow Burttii and the blue viviparous Tricker hybrid, "Independence," the new hybrids, unlike the "St. Louis," are known prosaically by numbers instead of names. The best of them, in Pring's opinion, is the cream "M. B. G. 96" sea-foam in colors according to Ridgway color standards, and in size and number of sepals resembling the opulent night-blooming lotos group. It is 10-12 inches across, with 35 to 40 petals.

"M. B. G. 104 Violet" has flowers 7 to 8 inches across; "104 Pink," 10-12 inches across, in light rhodonite pink, according to Ridgway; "M. B. G. 147," white, of similar size; "M. B. G. 151," 8-10 inches, pale forget-me-not blue; "M. B. G. 162," same size, yellow-green.

These were produced last fall, and will not be available to the amateur grower for two years. The other hybrids, including the St. Louis, the 14-inch white "Missouri" night-blooming lotos, and eight earlier hybrids produced at the garden since 1913, have won national and international awards and have been sent to the botanical gardens of England, South America, and even India and South Africa. All may be seen in the Shaw's Garden lily pools next July and August.

Reviewing the development of hybrid lilies through the 20 years, the bulletin says: "The most important achievement in hybridizing tropical day-blooming water-lilies up to the present time is the introduction of two new colors—white and yellow." Both were achievements of Shaw's Garden.

The first white was the "Mrs. George H. Pring," snowy offspring of a blue African species and the blue Shaw's Garden hybrid, "Mrs. Edwards Whitaker." The first yellow hybrid was the "St. Louis," offspring of the white "Pring" and the yellow Burttii.

FILLING STATION EMPLOYES TO STOP WEARING UNIFORMS

Union Attendants of Eight Firms Will Don Civilian Attire Beginning Tuesday.

Following notice that uniforms are no longer required, union filling station attendants employed by eight major oil companies in the city and suburbs announced they would appear in civilian attire beginning Tuesday.

A recent agreement between the companies and the union provided that where uniforms were required laundry would be at the expense of the employer. H. H. Anderson, an officer of the Shell Oil Co., pointed out that uniform requirements were optional with the employer, and the companies had decided to allow their men to appear in civilian clothes.

is as far as is practicable to be limited to the members of the group."

The increase of employment is cited as another measure of recovery in the United Kingdom. Out of a total of 12,880,000 persons covered by the national unemployment insurance plan, the number unemployed at the end of the year was 2,263,000, a reduction of more than 510,000 during the year. British industries showing substantial gains in 1933 included iron and steel, building, engineering, automobile manufacturing, woolen and worsted mills and electrical manufacturing.

Discussion of the international situation as affecting prospects of British foreign trade includes a rather critical estimate of the results and probable effects of the American "New Deal" experiment. the Review said:

"Another weapon for expanding our overseas trade which we still have in reserve is, capital investment. The embargo on new issues imposed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1931, is still in operation and is especially severe on foreign issues. A successful balancing of our national finances, as is generally expected in the forthcoming budget, should go a long way to allay misgivings in regard to the safety of our currency in the international market, and to allow of some relaxation of the embargo. It should at any rate permit of the release of funds for schemes of capital expenditure in approved countries in cases where the promoters are prepared to guarantee that a substantial part of the loans are to be used to buy British materials or employ British labor.

"Since the possibilities in this direction, as well as the prospect of a further rise in the prices of basic raw materials, depend to a considerable degree on what is about to happen in the U. S. A., a brief summary of the situation in that country may not be out of place.

"First Phase a Failure."

"At the precise moment when the American experiment is entering upon its most critical phase it is not possible to make a sober forecast of the future. This much, however, may be said. The first phase of the new deal, within less than a year of its inauguration, must be written down a failure.

"The problem of the immediate future is not how it can be salvaged but what is to be substituted for it. Unfortunately, its promoters have not yet realized the possibility that the old mechanism of American commerce may not merely have run down but may never work again in its present form. They continue to assume that it can be wound up and made to go. The new deal is no planned economy on the Russian Plan. The American people have submitted to a gigantic scheme of regimentation because they hope that by curtailing production, prices can be made to rise and profits restored. Few seem to contemplate the possibility of failure, or what will happen if the present codes are to become a permanent part of America's economic life. Even the President himself is relying on a great revival of private business to provide an avenue of escape before the hold of the tentacles of government control have become too rigid.

"Under President Roosevelt's plan the output of basic agricultural products is being reduced on a proportionate basis, and a subsidy is being given to raise prices to the 1909-1914 price level; industry is being co-ordinated into monopolies and competition and prices are being regulated; maximum hours and minimum wages are being fixed for labor which is being encouraged to organize itself into trade unions. To make the new mechanism work a number of bewildering devices for expanding credit have been invented.

Sums Up Results.

"What have been the results up to date?

"From the beginning of March of last year up to the end of July all seemed to go well. Agricultural prices rose, industrial output expanded and labor flowed into employment. Not till later was it realized that this was but part of a world-wide movement towards recovery. In February the prices received by farmers were 49 per cent of the pre-war level, and the prices paid by them 100 per cent. By July, however, prices received moved up to 76 per cent and prices paid only to 103 per cent. During the same period industrial production almost reached the 1923-25 average, while employment reached 69 per cent. August, however, saw the beginning of a decline. In agriculture the spread between prices paid and prices received began to widen once again. By the end of September the index of industrial activity had fallen to 85 per cent of the 1923-24 average, while the rate of inflow of labor into employment had begun to slow down. At the same time retail prices continued to climb, with the result that by September real wages had begun to decline; the rise in money wages estimated at 6 per cent between March and the end of September was soon swallowed up by an increase of over 8 per cent in the cost of living.

"It is true that nearly four million wage earners out of a total of possibly 15 million unemployed persons at the lowest point of the depression had been absorbed, but a great number of these had been re-employed at the minimum wages fixed by the codes, wages whose real purchasing power, as we have seen, subsequently declined. This re-employment therefore represents in part a redistribution of purchasing power, not a net increase.

"So much for the first phase of the New Deal.

"The next phase, heralded by President Roosevelt's budget message to Congress on Jan. 4 of this year, is inflation by public works and public expenditure on an even grander scale than envisaged last year. This expenditure on public works and loans is estimated to involve a deficit of $7,300,000,000 in the current year, and of a further $2,000,000,000 in 1934-35—an average expenditure of over $1,000,000,000 per month for the remainder of the financial year.

Predicts Severe Reaction.

"While it is difficult to believe that expenditures on this vast scale can be without its effect on prices and business in the United States, and indirectly on the rest of the world, it cannot bring sustained recovery. A severe reaction is inevitable, probably to be followed by a breakdown in America's commercial and financial structure. The only question is: How long will it take for these things to happen? It would be foolish to venture on a definite forecast. Possibly the President may find himself compelled to suspend his program before it is too late; on the other hand it may already be too late to save America's present economic structure. In the meantime the countries of the world, with exchanges susceptible to American influences, must prepare for a period of anxiety. And much the same applies to dealers in commodities.

"So far as British industry is concerned, one may venture to hope that before the situation has become over-dangerous steps will have been taken so to insulate our economic arrangements from external disturbance as to enable us to escape with but the minimum of dislocation."

BOY SCOUTS TO TALK IN 55 CHURCHES TODAY

In Other Houses of Worship Pastors Will Mention $139,000 Campaign.

The work of the Boy Scouts and their coming campaign for $139,000 with which to carry on their 1934 budget will be mentioned in 140 churches of the city and county today. In 55 churches there will be boy speakers and in the remainder the pastor has agreed to talk on the scout movement.

Solicitation of larger gifts in the drive has already begun but the campaign for general gifts will not get under way until March 12.

This week will see the 110 scouts of a specially enrolled speaking corps continue to make their three-minute talks before service clubs and civic organizations. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday they will speak in 52 neighborhood theaters. During the entire campaign they will make 275 speeches.

The regular "Stars of Tomorrow" program on radio station KSD this afternoon will be taken over by the scout choir of Troop 98, St. Roch's Catholic Church, and by scouts of other troops who will give specialty numbers.

Saturday will be Scout day, when scouts will take over most of the elective and appointive offices at City Hall. Elections for these positions among the scouts were held yesterday. Scouts will also replace Acting Chief of Police McCarthy and Chief of Detectives Carroll and 80 scouts will aid in directing traffic on all the corners between Broadway and Twelfth street and Washington boulevard and Market street between 9 a. m. and 1 p. m.

Twelve scouts will also take over the executive offices of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, at the suggestion of L. W. Baldwin, president of the railroad and a member of the scout executive board. Scouts may also handle other private businesses for the half-day.

Troop Notes

Thomas N. Dysart, newly-elected president of the Chamber of Commerce, has been elected to the executive board of the St. Louis Council of Boy Scouts.

Troop 8, Buder School, will observe the first anniversary of the completion of its year-around camp, "Spring Lake Camp," when it will be host to all scouts and scouters of the South District at the professional hockey game Tuesday night at the Arena. There will be skating for all scouts after the game. Presentation of the President's streamer will be made to the troop during the evening. Scouts of the troop recently took part in a Washington birthday party with the George Washington Masonic Lodge.

The Mothers' Auxiliary of Troop 168 met last Friday in the Grill Room of St. Pius Church. Mrs. H. Krietz spoke on "George Washington and Our Flag."

Thirty-seven merit badges, one first class pin, and seven second class pins were awarded at a court of honor held last Tuesday by Troop 118, Chouteau School.

Robert Koehne and Don Dolon passed the signaling test at the last meeting of Troop 3, Grace Church.

The following patrol leaders have been elected for Kirkwood Troop 3, St. Peter's Church: Leonard Perez, Owl Patrol; Joseph Muller, Flaming Arrow; William Beck, Rattlesnake. Robert Harper has been appointed troop scribe. Wilbur Haley remains as quartermaster and Bernard Vennemann as assistant scoutmaster.

The troop recently observed its ninth anniversary with a dinner and court of honor at the church. Fifteen merit badges, two first class, two star, and one life badge were awarded. Speakers were Walter W. Head, president of the National Scout Council, and the Rev. Leo J. Steck.

War Does Not Now Impend, Is View of Lloyd George

policy his decisions were accepted by his Ministers without challenge or demur.

He was eminently calm and sane in his judgment of events. He repeatedly made it clear that in resisting Germany at the outset of the war he was not taking sides with France in her quarrel with her neighbor, but that he was fighting for the independence of Belgium.

With the same courage and firmness of will he opposed every effort made to subordinate his country to the interest and prejudices of victorious France. Had the question of enforcing sanctions against Germany arisen over armaments, he most certainly would have declined to implicate Belgium in violent action.

From what I know the present ministry, I predict they will carry out his policy of appeasement and reconciliation. I know Henri Jaspar, one of the strongest men in the Belgian Ministry. I feel assured his influence will be entirely opposed to bellicose ventures.

Mussolini Means Business.

The Austrian situation contains elements of menace and disquiet. But I cannot see the German Nazi government provoking the hostility of both Premier Mussolini and Premier Doumergue by any rash intervention in that quarter. They know too well that in this matter of Austria, the Italian Duce means business.

Italy in the peace treaty, for strategic reasons, annexed areas of the Tyrol where the population is mainly German by race, tradition and language. This part of Tyrol during the war was a constant source of danger and anxiety to the Italian army. It was like a huge spear point aimed at the throat of Italy. On one occasion the Austrians descended from the height of this plateau and very nearly inflicted a fatal blow on the Italian army in the plains.

The country below Brussilov in the Carpathians alone saved the Italians from disaster which might have been irreparable. The Italians insisted at the peace conference on adding this threatening bastion to their realm. It is, and probably will remain for a long time, a sore point with the Teuton wherever he lives, for the annexed territory contains the birth place of Andreas Hofer, Tyrolese hero.

What Expansion Would Mean.

Mussolini reaizes that the problem will not become a serious menace to Italy as long as Austria remains independent and therefore small and not powerful. But if the Nazis were to succeed in adding Austria to their sphere of influence, that would be another story.

Italy then would come face to face not with a small republic but with a powerful community of 70,000,000 Germans. That is why Mussolini will not tolerate the anschluss meditated by the Nazis.

Hitler knows it cannot be achieved without a struggle which he is not in position to face. The Nazi government have not yet set in motion their schemes for absorbing the unemployed. They have still nearly 5,000,000 workmen out of work and it is essential for the success and stability of the Nazi regime that they should be found jobs at some task which will occupy them and enable them to earn a living.

Hitler must move circumspectly and therefore slowly. A foreign complication is the last thing he wants. It would wreck all his plans for a prosperous, contented Germany. I am therefore one of those who believe there will be no war in Europe despite failure of the disarmament conference.

The nations will go on arming, especially in the air. They will increase their squadrons and probably add to their destructive mechanism. But they have no intention of fighting. Their activities so far are precautionary.

MORE YOUTHS AMONG HANDICAPPED WORKERS

Occupational Therapy Group Reports Present Quarters Are Overcrowded.

An increasing number of younger persons were served last year by the Occupational Therapy Workshop, 4567 Scott avenue, according to the organization's annual report, issued yesterday. Nervous disorders of various types were prevalent among the young people referred to the workshop for guidance.

Sponsored by the Junior League, and supported by it and the Community Fund, the Occupational Therapy Workshop seeks to supply medical, social and psychiatric assistance to restore people to health.

In some cases which come to its attention, men have been disabled by accident or disease and need to learn a new trade. Nervous disorders are relieved by keeping the patient occupied at some task in which he may develop a new interest. Other cases present behavior problems in children and young people, toward the correction of which the organization offers guidance.

Products of the workshop, toys and other examples of handicraft, are sold through commercial channels and aid in supporting it. This income last year totaled $7108, an increase of $1350 over that of the previous year. There were times, particularly in the Christmas season, when orders were received faster than they could be filled.

At present, the report says, the shop has more handicapped workers than can be accommodated and supervised properly in its small quarters, while there is a long list awaiting enrollment.

THOMAS WRIGHT INVESTMENT CO. BUYS PLAZA LOT

Purchase of Northwest Corner at Fourteenth and Pine Gives Firm Frontage of Entire Block.

CONSIDERED GOOD LOCATION FOR HOTEL

Completion of Municipal Auditorium Expected to Enhance Speculative Value of Holdings.

By Berry Moore

Through the purchase of the property at the northwest corner of Fourteenth and Pine streets, the Thomas Wright Investment Co., of which Guy H. Wright is president, has acquired control of the entire Fourteenth street frontage of this block overlooking the Memorial Plaza.

The purchase has a frontage of 109 feet on Fourteenth street, with a depth of 25 feet on Pine street. It is occupied by one and two-story brick and frame buildings. The Thomas Wright Investment Co., already owned the southwest corner of Fourteenth and Pine streets, improved with a modern three-story business building, and with a frontage of 50 feet on Olive boulevard, and a depth of 69 feet on Fourteenth street. The two holdings will give a total frontage of 178 feet on Fourteenth street. Both holdings have a key status.

Wright said that the purchase was made on the speculative possibilities of the corner, which would be enhanced with the completion of the Municipal Auditorium, which will dominate the Memorial Plaza. The two holdings, with the adjoining ground on Olive and on Pine, are considered as forming a desirable site for a hotel structure by real estate men.

Option Purchased.

The Pine street corner was acquired by the Thomas Wright Investment Co. from A. B. Crittenden, who had obtained an option several months ago from Henry Baer, the original owner. The ground valuation established by this transaction was not disclosed, but Crittenden, it is stated, was paid a handsome bonus for the surrender of the holding.

Several years ago options were obtained on the Olive boulevard and Fourteenth street corner, owned by the Wright interests, and on adjoining ground on Olive boulevard, as a site for a 14-story building for the St. Louis Law and Finance Corporation. This project, however, was later dropped.

Other holdings of the Thomas Wright Investment Co. on this thoroughfare include: the southeast corner of Sixteenth street and Olive boulevard, 68x59 feet, improved with a three-story business building; the northwest corner of Twentieth street and Olive boulevard, 73x107 feet, occupied by stores, and the southwest corner of Third and Olive streets. The latter corner was the initial purchase in the downtown district of the late Thomas Wright.

The Wright Company formerly held a 99-year lease of 50x86 feet of ground at the southwest corner of Eighth and Olive streets, embraced in the site of the Arcade Building. In 1930 it sold this leasehold interest to the Jane Investment Co., owner of the Arcade Building, which had been paying an annual ground rental of $26,000 under a sublease acquired in 1910.

67-Year Sub-Lease.

The fee to the Arcade Building plot is owned by the heirs of Juliet Reyburn, who executed the 99-year lease in 1898 to the Wright Investment Co. for an annual net rental of $13,000. In 1916 the Wright company sub-leased the plot for 67 years, or for the remainder of the 99-year term, to the Finance and Mortgage Co., a subsidiary of the Jane Holding Corporation. Speculation is that the Wright company discounted its equity in the leasehold for a lump sum approximating $250,000.

In addition, the Wright company had already received a total of $183,000 in rentals under the sublease, executed 14 years previously, which would make its profit altogether $442,000, after paying the $13,000 a year called for in the original lease from the Reyburn heirs.

Provisions of the original lease were not changed as a result of its sale to the Jane corporation, the transaction simply eliminating the sub-lease. The Reyburn interests continue to receive an annual net rental of $13,000.

EASTERN LIQUOR FIRMS ENTER ST. LOUIS FIELD

Liquors, Inc., of New York and Distillers' & Brewers' Products of New Jersey, Lease Space in Mart Building.

Noteworthy development in the fermentation industry in St. Louis has taken place during the last six months, the Industrial Bureau of the Industrial Club of St. Louis reports. Old brewery plants have been remodeled and made ready for operation and considerable warehouse space has been leased. All lines of business selling to the fermentation industry have been noticeably stimulated, the bureau finds.

John Ring, manager of the bureau, announces the establishment of two new concerns in this field in St. Louis: Liquors, Inc., and the Distillers & Brewers Products Corporation of Jersey City, N. J.

Liquors, Inc., which represents the Browne-Vintners Co., one of the largest Eastern importers, with headquarters in New York, has taken offices and warehouse space in the St. Louis Mart Building. It will serve Missouri and adjoining territory from the St. Louis office, and will employ 12 persons, with Marvin Lasky as local manager.

The Distillers & Brewers concern also has leased office and warehouse space in the Mart Building, from which it will serve the Southwestern states. A large warehouse stock will be carried. Twelve to 15 persons will be employed in the office and sales force. Frank Sales is local manager.

J. C. Gleason, manager of the warehouse division of the St. Louis Mart, represented his company in the lease negotiations with both concerns.

The Industrial Bureau also has announced that Frigid Food Products, Inc., of Detroit has taken warehouse space with the Federal Cold Storage Co., 1800 North Broadway—a subsidiary of the City Ice & Fuel Co., 1800 North Broadway. The Detroit concern is one of the largest independent packers and distributers of frozen eggs and frozen fruits, catering to the baking trade. It has taken a long lease on the space in the Federal Cold Storage Co. warehouse and will break, freeze and pack eggs; also probably "coldpack" apples each year. Operations will start March 15 and 75 persons will be employed. Frigid Food Products, Inc., also warehouses stock in Tulsa, Cleveland, Detroit and other cities.

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN

What may seem to be the end of the trail may be only the forks in the road. No man is through as long as opportunity is still being developed. Men are coming into this unusual business from every trade, profession, and business and are making good. They find that character and consistent work will accomplish results which constantly increase. You will meet men in this office who are making BIG MONEY who once were in these lines: mechanics, clerks, school teachers, engineers, merchants, a farmer, a railroad conductor, a music student, and auto salesman. These men average from $35.00 to $125.00 per week regularly, and more!

Our success, which is world-wide, is based on supplying a definite need at an acceptable price. Our product is unique. 1934 will be our biggest year; 1933 was our fourth consecutive record sales year.

You do not invest or buy anything in joining Electrolux Inc. (not refrigeration). Nor are you bound down to seasons. It is important and imperative that you do a full day's work regularly and not incidentally. We prefer men 25 to 48, with family responsibilities. While men in this business make from $4000 to $8500 a year regularly, you probably will start on a more modest basis—perhaps from $100.00 to $135.00 or up to $175.00 your first month—slightly more your second month, and so on upward. You spent years learning your past occupation. Are you willing to spend weeks learning one as good or better that pays from the start? But don't come looking for a miracle. Come expecting something unusual, based on definite superiority.

If you are sincere and wish to start in on a new outlook and broader prospect of success, call for personal interview, Monday morning, 9:15 to 1:15, at 561-564 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th and Olive Sts.

GARRICK—Burlesque.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS

By Nie

IT really couldn't happen, of course, but any way, "It Happened One Night," at the Fox Theatre this week is a swell picture which will be aided considerably in its popularity by the fact that it brings together, for the first time, Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert as co-stars and when the beautiful Claudette, who, as a rule, undresses only once in eight reels, obliges a second time in this film the appeal in that sort of thing is just doubled. The plot revolves around the flight of an heiress who swims away from her father's yacht down in Florida to hitch-hike it to New York to wed the man everybody but Claudette knows is a rotter. As a matter of fact she is already married to him but, for some reason best known to the picture makers, another ceremony is demanded to make the affair binding. On her way northward Claudette bumps into Clark Gable, a newspaper reporter who drinks a little, and in a night bus, a tourist camp and along the roadside they manage to fall pretty deeply in love and Miss Colbert leaves the other man waiting at the church to run away with Clark for the final fade out. "It Happened One Night" is not always a children's story, getting pretty suggestive at times, but it can be put down as fine entertainment for present day customers.

Indian Love Song.

THERE is a Hollywood legend that Kay Francis is the best dressed woman in the cinemas so when she took a trip to Burma, to reside on the other side of the railroad tracks or what ever that type of district is called in Rangoon, she took along a lot of Palm Beach dresses, fancy hats and things like that. When she journeyed up the old Irrawaddy River to Mandalay she wore ballroom gowns and up to the minute sport clothes as you can see in the picture, "Mandalay," at the Ambassador. No wonder staid English gentlemen and fly by night adventurers cast longing eyes in Kay's direction. You can get an idea of what sort of a gal she was because, when the film opens up, she is living with Ricardo Cortez. Ric is always a bad boy, either in a New York penthouse or on a gun-running yacht over China 'cross the bay. When he leaves Kay flat in Rangoon and in the hands of that arch villian, Warner Oland, she decides to go straight and runs away. On the Mandalay steamboat she meets Lyle Talbot, who is also fleeing from his past and, naturally enough, Lyle being a handsome juvenile man, they fall in love. Before it's all over and Kay and Lyle prepare to settle down to forget together, she has to kill off Cortez. That little detail being attended to everything ends happily and the picture is interesting from the viewpoint of fine clothes and warm Indian nights. Miss Francis sings, too, and sings very nicely indeed. Just in passing it might be remarked that tucked away in a small part in "Mandalay" is Etienne Girardot. The present generation wouldn't know anything about him but some time way back in the Gay '90's he was the sensation of several continents in that best of all farces, "Charley's Aunt," being the original "Aunt" in the first production. Now he is playing character bits in Hollywood.

Who Killed Cock Robin?

THE smartest of the mystery mellers in some time is "The Mystery of Mr. X," down at Loew's, in which the pleasing Robert Montgomery is an up-to-date Raffles who, unfortunately, times his robberies to coincide with the carryings on of a maniac who has set out to murder the entire London police force. Of course, Robert isn't the killer who is known only as Mr. X to Scotland Yard. No leading man could possibly be a murderer, but he is suspected all the same. Just to clear himself he undertakes to catch the real slayer and succeeds right in the nick of time. Lewis Stone, a gentlemanly detective, very properly overlooks Montgomery's million dollar diamond pilferings and, since Robert is on the way to reform, the path is cleared for his marriage to Elizabeth Allan, daughter of one of the old Scotland Yard families. The plot is full of holes, but it is cleverly done with a lot of bright and snappy lines flowing throughout and everybody is as willing as Detective Inspector Stone to forget and forgive so that "The Mystery of Mr. X" is first rate entertainment for everybody.

John Boles Grows Old.

IN "Beloved," at the Missouri, the picture makers have turned out one of those stories in which the career of its hero—in this case it's John Boles—is told from the cradle to the brink of the grave. And John lives to a ripe old age for the picture begins when he was born back in 1830 something and winds up last year. The opening scenes are in Vienna with a revolution there driving Boles' family to America; carries on through our own Civil War, the Spanish-American unpleasantness and the late world struggle, something after the fashion of "Cavalcade." The movement is slow and tiresome at times and the picture gets pretty draggy but the glorious voice of John Boles and some other incidental singing, together with some nice photography, almost puts it on its feet. On the same bill at the Missouri is "Madam Spy," a war drama of the conventional sort with Fay Wray as a Russian secret service agent who falls in love with her dearest enemy. As is usual with all lady spies in the films Fay goes around dropping tell-tale bits of sure fire evidence all over the place to make her capture easier and certain.

Jungle Battles.

IF you are interested in seeing lions and tigers and crocodiles and hyenas and all sorts of wild beasts battle each other to the death you will be immensely pleased with "Devil Tiger" at the St. Louis for it is about the best, and certainly the most amazing, of all the animal films to come this way. We dare say that most of the fights were pre-arranged but they are real fights, nevertheless, and the spirit of adventure runs rampant all the way. There is a slight romance woven into the affair about a party of hunters in the jungles of Asia but the lions and the tigers and the elephants are the real heroes of the thing with a lot of monkeys hanging around to furnish the comedy. A short reel on the St. Louis' program shows Father Coughlin, who is billed as "The Fighting Priest of the Radio." In it the crusader delivers a brief request for everyone to stand back of President Roosevelt and his recovery programs. The stage show is a condensed version of the favorite Municipal opera piece, "The Student Prince," which is very elaborately done and sung by a large cast.

Gabrilowitsch Week's Soloist With Symphony

Pianist Will Play Brahms' Concerto in Program Devoted, Otherwise, to Bach and Mozart by Golschmann.

WORKS of three of the greatest composers of all time—Bach, Mozart and Brahms—will be presented by Vladimir Golschmann and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at the regular Symphony concerts at the Odeon Friday afternoon and Saturday evening of this week. The soloist is Ossip Gabrilowitsch, for almost 30 years one of the world's masters of the piano, and for the last 15 years conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. He plays the Brahms Concerto No. 2 in B-flat major, a work he presented in St. Louis 10 years ago.

Golschmann will open his program with Bach's Brandenburg Concerto in G major No. 3 for string orchestra—one of the foundation stones of symphonic music, written at a time when the symphony had not yet taken on the form which made it great. The symphony is Mozart's "Haffner" symphony in D major, a work to be presented for the first time in St. Louis. It is of exceptional interest because it was written also before the ultimate shaping of the symphony and originally in the number its music partook of the form of a serenade.

The complete program for the concert is:

Brandenburg Concerto No. 3 in G major, for string orchestra........Bach
  1 Allegro
  2 Allegro
Symphony in D major No. 35 ("Haffner") K. 385 .... Mozart
  1 Allegro con spirito
  2 Andante
  3 Menuetto
  4 Finale: Presto
    (First performance in St. Louis.)
Concerto No. 2 for pianoforte and orchestra, in B-flat major, Opus 83—Brahms
  1 Allegro non troppo
  2 Allegro appassionato
  3 Andante
  4 Allegro grazioso
Ossip Gabrilowitsch.

Two of the numbers will be performed in pantomime in masks by Emy Ferrand, of Vienna, to music arranged for Mr. Parker by Theodore Mossman.

American History Picture.

A., 3100 North Grand avenue, next Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The play is entitled "The Gateway to the West."

Warner Bros. Get Shubert

Picture Producers Take Over Grand Avenue House For Cinema Palace, Leaving the Legit Field, if Any, to the American—Wild Scramble for Three Other Theaters—The Inside Story of Baby Le Roy.

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

PASSING out of the picture as a legit theater the Shubert-Rialto house on Grand avenue was leased yesterday to Warner Brothers who will immediately fit it up as a cinema palace. The outcome of this move points to the fact that a long-expected shake-up is coming in the control of the picture houses of St. Louis, and when it is over that enterprising firm of Fanchon and Marco, which came up from a team of vaudeville hoofers to national theater operators will, through its association with Harry Koplar, in all probability have control of the other first-run houses here except Loew's and the freshly reorganized Shubert.

A deal for the Ambassador, Missouri and little Grand Central is still pending, but Warner Brothers, with their picture product to look out for and, apparently not coming to terms with the new combination, have taken a long lease on the Shubert and will operate it, with their own films themselves. Warner Brothers make the Warner Pictures and those carrying the stamp of First National. These pictures have, previously, been shown at the Ambassador.

The Warners, making the deal with Cella and Tate, owners of the Shubert, who found it back on their hands with the collapse of the Shubert interests, are to reopen the house with Al Jolson's new picture, "Wonder Bar," on March 31. It is announced that Warners is looking for other theaters here to make up a circuit for the outlet for their films.

In the meantime several sets of other operators are trying to break into the local situation with offers for the control of the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central. Several Chicago operators are in the market but, at the moment Fanchon and Marco, together with Harry Koplar, veteran St. Louis showman, appear to have the upper hand through their recent leasing of the St. Louis and Fox Theaters, the two largest Grand avenue houses. Mike Marco and several of his business associates have been in town recently going over the field pretty thoroughly. Balaban and Katz of Chicago have had representatives here also, and some New York operators were here during the past week.

Work will be started at once by Warners to make over the Shubert into a "de-luxe" cinema house with the latest sound apparatus and picture equipment.

With the Shubert going cinema St. Louis is left with but one legit house, the American. Under present show conditions that seems a plenty.

AND while the theater men are fighting for houses—and more money—some of the stars in their pictures are doing the same thing. At least they are looking for more pieces of producer's silver. Seventy-five dollars a week, it now develops, isn't enough for a less than two years old baby star in Hollywood. At least so says the mother of Little LeRoy Winebrenner—the Baby LeRoy of cinema fame—who, during the past week went into court to have a seven-year contract for the child at that figure set aside so a new, and more expensive one, could be made.

During a recent visit to the film city we happened to be having lunch one day in a studio cafe with LeRoy and his mother seated at the next table. The youngster, properly coached by a ballyhoo artist, toddled over to shake hands and to say a word or two out of his very limited vocabulary. Then he was grabbed up by other stars, grown ones, and fussed over in a manner which he seemed to thoroughly enjoy. His mother does try to discipline him but it is a hard task for, among the older players he is a king to be made much of and showered with presents. And he appreciates his standing, too.

At the time he was discovered his mother, Gwenneth Winebrenner, was unable to care for him. His father was dead and the young mother was struggling to support herself.

Within the nine months since he first peeked into a camera Le Roy has been able to become the sole support of his "family," buy himself a ranch, put the rest of his movie earnings away in insurance and build himself a future.

SUPPOSE we follow him around the clock. LeRoy awakens on a typical studio working day at 6 a. m.

He lets his mother know he's awake by pounding on the side of his crib and his bedroom at the ranch bungalow. He, his mother and his grandfather reside there—a small farm located 25 miles from Hollywood. His grandfather takes care of the ranch work and acts as "father" to the baby at home. He also guards the bungalow at night to prevent incidents. Burglar alarms and a direct telephone line to a nearby Sheriff's substation are further safeguards for LeRoy.

His first meal consists of a cereal, a bit of crisp bacon, toast and some chopped orange. After breakfast he plays around the yard, waiting for the car sent for him each day from Paramount studios and driven by an armed chauffeur, who plays the role of driver and bodyguard. Accompanied by his mother he is driven to his studio nursery.

THEN he is wheeled in his carriage to the sound stage embracing the set on which he is to work. There everything is in readiness to "shoot" a scene with him. Lights are focused, cameras are lined up and the other players are in their places before the baby is placed in the scene. This cuts down his actual time under the lamps to the lowest possible total.

Director Alexander Hall, who handled the baby in "Torch Singer" and in "Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen," does not find it difficult to get the baby to "act."

"He just 'acts' natural," Hall pointed out. "He reacts to laughter or to the tone of voice in any scene. He follows movement with his eyes and head and always appears interested.

"It's no job at all to get him to laugh. Now comes the secret about this crying business. We found out that he dislikes to blow his nose. If his mother insists long enough that he blow into a handkerchief he'll get mad—and when any baby gets mad it'll cry.

"So all we have to do now is produce a handkerchief, let LeRoy think he has to blow—and he turns on the tears."

After lunch he gets a nap of an hour or so and then goes back on the set. He sleeps some more en route home, and if it is after dark when he leaves the studio an armed guard joins the chauffeur in the front seat of the studio sedan.

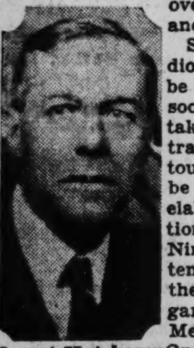
Radio Concerts, Opera and Recitals.

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI is to return to Philadelphia from Hollywood tomorrow night to resume direction of the nightly Philadelphia Symphony concerts over the CBS net and KMOX.



Ernest Hutcheson

Stokowski's radio concerts will be concluded soon, as he will take the orchestra abroad on a tour. They will be replaced by an elaborate production featuring Nino Martini, the tenor, who sang the role of "Edgar" in the Metropolitan Opera broadcast of "Lucia di Lammermoor" yesterday; Rosa Ponselle of the Metropolitan Opera; Grace Moore; a large concert orchestra, and a chorus led by Andre Kostelanetz.

Ernest Hutcheson, the pianist whose recitals won such attention from listeners, will begin another series next Sunday night, at 9:30, on KMOX and the CBS chain. His program will continue half an hour, and he will be assisted by a symphony orchestra led by Howard Barlow.

MUSIC by Dvorak, Grainger and Mendelssohn will be played by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra at 8:30 Tuesday night on the CBS chain and KMOX in the first of a weekly series of concerts conducted by Eugene Ormondy. Tuesday night's concert will bring Dvorak's "Carnival Overture," Grainger's setting of the "Londonderry Air," the delicate Scherzo from Mendelssohn's "Mid-Summer Night's Dream" music and the gay Polka and Fugue from Weinberger's modernistic opera, "Schwanda." The broadcasts will come from Minneapolis. Ormondy, as the opening program indicates, will feature music which listeners generally know and love.

Eugene Ormondy

Nathan Milstein, violinist, and Gregor Piatigohsky, 'cellist, will play the Bach Double Concerto for violin and 'cello in the New York Philharmonic concert today. The orchestra also will play the Honneger suite based on Bach's French suites, and will conclude with the Rachmaninoff Symphony in E-minor. Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York will speak during the intermission.

CARLOS GARDEL, the Argentinian baritone, will sing to the accompaniment of music from Buenos Aires at 8 o'clock tomorrow night on the WJZ net. The "stunt" has been rehearsed elaborately, and the complicated system of reception by short wave, studio synchronization and broadcasting has worked smoothly. Music played by orchestras whose members are standing instead of seated may become a commonplace in broadcasting as a result of experiments conducted by Frank Black over NBC chains. Critical opinion is that the "vertical music" sounds more true to life.

Carlos Gardel.

Giovanni Martinelli, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, will sing "Celeste Aida," from "Aida"; "Che Gelida Manina," from "La Boheme," and "Vesti la Giubba," from "Pagliacci," during the concert at 5 o'clock today on KWK and the WJZ chain. The orchestra will be led by Guy Fraser Harrison, conductor of the Rochester Civic Orchestra.

Rudolph Ganz, the pianist, formerly conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, will be the "guest" on Ted Weems' program at 6 o'clock tonight on KWK and the WJZ chain.

Richard Crooks will sing the "Romanza" from "Linda di Chamounix" and Knapp's "Open the Gates to the Temple" during the concert at 7:30 tomorrow night on KSD.

Gladys Swarthout, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, will sing on a new variety program set for 8 o'clock Tuesday on KWK and the WJZ chain. Ray Perkins, actor, song writer and comedian, will will be the master of ceremonies. Gale Page, "blues" singer, and an orchestra led by Harold Stokes also are billed.

Albert Spalding, the violinist, will play Dvorak's "Indian Lament," "Suwanee River" and Sarsate's "Malaguena" at 7:30 Wednesday night on KMOX.

A symphony orchestra of 150 musicians will play during a CWA broadcast from Los Angeles at 10:30 tonight on the CBS chain. Music programed includes the second movement of the Saint-Saens Third Symphony and the "Valse Triste" of Sibelius. To conclude the program, 324 more musicians will join the orchestra in playing Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Nine chamber music recitals, under the auspices of the Library of Congress, will be carried by the CBS chain at 3:15 Mondays, starting March 12. The London String Quartet will play the opening concert.

RADIO commission officials are hopeful that the Mexican Government's action in closing Dr. John R. Brinkley's powerful XER, at Villa Acuna, will open the way to a solution of the border stations problem. The Federal Radio Commission, the State Department and United States stations hitherto have vainly protested against Mexico's licensing border stations, which are built almost solely to appeal to audiences in this country. The Brinkley station, which was licensed by Mexico after the physician's station at Milford, Kan., had been ruled off the air by the Commission, and a station erected on the border by Norman Baker, whose station in Iowa was closed by the Commission, have caused the most complaints.

The North American radio conference at Mexico City last July failed because Mexico at the time refused to view the border station problem from the viewpoint of this country. Former Vice-President Charles Curtis, who represented Dr. Brinkley at the Mexico City conference, is no longer acting as counsel for the physician. He said, however, that he expected the Mexican government would help to reimburse Dr. Brinkley for loss of XER.

The final children's concert by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Ernest Schelling conducting, will be that set for 10 o'clock next Saturday morning on KMOX and the CBS net.

"Pagliacci," the opera so associated with the name of Caruso, is billed for the Metropolitan Opera broadcast over KSD Saturday afternoon. It will begin at 12:40, and will be carried by KWK also.

Yehudi Menuhin, the violinist, will be the soloist for the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra's concert at 2:30 Friday on KMOX and CBS stations. Leopold Stokowski will conduct.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, Strauss' "Don Juan" tone poem, and the prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" are programmed for the concert by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra at 10:30 tonight on WMAQ (670) and other WEAF chain stations.

Mario Chamlee, tenor, will sing an aria from "Cavaleria Rusticana" and Bartlett's "A Dream" in the concert at 2:30 today on KSD.

The concerts at 5 o'clock Sundays on KWK and the WJZ chain will be continued until April 8. Vladimor Horowitz and Harold Bauer, pianist Mischa Elman, violinist, and Lily Pons and Edward Johnson, of the Metropolitan Opera, are soloists yet to be heard in this series.

John Charles Thomas, the baritone, has been engaged to succeed John McCormack after March 14 when the tenors departs for an African concert tour.

The bureau will supply five-minute summaries daily to the WEAF and WJZ chains, one in the morning, the other at night. News for the bulletins will be furnished to the bureau by the Associated Press, the United Press and the International News Service. WIL Erecting Tower Aerial.

CONSTRUCTION of a 200-foot transmission aerial for WIL, similar to those used by WLW, Cincinnati, and WSM, Nashville, Tenn., is being pressed and should be finished within about six weeks. The steel tower is being erected on the roof of the Melbourne Hotel. Its tip will be 350 feet above the sidewalk on Lindell boulevard. Such aerials enable stations to cover their fields with a more even signal. The tower of steel beams swells from small ends to a considerable center diameter. Its lower end rests on a massive porcelain insulator. With the ordinary station aeriel, hung between towers, radiation is in an oblong circle and the greatest signal strength is from the ends of the oblong. The tower type, spreads the radio waves more evenly and more powerfully.

France Regulates Trucks.

Every motor truck in France must carry a selenium cell and electric bell. The cell is placed at the back of the truck, so that any motorist who wishes to pass it may signal to the driver. This is done by turning on his headlights, and the light flashing on the cell causes it to ring the electric bell placed near the truck driver's seat.

Ford Delivered Prices Reduced; Cuts Apply to Cars and Trucks

Retail Cost of All Models to Buyer Lowered—Commercial Car Prices Also Affected.

Substantially reduced retail prices of all Ford passenger cars, commercial types and trucks are announced by M. N. Johnson, local Ford Motor Co., branch manager, as the result of changes in freight and delivery charges.

"We take pride in the fact that we continue to be pioneers," said Johnson. "Some of the features introduced to the automotive world by us are now indispensable. Safety glass, as standard equipment, was first used in Ford cars. Free-action, not only on the front wheels, but on all four, has been a part of our product for many years. Rustless steel, bonderized metal, and other items too numerous to mention, all of which are standard with us, are slowly winning recognition as necessities.

"It is our aim now to bring about a clarification of retail delivered prices—what goes to make up the final total price of an automobile when delivered, and how it is arrived at. A step in this direction is the adoption of a certain accessory group as a standard part of our de luxe cars included in the regular price, thus eliminating the extras so confusing to the public.

"We have been trying for some time to minimize the expense incident to bringing the finished automobile from the factory to the buyer. By passing on the benefits of these lowered costs, the Ford Motor Co. merely follows its long-established practice of giving the purchaser every newly developed advantage in its system of volume production."

Prices of Ford V-8 cars and trucks have been reduced $13 to $19 depending on the model.

The delivered prices of Ford V-8 cars in St. Louis now range from $615 for the standard five-window coupe to $635.85 for the standard Tudor sedan and $727 for the de luxe Fordor sedan. Standard models have safety glass windshields. Safety glass throughout is standard equipment on the de luxe models, including the cabriolet and victoria. Safety glass, when not standard equipment, is $15 extra on coupes and $20 extra on sedans.

As an example of the way delivered prices in St. Louis are fixed: the factory list price of a standard Tudor sedan is $535. Added to this price are $35.60 for freight; $12.06 for delivery charge, including full tank of gasoline and oil; $31.50 for accessories, including front and rear bumpers, spare tire and tube, metal tire cover and lock; $21.69 for Federal and State tax. So the delivered price is $635.85.

Prices for Ford V-8 commercial cars now range from $44.30 for chassis to $661.60 for sedan delivery and $661.50 for de luxe panel delivery. Prices for commercial cars on the 131½-inch chassis range from $565.40 to $871.40, on the 157-inch chassis models from $585.70 to $952.65. All truck types can be had with four-cylinder engine at $30 off list price.

Ford Dealers Guests With Their Salesmen At St. Louis Meeting

Ford dealers and salesmen of the St. Louis metropolitan area were guests of the Ford Motor Co. at a meeting Tuesday evening at the Coronado Hotel, presided over by M. N. Johnson, local branch manager; Frank Alter, of the sales promotion division, Ford Motor Co., and J. N. Kellerman, nationally known sales engineer, were the principal speakers.

Kellerman stressed the present position of the Ford Motor Co. not only from the standpoint of its financial soundness and its beneficial influence upon the general economic conditon of the nation, but regarding the standing of this company in public estimation.

"The Ford Motor Co." he said, "is making rapid strdies forward in production and sales and has again taken its place as leader in the automotive industry. The direction of its travel is upward and onward, and Ford dealers and salesmen are to be congratulated on the fact that they are bound to share in the tremendous prosperity that will result from the company's success."

Kellerman when asked what he thought the most effective method of selling Ford cars, replied: "Demonstrate—give the prospect a ride. This is 90 per cent of your job. The car itself will do the rest."

Alter was here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday visiting Ford dealer establishments, holding sales meetings and making a general survey of business conditions. He remarked that, while the automotive industry was making more rapid recovery from the economic depression than was noticed in other industries, this was not unnatural, as the automotive industry had always been regarded as an indicator of the direction in which general business was traveling.

Nash Will Exhibit Again in Glass Tower At the Chicago Fair

C. H. Bliss, vice president and director of sales of the Nash Motor Co., announces that Nash will reenter the 1934 Century of Progress exhibition with an exhibit of Nash and LaFayette motor cars.

Bliss signed a contract for the plate glass tower which was one of the automotive features of the exposition.

In the revolving tower, Nash plans to show special models of the three new 1934 series of Nash twin ignition cars and the new LaFayette, while additional mechanical exhibits will be shown on the floor of the tower.

Pontiac President Sees 1934 as Best Auto Year in Years

Klingler Expects 50 Per Cent Increase in Production of Pontiacs Over 1933.

Harry J. Klingler, president and general manager of the Pontiac Motor Co., says that, in his opinion, 1934 will be the best year the automobile industry has seen in four or five years.

Pontiac, Klingler said, made almost as many new cars in February as in the best month last year, and from March on production should be better than in the best month last year. Production for the year should be 50 per cent ahead of 1933.

One of the best indications that the revival of business is genuine, Klingler said, is the fact that the greatest increase in orders is coming from the small towns, which generally do not start to order until later in the season. Not a few small town dealers have ordered as many cars thus far this year as they did during all of last year. Apparently Government subsidies to the farms and small towns are doing their work, and the rural communities are staging a comeback, Klingler said.

How widespread are the effects of prosperity in the motor car business was pointed out by Klingler, noting the diversity of materials that enter into the manufacture of a car and the fact that they come from all over the world. Employment figures, he said, indicate that 10 per cent of all the employed in the United States are engaged directly or indirectly in some phase of the motor car business.

For every worker in an automobile factory, 18 persons are employed selling cars, mining coal, iron, copper or some other mineral for use in a motor car, or working in garages, gas and oil stations, battery shops, tire and accessory places and the like in every city, town and hamlet in the United States.

The articles and materials of which the motor car industry is the largest user comes from practically every State and a score or more of countries. This industry overshadows every other in the consumption of rubber, long staple cotton, iron, steel, glass and without it the oil industry would be much less important than it is today.

"No wonder," said Klingler, "that steel men, and railroad men and the men in scores of businesses are so interested in the way the automobile business goes." It is noteworthy that as the motor car business has grown so has railroad traffic increased.

First 1934 La Salle Car Rolls Off Line in Plant at Detroit

The first 1934 La Salle car was driven off the final inspection line Monday. This was the actual beginning of production of this new stream-lined automobile which brings a Cadillac built car into the upper medium priced field. The car was immediately shipped to Nashville, where it will be presented to Gov. Hill McAlister, of Tennessee, by members of the gubernatorial staff

William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors, was among the guests of Lawrence F. Fisher, president of Cadillac, to witness the completion of the first La Salle.

At the same time the first 1934 Cadillac V-16 was completed and the big plant swung into production. It is expected that peak production will be reached within a few weeks.

With more orders on hand than at any time since 1928, and with more than 200 new dealers added to the nation-wide Cadillac organization, production will be increased rapidly, J. C. Chick, general sales manager, said.

Riefling Auto Co. Has Its Employes As Banquet Guests

The Riefling Automobile Co., 2327 S. Jefferson avenue, authorized Ford dealers, entertained more than 40 employes at a banquet at the Tower Grove Turn Verein Tuesday night.

F. J. Riefling, president of the firm, made a short talk. H. P. Riefling, vice-president, also took an active part in the evening's activities.

The Riefling Co. has been at the South Jefferson avenue address since 1916 and has been an authorized Ford dealer for the same length of time—18 years. The Riefling Co. has 50,000 square feet of floor space devoted to Ford sales and service.

New Oldsmobile Six Now in Production in Plant at Lansing

Low-Priced Line to Be Companion to Eight-Cylinder Model.

Production of the new low-price, all-feature Oldsmobile six-cylinder car has begun at the Lansing plant, it is announced by Charles L. McCuen, president and general manager of the Olds Motor Works.

Present when the first car came off the assembly line was Gov. William A. Comstock of Michigan.

The new model is in addition to the Oldsmobile straight eight, which has been in production since the first of the year.

Gov. Comstock, in a prosperity message, expressed the opinion that the new six would prove a welcome addition to the manufacturing activities, not only of the State, but of the country at large.

The automobile is the largest purchaser of gasoline, rubber, alloy steel and malleable iron, mohair, upholstery leather, lubricating oils, plate glass, nickel and lead, and is a large user also of several hundred other raw, semi-manufactured and manufactured materials, he pointed out.

New General Motors Truck Engine Develops Powerful Torque

A new six-cylinder engine of 450 cubic inches displacement, having unusual features contributing to high efficiency and economy of operation, has just been introduced by the General Motors Truck Co.

Of uniform valve-in-head design, like its companion engines in the GMC line, it develops a maximum of 340 foot pounds of torque over a speed range of 800 to 1200 r.p.m. and 120 horsepower at 2300 r.p.m. This is more torque and horsepower per cubic inch displacement than in any other truck engine in its class, it is said.

Through its high torque maintained over a wide speed range, marked economy of operation is effected, less gear shifting is required and better performance is obtained. This engine will be used in Model T-84, a new truck in the eight-ton capacity range.

Completely truck-engineered and truck-built for heavy duty service, an outstanding feature is the use of aircraft type engine bearings. The main and interchangeable connecting rod bearings are precision type, steel backed copper lead alloy which are considerably more costly than the usual babbitt types, will carry much greater loads at higher speeds and will last many times longer under usual operating conditions.

Among other features are the use of an oil temperature regulator and cleanable type oil filter insuring clean, cool oil to the bearings, roller bearing fan and front-mounted centrifugal pump to permit space for larger capacity generators, down-draft carburation, tulip type exhaust valves with stellite seats and full pressure lubrication with rifle-drilled connecting rods.

4646 Plymouth Cars Reported Delivered At Retail in Week

Retail delivery of 4646 Plymouth cars last week exceeded deliveries in the previous week by 24.5 per cent, and the gain was 78 per cent over the same comparable week of last year, H. G. Moock, general sales manager of the Plymouth Motor Corporation, announces.

This set another new all-time Plymouth sales record, compared with the same week of other years, Moock said.

Shipments of 7558 Plymouths in the week, as against 1955 shipped during the same period of last year, was an increase of 286.6 per cent.

Unfilled orders on hand to Feb. 23 totaled 58,659, as compared with 11,934 last year, an increase of 391.5 per cent. Orders received for this month and March now total 82,566 against 18,248 orders last year, a 1934 increase of 352.5 per cent. Shipments to date this month total 23,907 units, Moock said.

In addition to the complete line of White trucks, many of them equipped with panel, stake, dump, van and other bodies there will be a showing of Indiana trucks, which are merchandised through the White Co.

J. B. Cuttles, district manager, says the show opens at 9 a. m. each day and will be open during the evening.

Goodrich Rubber Co. Introduces 'Budget Pay' Selling Plan

Goodrich-Silvertown, Inc., Stores Will Use It—Sales Gain in 1933 Reported.

The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. has announced a new sales plan, to be known as the "Budget Pay Plan," through Goodrich-Silvertown, Inc., stores, according to William Stonestreet, district manager of the Goodrich Co.

A feature of the plan is that no down payment is required, with the establishment of weekly payments. In connection with the new plan a special budget department has been created.

The budget paying plan was discussed Friday at a meeting of Goodrich-Silvertown, Inc., executives called by Stonestreet. Among those at the meeting, besides Stonestreet, were Carl Dixon, manager of the budget department; Earle E. Gordon, general manager; Thomas Pruitt, assistant budget manager; Walter Stroebel, manager of the West St. Louis Goodrich-Silvertown store; Robert Roberds, budget manager of the West St. Louis store; C. E. Newman, manager of the East St. Louis store, and Theodore McQuay, budget manager of the East St. Louis store.

Consolidated sales of $79,203,495 for the year ending Dec. 31, compared with $74,501,804, 1932, an increase of 6.43 per cent, are reported in the preliminary statement of the B. F. Goodrich Co., tire and rubber manufacturer, Akron, O.

Net profit for 1933 amounted to $2,272,514 compared to a loss of $6,582,140 in 1932, the statement shows. Total current assets amounted to $53,322,766 and current liabilities $8,330,854, a ratio of 6.4 to 1. Cash, short term deposits and government securities amounted to $12,091,364, which exceeded total current liabilities by $3,760,510.

The gratifying upturn in sales has been largely due to the increased consumer demand for the Goodrich first line tires, the Safety Silvertown, which incorporates the new Life-Savor Golden Ply and which was introduced to the public in 1933, company officials say.

Firestone Display at the Chicago Fair Brought to St. Louis

A small scale replica of Harvey Firestone's dynamic display, showing important processes in the manufacture of Firestone tires, one of the most interesting exhibits in the industrial group at A Century of Progress Exposition last summer, was installed yesterday at Stix, Baer & Fuller. It will be free to the public all this week in the Firestone department, fourth floor.

The exhibit weights 10 tons. Six 24-foot trucks carted it here from the Firestone plant in Akron, O. It is 55 feet long, 16 feet wide and 12 feet high, and is said to be the largest traveling automotive exhibit ever constructed. Five attendants are required to operate it. Speaking through a public address system, they describe every feature of the display and the processes of tire manufacture.

More than 10,000,000 persons viewed it at A Century of Progress and it will be there again when the Chicago Exposition is reopened this summer.

Built of masonite and chromium, except for mechanism, which is of steel, the exhibit consists of three units. One shows the gum-dipping process whereby every strand of fabric is saturated with pure liquid rubber before the woven fabric is sent through a calendar to be coated with rubber. The second unit shows the finished product, set off with a background of brilliantly illuminated towers fashioned after the modernistic mode of the Century of Progress fair. The third unit is a full-size phantom automobile of the future, equipped with Firestone tires, and with all features of the car exposed.

The exhibit is in charge of H. H. Waters, factory engineer, who installed the original display at the Exposition in Chicago.

Semi-Diesel Engine Of Streamlined Train Has 48 Spark Plugs

Spark plugs have been found in many queer places, but about the last place one would expect to encounter them is in the semi-diesel motor of the new streamlined Union Pacific high speed train which is making a tour of the country.

Yet, according to Otto C. Rohde, chief engineer of the Champion Spark Plug Co., Toledo, there are 48 Champion plugs in the distillate burning 600 horsepower motor which helps the new train develop the 110 miles an hour it is designed to make.

Spark plugs are not commonly associated with Diesel engines, Rohde said, but the temporary motor in this train is a semi-Diesel, burning a kerosene mixture, and its charges are fired by plugs just as in the ordinary automobile. This motor is hooked up directly with a generator which provides sufficient power to propel the train at its maximum speed.

Finder of $350,000 Diamond Selects Studebaker Auto

J. J. Jonker, poor prospector who recently discovered a 726-carat diamond worth $350,000 in South Africa, hurried to Johannesburg's "automobile row" and bought a new Studebaker.

"Jonker went up and down motor row," says a message from the Studebaker dealer in Johannesburg, "looked at all of the cars and finally decided upon a Studebaker."

The diamond is the fourth largest in the world and is believed to be the lost part of the world-famous Cullinan diamond.

Chevrolet has a counterweight attachment which prevents rattling of the thermostatic heat control valve.

This is said to be one of the largest passenger car fleets delivered in St. Louis in some time. The cars will be put into service as soon as the regular police department equipment can be installed.

DeSoto Reports Heavy Orders for Its Airflow Models

Orders on hand for immediate delivery of the new Airflow De Soto models already have reached 40 per cent of the total business done by the De Soto Motor Corporation in 12 months of last year, L. G. Peed, general sales manager, announces.

"Production is increasing steadily," Peed said. The way orders are piling up daily indicates that production will not catch up with orders until about May 1. This takes into account the heavy production schedule set for March.

"The combined retail sales of Plymouth and De Soto cars in the week ending Feb. 17 were 18 per cent ahead of the previous week and 112 per cent ahead of the comparable week last February.

"The growth of our retail outlets, which have increased amazingly since the presentation of our 1934 Airflow De Soto, establishes a new record for our company. Never before in De Soto history, not excluding the peak year of 1929, have we had as large a dealer organization. We have 60 per cent more dealers than a year ago.

Production of Reo's 1934 Flying Cloud Car To Begin on March 10

Ray DeVlieg, works manager of the Reo Motor Car Co., announces that production of the new 1934 Reo Flying Cloud, which will be announced soon, will start March 10.

He said that orders on hand were the largest in years.

Reo truck business is exceptionally good. In February truck shipments were more than three times those in February, 1933. For the year to date, truck shipments are up 138 per cent over 1933.

Buick Has Largest Payroll in 4 Years; On Multiple Shifts

The Buick Motor Co. is paying $1,750,000 a month to 14,500 employes, according to payroll information made public by Harlow H. Curtice, president and general manager.

The plants and departments, operating on multiple shifts, are teeming with activity not witnessed in four years. The payroll is the highest it has been in that period.

Meanwhile, the manufacturing divisions of Buick are coping with a heavy demand for immediate deliveries from all parts of the country. An average of three trainloads and 25 highway truck loads of new cars are leaving the Flint factories daily, destined for dealers' customers throughout the United States and abroad.

Shipments have kept pace with production, according to Curtice, averaging over 9000 cars a month since the first of the year. The company completed February with a total output of 18,438 units since the first of the year, and is carrying over a large bank of orders into March, in which a production of more than 10,000 units is scheduled.

Studebaker to Build Eight-Cylinder Engines For Use in Racing Cars

Production and sale of auto racing engines for Indianapolis and other speedway competitions is announced by Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Sales Corporation.

"The success of Studebaker power plants in 1933 has practically forced us to build and sell racing motors," said Hoffman. "It will be remembered that seven of the first 12 cars to finish in that race were powered by Studebaker engines. Immediately racing drivers came to us with demands for these motors. So we're going to build and sell them."

An eight-cylinder racing motor which has the present Studebaker President motor as its base will be produced. This passenger car engine will be altered only slightly for racing. A higher compression ratio will be used and there will be a different high compression head. Four down-draft Stromberg carburetors will be used. A magneto, to eliminate carrying a battery, will be installed.

The engines will be of 250 cubic inch displacement and will produce about 150 horsepower. Otherwise the power plants will be practically stock.

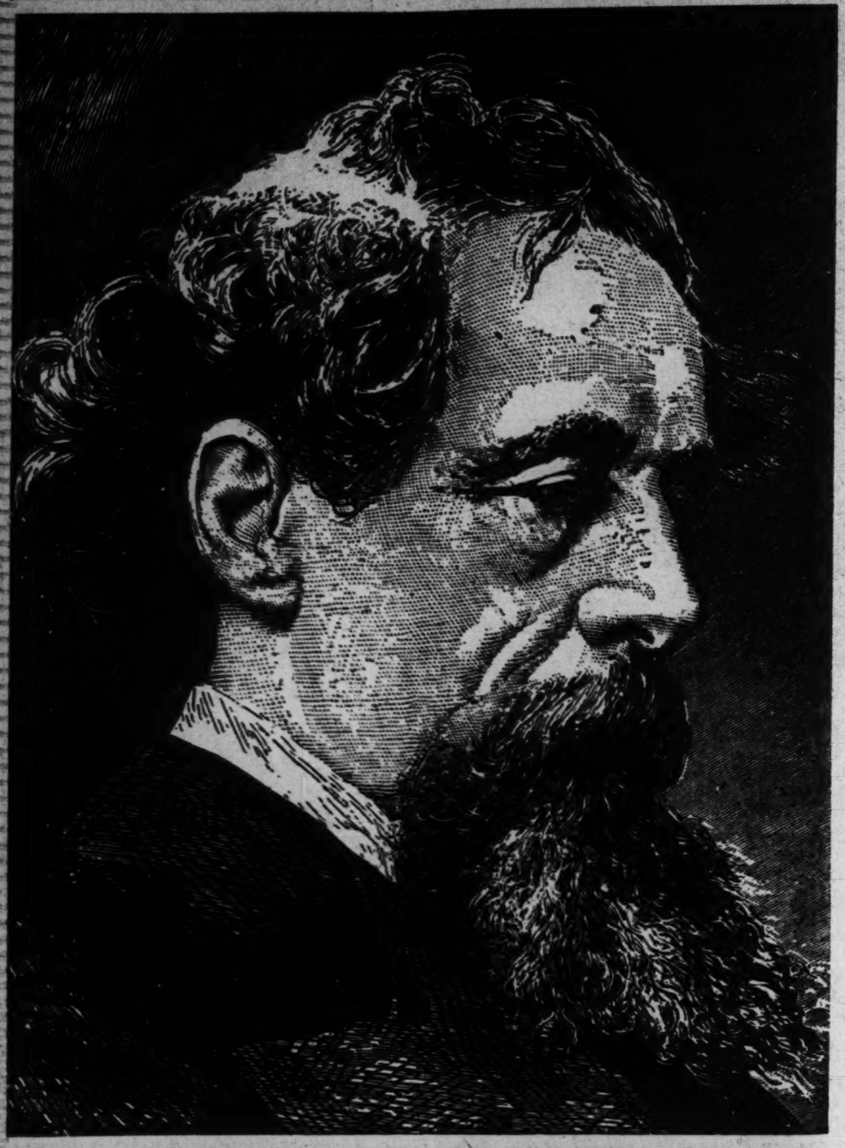
THE HITHERTO UNPUBLISHED MANUSCRIPT OF A MASTER WRITER



THE LIFE OF OUR LORD

BY

CHARLES DICKENS

Written for His Children in 1849 . . . . and Kept as a Precious Family Secret for 85 Years

In 1849 Charles Dickens wrote, for the teaching of his own children, "The Life of Our Lord." Himself devout, it was his wish to tell the story of the New Testament in terms so simple as to be clear even to the youngest of his children.

It was Dickens' wish, too, that the manuscript be held within the family so long as any of its members lived. This wish was respected. For 85 years the manuscript has been kept a closely guarded secret; it has never been published or exhibited. Only recently have restrictions upon publication been removed by the death of Sir Henry Fielding Dickens, last surviving child of the author.

The unprecedented sum of $210,000, or $15.00 a word, was paid for the publication rights alone, the manuscript remaining with the family.

First publication of this work by one of the greatest figures in English prose writing will be a literary event that could happen only once in a lifetime. "The Life of Our Lord" will appear in 14 daily installments.

Grant Announces Plans for Play-Offs In Association

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 3. OFFICIAL announcement of the play-off plan for the American Hockey Association was made here late today by William F. Grant, president of the league.

The championship will be decided in a semifinal and final series in which the three top teams will participate. The second and third place teams will engage in the semifinals of two home and home games, and the first place team then will meet the winner of the semifinals.

TULSA, Ok., March 3.—Paddy Paddon, leading goal scorer of the American Hockey Association, counted twice for the St. Louis Flyers and gave them a 2 to 1 victory over the Tulsa Oilers here tonight before a crowd of 4000 persons.

It was the tenth triumph in the last 12 games for the St. Louis club and gave them a sweep of the three games which they played on the road this week, something almost unheard of in hockey.

Immediately after the contest the Flyers departed for St. Louis, where they are scheduled to oppose the Oklahoma City team at The Arena tomorrow night.

Two Points Out of Lead.

The victory left St. Louis but one game or two points behind the league leading Kansas City team and safely entrenched in second place by a margin of five games, or 10 points.

Although the Flyers had two men in the penalty box at one time, once during the first period, the Tulsa offensive was unable to click and it was St. Louis that held a lead of one goal at the end of the first 20 minutes.

The Flyers goal popped up after the two teams had battled evenly for three-fourths of the period. Rodden, new Tulsa center, lost the puck to McPherson in center ice and the Shrimp, Paddon and Hughes dashed into Tulsa territory, leaving two Oiler forwards out of the play. Shrimp bore in on Levine's right and cut loose a shot from a sharp angle. The puck glanced out and Paddon, who was waiting uncovered on Karakas' left, slapped it into the net before the goalie could get in position to block it.

Flyers' Defense Good.

The Oilers started an offensive in an effort to recover the lost ground, and Sonny Wakeford got through both St. Louis lines. Swen-

A Real Derby Hope.

THE most talked-of horse in Miami today is Time Supply, which appears a sure winner of the Florida Derby, on all known form of the eligibles, and a real hope in the Kentucky Derby.

Butler Five Defeats Bears, 53 to 47: Kern, In Last Game, Stars

By James M. Gould.

Floyd Kern, former Clayton High School star and retiring captain of the Washington University basketball team, played one of the best games of his life, although the Bears lost to Butler, Missouri Valley champion, 53 to 47, in the final game of the season, last night at the Washington Field House.

Most of the season Kern has been off on his shooting, so it was not much of a surprise to his mates when he did not start in the contest. In the second half, Coach Don White gave Kern a chance to redeem himself, which he did by counting seven field goals, 16 points, during the 20 minutes.

Largely due to Kern's efforts, the Bears came from behind a 26 to 17 handicap at the half and finally managed to count 23 points while Butler was held to seven, to tie the score at 40-all. Here, Bob Mautz put Washington out in front with a long, side field goal, but Rissner tied it again with a goal for Butler.

Washington's attack fizzled in the waning minutes and Butler picked up to tally nine points to five for Washington.

The victory was Butler's ninth in 10 conference starts, its only defeat coming at the hands of Grinnell early in the season. Washington won four of its 10 Valley games and finished with a season record of seven victories and 12 defeats.

Not Overworked.

THE offspring of Time Maker-Surplice cannot be figured on the basis of the average winter-raced three-year-old. To begin with, as a juvenile he was only sent to the post five times, the first occasion being as late as Sept. 27.

His last race as a two-year-old was Nov. 8 in the Pimlico Handicap, in which he ran second. His two-year-old record for the five starts included three firsts and second—fair enough considering that he faced good horses.

This year he was not sent to the post until Feb. 3, when he won the Hialeah Stakes, covering the six furlongs in 1:11 2-5. His only other start this year was in the Bahama Handicap and in this race he displayed his real quality, winning a seven-eighths-mile event in 1:23, only one-fifth of a second over the track record. He carried 122 pounds and he won as he pleased.

Meade Not Available.

THUS Time Supply has been raced only seven times and has won five of his starts, finished second once and out of the money on only one occasion. That was the time Don Meade did not have the mount. Unfortunately, Don Meade, being under contract to Col. E. R. Bradley, will not have the mount on Time Supply in the Kentucky classic.

Don't let that discourage you.

MARQUETTE FIVE HANDS BILLIKENS THIRD STRAIGHT DEFEAT, 30-21

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, March 3.—After putting up a toe to toe fight through the first half, Mike Nyikos' St. Louis University Billikens wilted in the second round here tonight and succumbed before a high-powered Marquette University quintet, 30 to 21.

It was St. Louis' third defeat in three nights, and Loyola is to be met at Chicago, Monday night, before the return home.

Superior ball-handling on the part of Marquette, including control of the center jump, and an unusually large number of missed shots tell the story of tonight's game. After the local Blue and Gold cagemen took an early 2 to 0 lead, Herb Fash's free toss and Arnie Arenz's short ringer put the Bills in front, 3 to 2, their only advantage of the game.

Marquette then romped to a 10 to 3 lead with Rubado, Mullen, Rasmusen and Kukla all tallying, only to have St. Louis spurt and tie the count on two goals by Charley Dirksen, one by Arenz and a free toss by Fash. The count was equaled again at 12-all, but the locals spun out a 15 to 12 edge to rest on at the intermission.

The Hilltoppers, playing without their high-scoring forward, Ray Morstadt, were more organized in the second half and hurried to a 24 to 14 lead before Coach Bill Chandler began shooting in the reserves. The Billikens were breaking faster in the last 10 minutes, but could not connect from the floor. Dirksen and Cochran added

Cunningham Breaks Big Six Half Mile And One Mile Marks

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 3.—Glenn Cunningham ran to new conference records in the mile and 880-yard races and led the Jayhawkers of the University of Kansas to victory in the Big Six indoor track and field carnival here tonight.

Cunningham also took a turn with the mile relay quartet which gave Kansas its decisive margin after a neck-and-neck battle with Oklahoma in the three-way scramble for the title the Sooners and Nebraska shared last year.

The point totals: Kansas, 41.4; Oklahoma, 35.3; Nebraska, 22.25; Iowa State, 17.5; Kansas State, 8.85; Missouri, 6.5.

Cunningham never was challenged in winning the mile and half-mile runs far below his best times for those distances, but good enough to better the conference indoor mark.

Betters Own Mark.

He ran the mile in 4:20.3, clipping 1½ seconds off the mark he set last year in bettering by one-tenth of a second the record he first knocked off as a sophomore two years ago. He thus broke the mile record in all three Big Six indoor meets in which he participated.

Cunningham's half-mile time was 1:57.8. The former record for the 880-yard run was 1:59.7 by Bob Ostergaard of Nebraska in 1931. The Kansas captain was timed at 52 seconds flat in anchoring the Jayhawk relay team which beat Oklahoma in their duel.

Heye Lambertus, Nebraska's National A. A. U. champion timbertopper, cleared five hurdles in the 60-yard low barrier event twice in 6.8 seconds, lopping two-tenths of a second of the record established by Bob Hager of Iowa State and equaled by Lambertus in both the last two conference indoor meets.

Lambertus Equals World Mark.

Lambertus was clocked at the same time in the semifinals and finals, and coaches expressed the opinion that his mark equaled the world record for the "hybrid" distance, which is sometimes run with only four hurdles.

Cunningham and Lambertus were the only creators of new records, but Bart Ward of Oklahoma played a star role by winning the quarter-mile dash for the third straight year, taking the broad jump to score a "double" and, in the relay, cutting down the advantage Theno Graves turned over to Cunningham on the final quarter.

Kansas won six first places, Oklahoma four and Nebraska two in the 12 events.

HALLAHAN AND HAINES, IN CAMP, PREDICT GOOD YEAR FOR BIRDS

By J. Roy Stockton

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 3.—Jess "Pop" Haines and "Wild Bill" Hallahan, who have played prominent parts in Cardinal drives to pennants, are here awaiting the first contingent of Redbirds, scheduled to start spring training Monday morning, and they agree that the St. Louis National League club has a splendid chance to win this year in one of the hottest flag races John Heydler's league has ever seen.

"It's hard to pick the way they're going to finish," Haines declared. "Who's the toughest? Well, don't overlook that Chicago club. It will be plenty tough."

"Ain't you right," Hallahan agreed. "Look at that power in the outfield—Stephenson, Klein, Herman and Cuyler. And I'm looking for Herman to come back and have a good year again. But don't forget we have a smart chance ourselves. We lost last year because—well, I guess because it just wasn't our year. And then we didn't get that extra base hit where we needed it. But give us another right-handed hitter and the extra power will put us over. Jim Collins is due for a great season. He never has played as good as he can. And watch Medwick. I believe he'll be the best outfielder in the league."

"If Mancuso Is So Sick—"

"Pittsburgh won't be soft," Haines interrupted. "Not that they were soft for us last season, but I mean they'll be tougher for all the clubs this year. I don't know who'll play second, but they'll be hard to beat. And New York has a good ball club."

"Terry will have his troubles, though, Jess," Hallahan suggested, "if Gus Mancuso is as sick as I hear he is. They tell me he won't be able to work for a month and maybe he'll be weak all year. Can you imagine what that can do to the pitching staff? Those New York pitchers have lots of confidence in Gus. Somebody will crack one with Gus out of there and the pitcher won't have any more confidence. Last season they didn't even want Gus to take time out when he had a broken finger."

Haines, who yielded only two and a fraction earned runs a game, winning nine and losing six for the Cards of 1933, is in excellent condition and so is Hallahan, who won 16 and lost 13 for the club that finished fifth.

Hallahan 10 Pounds Lighter.

"My arm never felt better," Bill told the writer. "I've been here for two weeks, running around the park, and in the last few days I've thrown hard enough to know that the old wing is perfect. I expect to have a good year and I think we have a great chance to win. We'll start off with a different spirit. The club got down last season and couldn't brace. How about Frisch? Well, I think he ought to make one of the game's greatest managers, with his background. You know, he was the game's greatest second-baseman and he served under John McGraw as he was learning the game. You couldn't beat that combination."

Hallahan is a bit lighter than he

CARDS' FIRST SQUAD DEPARTS FOR CAMP; BROWNS GO TODAY

FRISCH AND HORNSBY IN FIRST FULL SEASONS AS MANAGERS OF CLUBS

By W. J. McGoogan

A squad of Cardinal players in charge of Frank Frisch, manager, left Union Station yesterday afternoon bound for Bradenton, Fla., where the club is scheduled to open its spring training tomorrow. By this evening both St. Louis' major league teams will have started the move south, for a squad of Browns is scheduled to depart this afternoon in charge of Willis E. Johnson, secretary.

Bill Walker, southpaw pitcher, was the only player considered regular who went with Frisch. The rest of the party was composed of recruit Pitchers Robert Klinger and Ed Greer, Coach Clyde Wares and Secretary Clarence Lloyd. In addition Luke Bucklin, a pitcher attached to the Springfield, Mo., team and Ira Smith, Rochester hurler, entrained for the purpose of pitching in batting practice and picking up experience in the big league way of doing things.

Four Men Unsigned.

Frisch said there was no change in the status of those who had not signed contracts up to the time of his departure. They are Pitchers Flint Rhem and Paul Dean, Outfielders George Watkins and Ernie Orsatti.

Rhem and Paul Dean are due in Bradenton Monday and will not be classed as holdouts unless they fail to appear by that time, while Watkins and Orsatti are scheduled to report with the second squad Friday. Rhem frequently does not send in his contract but takes it to camp with him, while Paul Dean seems to be set for an argument before he signs.

Branch Rickey, vice-president and general manager of the club, started for Bradenton by motor Thursday noon, and Sam Breadon, president, departed by automobile yesterday. It is likely that contract difficulties will all be ironed out at Bradenton, although the Cardinal officials did not seem to be worried about holdouts and their attitude indicated the players could either sign or not, as they saw fit.

Frisch Satisfied With Squad.

Frisch made no prediction before he left as to what the Cardinals would do in the pennant race, but stated that he was well pleased with his squad and thought the team would give a good account of itself in the difficult campaign which he anticipates in the National League during the coming season.

Jack Rothrock and Joe Medwick, Cardinal outfielders, are the only two players in St. Louis who are scheduled to leave with the "second squad," and they likely will depart Wednesday. Otherwise there will be no concerted movement from here, as the other players have merely been ordered to be in Bradenton by next Friday.

First Game March 14.

The Cardinals' first exhibition game is scheduled with the New York Giants at Bradenton on March 14 and from then until April 8, they play 21 games in Florida, then jump north to St. Louis to begin a five-game spring series with the Browns at Sportsman's Park, which will precede the opening of the major league season.

In addition to the Giants, the Cardinals play the Athletics, Phillies, Braves, Red Sox, Detroit, Yankees and Cincinnati in Florida, as well as Rochester and Columbus, Cardinal farm teams of the International League and American Association, respectively.

Four Brownies to Depart.

With Willis Johnson will go Brownie Pitchers Hank McDonald and Edward J. Baecht; Outfielder George Puccinelli, and Third Baseman Harland Clift; Trainer Doc White and Scout Ray Cahill.

Rogers Hornsby, manager, will join the club at West Palm Beach, after a journey from Hot Springs, Ark., where he has been teaching in

BROWNIES, IN CAMP, THINK TEAM WILL BE MUCH IMPROVED

By John E. Wray.

Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 3.—There will be a new spirit on the Browns, this year, to judge from remarks by members of the advance guard now at the local training camp.

"We have an improved team, a different management and additions to the playing strength which ought to help the Browns make a much better showing this year," was the opinion voiced by Sam West, named a member of the American League's all-star team last year, a view that was indorsed by Irving Burns and Pitcher Hadley, the other members of the early arriving squad.

Of the three players here, Hadley and Burns are from Massachusetts, West from Rule, Tex. They deferred their first workouts until Monday, when the first regular squad is expected to arrive. The wives of all three players, now here, came with them.

Pitching Looks Good, West Says.

"We were in a terrible fix last year, due to a shortage of players on the roster," commented West. "This year the team appears sound everywhere, with plenty of replacements. Looks like the pitching ought to rank high. Our outfield includes some fine players and should hit well."

"If Scharein can come back to his third base form of two years ago with the Browns, or the new infielders come through, the defense will be complete.

"With a hitting punch, the club ought to do right smart against even the more favored teams."

West thinks the Washington club, the Yanks and the Tigers, will cause trouble.

Warns About Red Sox.

"But those Red Sox—look out for them," he warned. "That team is just what I heard a radio speaker say about it the other day. If things go well it can finish first—or it can finish last, if things go wrong."

"But I don't figure things can break very wrong with a team that has pitchers like Grove, Walberg, Rhodes and Welland on its list, with Ostermueller of Rochester last year, as an almost sure prospect to make the first string pitching staff and with veterans like Pipgras and Pennock in the background. This fellow Rhodes is good enough for any club in my opinion."

If the Boston team can step up it's hitting, "Bucky C. Harris is likely to surprise the league yet."

Burns Expects Better Season.

Hadley, the Browns "iron man" of 1933, thinks the new deal will help the Browns greatly and incidentally help his own showing, due

President of Creighton Says "Big Time Football" Is Crooked

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., March 3.—Rev. Patrick J. Mahan, S. J., president of Creighton University, believes "'big time football' is crooked."

In a copyrighted article appearing in the current Creighton Alumnus, official organ of the school's alumni association, Father Mahan wrote:

"I am convinced, and reasonably so, that no regular player is on a 'big team' without being paid. He does not, out of his own pocket pay for his tuition, fees, board and lodgings. Yet authorities of unversities decry the subsidizing of athletics.

"If you sit in at a crooked game, you must be crooked if you expect to win. Creighton is not going to be crooked. 'Big time football' is crooked."

Father Mahan, who came to Creighton from Loyola University of Chicago, asserted that if presidents of the universities where "big time" teams are gathered are ignorant "of these corrupting conditions, it is because they want to be."

Parts of the president's article analyzed replies received to a questionnaire recently mailed to all alumni by the association. An analysis of the replies, which dealt in part with the conditions in the Creighton athletic department, is protected by copyright and cannot be reproduced.

Creighton, a member of the Missouri Valley Conference, recently signed Eddie Hickey, an alumnus, to succeed Arthur Stark, who resigned, as head football coach.

CARNERA'S EXTREME SIZE ALIENATES CROWD'S SYMPATHY

OFFICIALS ALSO WATCH PRIMO FOR TECHNICAL RULE VIOLATIONS

By John E. Wray.
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 3.—Size has it handicaps.

This thing of being a man mountain is not what it's cracked up to be. Ask Primo Carnera, the world's heavyweight boxing champion.

There's no sympathy for the big man—the little fellow gets it all. Outweighing all his worth-while foes from 50 to 80 pounds, there isn't a chance for Carnera to defend his title and have the crowd's sympathy. That's all for the underdog.

"Big bum" was the most friendly word he heard when he launched his first tour of the United States, and after the Loughran fight at Miami Thursday, in which he all but took the little man apart, all he heard when he left the ring was "you're a fine champion, you big bum."

That isn't the only angle. Official as well as public sympathy is apt to be with the little man. The smaller fellow can get away with anything. The big man doesn't dare to make many mistakes, or out he goes.

When you consider, in addition, to all this, that the big fellow earns what might be called chicken feed, the man mountain's life is not such a happy one.

An Undesirable Alien?

In one sense, our present champion is an alien, undesirable. While he was still new, his freakish build, his enormous feet and those wolf fangs which he shows when he fights, were novelties that drew cash.

Primo's size is no longer a novelty, and since it has been demonstrated that he is not a man-killer in the ring, despite his fearsome appearance, public interest is now assessing him merely on his fighting merits. And on this ground he is still unconvincing to many.

Because, with all his size, he can't put opponents away, he is being discredited. Add the fact that he is foreign born and it explains his undesirability to most fans.

Give the Devil His Due.

It seems to have been pretty well demonstrated that Carnera is champion solely because he is too big to be bothered by the blows of any of the candidates of today.

Still, so long as the rules of the ring do not limit weight, he will have to be given credit for his superiority even though Beef is at the bottom of it.

The public would like to see Primo arrayed against a Jack Dempsey. Then the extreme of Beef and of Punch would meet. And that would be one case in which the betting would favor the good little man over the good big one.

Spare Us, Mr. Promoter.

It's time for promoters of championship ring shows to give the public a little attention. We crave relief from the preliminary programs usually found preceding title matches.

Often there are half a dozen events scheduled before the title event. And nearly always these are just so much tripe. Custom disposes things so that the sparring partners of both camps are pitted against one another. It's just one way of helping to pay off the boys for their labor with the principals.

It's nice for the partners, but rough on the public as a rule.

Only occasionally is a really good preliminary scrap on a title fight card. The public would be content with two good preliminaries and dispense with the others. It would rather view the parade of challengers, champions and famous ring men, than see the average curtain raiser.

The best way to handle the title fight situation would be to bill the big event at 9 o'clock, following say two preliminaries. If any persons were interested in semiwindups and secondary features, they would be willing to remain after the championship.

The New Southern Idol.

Joe Knight is being billed as the boy who will make the South forget young Stribling.

But there are those who think differently. One of them is Harry Graham, Miami referee, who was third man in the ring when Knight and Maxie Rosenbloom fought for the title.

"I couldn't see Knight as a champion," commented Graham to this writer. "He has a fault that always will make him unpopular with those who know real fighting. He leads and grabs. You can't make him keep fighting—at least, I couldn't, and I got myself disliked for trying to."

(Harry was suspended for 30 days by the Florida Commission after the title bout.)

"The truth is that Knight has a real punch and could be made a dangerous fighter. But his bad ring habits, as shown against Rosenbloom, will prevent his going far, unless he changes."

Stillman's Chance.

Frank Bachmann, manager of Maxie Rosenbloom, is watching Al Stillman's fights closely. Frank wants Stillman to beat Natie Brown and then whip Joe Knight. That would mean a championship match with Maxie Rosenbloom.

Bachmann thinks a record like that would put Stillman across, even in New York, for a championship about.

From here it looks as though Knight would be a better title attraction in New York than Al. Maxey could always come back and pick up Stillman for a bout, provided he beat Knight.

Perhaps Rosey doesn't like Knight's southpaw delivery any too well. In fact, Bachmann has hinted that southpaws, like polecats, ought to do all their scrapping among themselves.

Both are so difficult for outsiders to handle.

Here's Hoping—Hornsby and Frisch Start First Full Season

BEAUMONT WINS SWIMMING MEET; ROOSEVELT 2D

Only one new record was broken as Beaumont won the second annual City High School League swimming meet with 35 points at Wilson Pool, Washington University last night. Roosevelt with 28, was second. Cleveland was third with 22 points, Soldan, fourth with 11 points and McKinley and Central each had five points.

The lone mark to go by the boards was that in the 50-yard free style, which O. Liston swam in 27.6 seconds, one second under the mark set up by Herb Buchman, last year. In addition, a new mark set by J. Shaw of Cleveland in the preliminaries in the 100-yard back stroke of 1:15.2 was allowed to stand. The old record, set by Herb Buchman of Cleveland, was 1:15.4.

Liston of Beaumont was the only swimmer to get two firsts, winning the fancy diving in addition to the 50-yard free style.

Paddon Leads Hockey Scorers, One Point Ahead of Palangio And Mulvihill of Kansas City

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 3.—Paddy Paddon of St. Louis, by a one-point margin, clung tenaciously to his newly-acquired American Hockey Association individual scoring lead today, although he was held to a gain of one assist during the week's play.

Compilations of scores made in all games played this week, including those of Friday night, credit the Flyer with 18 goals and 9 assists, or 27 points.

One point in arrear of the league-leader were a teammate, Pete Palangio, and Ollie Mulvihill of Kansas City, each with 26 points. Mulvihill went on a scoring spree in a game with Tulsa Friday night and scored three goals and an assist. He now is credited with 22 goals and four assists. Palangio sank two goals in a game with the Oklahoma City Warriors Friday night, and an assist made earlier in the week, increased his total to 26 points also.

Des Jardins Moves Up.

Vic Des Jardins of Tulsa, coming along rapidly the last few weeks, sank three goals during the week to run his batting average up to 16 goals and 8 assists.

Mulvihill, however, regained possession of the league's goal-scoring honors, his total of 22 being four more than the 18 recorded for Paddon.

Mickey Murray of St. Louis, again headed the goalers with a percentage of .943, followed in second place by Sammy "Porky" Levine of Kansas City, with .939. Mike Karakas of Tulsa, climbed ahead of Vern Turner of Oklahoma City. Karakas is now in third place with .933 and Turner last with .927.

Big Bob Still Bad.

Bob Hughes of Tulsa continued his "bad man" ways, adding six minutes to his total of time spent in the penalty box. Altogether for the season so far he has spent 93 minutes in the "cooler." Leo Carbol of St. Louis was on his good behavior during the week and was not penalized. He has spent 57 minutes in the box.

On the fourth rung of the scoring ladder was Bobby Burns of Oklahoma City, with 22 points. In fifth place was MacKenzie of Kansas City, with 21.

How other leading scorers stand: Sixth—Rouseton and Wakeford, both of Tulsa, 20 points; seventh—Scott, Oklahoma City, and McPherson, St. Louis, 19; eighth—O. Hansen, Oklahoma City, 18; ninth—Clark, Oklahoma City; Halderson, Tulsa, and Gordon, Kansas City, 17; tenth—Healey and E. Hansen, both of Kansas City, 16.

Sugar Creeks to Play Y. M. H. A.

One of the most important rounds of games of the season will be played in the St. Louis Basketball Association at Maplewood High School tonight when the Wolfs meet the Golubs and the Sugar Creeks tangle with the Y. M. H. A. in two features of a three-game program.

The third contest is an especially arranged meeting between the Holy Family and St. Luke's Church teams, between which considerable rivalry exists as the first named quintet is made up of former McBride High players and St. Luke's of ex-C. B. C. stars.

Holy Family reached the semi-finals of the recent Post-Dispatch tournament and St. Luke's went to the quarter-finals. This game will start at 7 o'clock.

TILDEN TROUPE RETURNS FRIDAY WITH COCHET AND MARTIN PLAA

By Davison Obear.

Martin Plaa, French professional tennis player now touring this country with Henri Cochet, his fellow compatriot, and the Americans, William T. Tilden and Ellsworth Vines, has already proven that he can play the game as well as teach it. Plaa has been the coach of the French tennis team which held the supremacy in Davis Cup play for seven years.

Along with his professional instruction, Plaa has won many matches in Europe. Prior to the time when Cochet deserted the amateur ranks, Plaa held the professional championship of all Europe. His style of play stresses sound ground strokes and back court play. He goes to the net only for a "kill" shot after he has forced his opponent out of position.

Plaa is fast establising himself as a favorite with American tennis fans, judging from the enthusiasm manifested in New York, Boston, Montreal and other cities where the Franco-American matches are being played.

Troupe Here This Week-End.

The four professional stars will play at the Arena here next Friday and Saturday, March 9 and 10. On the first night, Plaa will meet Tilden, while Cochet plays Vines. A doubles match with the Americans against the French will follow the singles. The Saturday schedule brings Vines against Plaa and Cochet against Tilden. The team winning the best three out of five matches will be the winner of the St. Louis series.

Dr. Frank E. Diekneite, referee, announced that Ted Baehr and Ike Macy would serve as umpires, with Vernon Tietjen as alternate. The linesmen selected were Charles McMillin, McNeill Smith, Herbert Weinstock, Charles Barnes, Wray Brown, Dr. J. Forrest Ailworth, Karl P. Kammann, J. H. Witherspoon, Donald J. Beebe, Woodward Brown, Dr. Edgar M. Carson, Russell Hadden, Reginald Hartnett, Dr. Ray Hollinshead, Elmer Koster, John E. Mooney, William Proffitt, Sidney Smith and Leo F. Boldenweck.

Special ticket prices have been made for high school and grammar school students and Scouts. The prices will be 55 cents for one night and 90 cents for both nights.

College students presenting student tax coupons and public park players with 1933 permits will be admitted for 75 cents for one night and $1.35 for both nights.

Regular reserved seat prices are $3.30 for boxes and special floor seats, $2.20, $1.65 and $1.10 for balcony seats. Tickets are on sale at the Coronado Hotel, sporting goods stores and at the office of Karl Hodge, 904 Security Building.

"You Can Fool a Batter."

Bill by the way is still a bachelor one of the few of the old Cardinals to stay that way.

"Oh I don't know" Bill blushed. "I guess I have enough trouble with the right and left handed hitters. Or maybe I'd better put it another way. 'I guess it's harder to fool a girl than it is to fool the hitters. Maybe some day though. Understand I'm not a woman hater. No, sir."

Other members of the Cardinal family here are Dr. Harrison Weaver, the club trainer; Jim Winford, pitcher, and Charley Gelbert, the great shortstop, now on the voluntarily retired list. Charley reports encouraging improvement in his leg—he suffered an accidental gunshot wound while hunting in November, 1932—and he expects to play big league baseball before the 1934 season is very old.

Natie Brown, Al Stillman's Next Opponent, Is Rated as "New Deal Heavyweight" by Billy McCarney

His "new deal heavyweight." That's what Billy McCarney, his manager, calls Natie Brown, Washington, D. C., heavyweight, with whom McCarney will arrive in St. Louis early tomorrow for Natie's 10-round punchfest with Al Stillman of St. Louis in the Coliseum ring Wednesday night. The bout heads a program of four fights comprising 34 scheduled rounds of action arranged by Eddie Byrne, matchmaker for the Jackson Jr. Post of the American Legion.

Highly respected in St. Louis as he is every other place where boxing is known, chiefly because he is the last word in integrity, McCarney has been prominently associated with the cauliflower industry for many, many years. He has managed at one time or another such outstanding figures of the ring as Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion; Charley Weinert, Luther McCarthy and Carl Morris, to mention only a few.

"I have dubbed Brownie the 'new deal heavywight'," McCarney wrote in a letter that reached Matchmaker Byrne's office yesterday, "because he is certainly doing his share to lift boxing out of the depression stage into which it has fallen. I blame it on the near-sightedness of matchmakers. They seem only able to see the home fighters.

Brown Rated Smart.

"Brown is a smart heavyweight who combines hitting ability with natural cleverness. He once gave Max Baer a real tough argument out on the coast and had none the worst of it when the final bell clanged. Going into the training camp of Max Schmeling when Max was preparing to defend his title against the late Young Stribling, he smacked Schmeling about the ring so badly in two workouts that he was run out of camp. 'Where is Natie Brown?' was a pet question of the sports writers when they suddenly missed him."

McCarney then goes on to tell how Brown gave Tony Galento, the slugger from Newark, N. J., a thorough trouncing in Pittsburgh. Just previously, Billy points out, Galento knocked out George Panka, Smoky City idol, in 14 seconds.

"Six straight victories in Cleveland by Brown caused Johnny Risko to pass up a match with my protege," McCarney continues. "Then when Damon Runyon was shouting the praises of Vincent Parelli, his Argentine giant, deploring the fact that the big fellows were ignoring him on account of his ferocity, Natie accepted a match with him and that was the beginning of the end of Parelli. Brown gave him a severe beating."

TO BOX STILLMAN

NATIE BROWN.

Moving over to Boston, Brown scored three successive victories there and created a demand for a Brown-Tony Shucco match, according to Billy. Brown accepted, says McCarney, but the bout was never closed.

Preliminary Bouts.

In the other three matches on Wednesday night's program, Babe Davis, local Jewish heavyweight, faces Pietro Corri of New York in the 10-round semiwindup; Joey Parks, clever local middleweight, trades punches with Earl Taylor, also of St. Louis, in the eight-round second preliminary, while a pair of featherweights, Ocie Merritt of St. Louis, and Joe Forchione of Cleveland, are to go six rounds in the opening event. Stillman will head all the fighters on hand in a workout this afternoon at the National A. A. gymnasium.

WRAY'S COLUMN

There are other jockeys. And if Time Supply wins the Florida Derby on St. Patrick's day in the same form that he has shown in his other races, this year, he undoubtedly will be close to favoritism when the Churchill Downs race is run.

Because he has not been overworked and because he is not likely to go to the post more than once or twice before the Florida Derby is run, the usual winter racing objections to this colt will be waived. To say the least, he will bear watching.

In the Money.

HIALEAH, America's most beautiful—and most artificial—race track, is surely in the money this year.

At the track, last Wednesday, the official total for 27 days of the meeting showed the mutuel pools had handled $7,077,000, or $3,000,000 more than last year.

Last week the mutuels reached the peak of the season with $1,780,502 or an average of almost $300,000 daily. Last year's average during the similar period was $180,000.

It makes the difference between profit and loss.

Bad for New Orleans.

THE success of Hialeah and Tropical Park this year seems to promise serious trouble for the New Orleans race tracks, which for so long almost monopolized winter racing.

The superior climate of Florida, the more beautiful surroundings, the higher purses and the greater attendance seem to make it certain that Florida definitely will displace New Orleans as the chief center of winter horse racing.

After the Dopesters.

HIALEAH officials are making a sincere effort to stop the doping of race horses. Saliva tests under the direction of the track veterinarian have been and are still being made, resulting in action, in one or two instances. Twelve inspectors keep watch on the stables.

Although this vigilance has resulted in discontinuance of the use of narcotics, to the surprise of observers here, it seems to have made little difference in the form of the horses.

"The recent charges made against prominent stables have shaken up wealthy Jockey Club horse owners considerably," said a New York turfman. "The assertion that the names of more than 100 stables using dope were on file in Washington, many owned by men high in financial and social circles, resulted in a vague denial by William Woodward. It was in true Jockey Club style and consisted of vague generalities and a lot of indignation.

"The truth is that these owners will henceforth be made responsible for the acts of their trainers. They must clean out their own stables or face the consequences, thus removing some of the burden from track officials.

"To give them due credit, the owners are awakened at last and will clean house. That will make for a much better and cleaner racing slate than has existed for many years."

The Florida Racing Commission has been very active. Owners using stimulants of a non-narcotic nature thought they were exempt from interference. But the Florida Commission has come to the front and prohibited the use of ANY stimulant. If enforced, Florida will have the purest racing in the country.

Betting for New York.

NEW YORK is destined to have a new race track betting law, according to New York officials on the ground here. It was held up at the previous session of the Legislature.

Apparently the word got around last time, that there was a barrel of pork being tapped in consideration of favorable legislation. But that was a social error, it seems. There was no "pork." Also, there was no legislation.

This year the legislators have decided to give the racing men a favorable law, even without pork, it is said, here. What form it will take, however, is still a mystery. Horsemen all want the bookmaking system, rather than the mutuels. Tracks naturally want mutuels because the revenue is more certain.

The thousands of New York race track men now in Florida prefer the bookmaker plan, according to several spokesmen. That's because a bettor, under the bookmaking system, knows at the time he makes the bet exactly what he will be paid if his horse wins.

Also, he knows that he will be betting against a bookmaking bankroll, instead of his own, as in the mutuels.

Mancuso May Join the Giants Late in March

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 3.

THE physician attending Gus Mancuso, who has been ill of typhoid fever for five weeks, said today he probably would be able to report to the New York Giants' spring training camp "the latter part of this month."

Mancuso was the first-string catcher for the world's champions last year.

The physician said Mancuso was "getting along fine" and probably would leave the hospital next week.

MUNICI

ST. HEDWIG TO PLAY GERMANS, TITLE HOLDERS, IN FIRST ROUND

First round matches in the elimination series to decide the Municipal Soccer League championship will be played this afternoon, with six teams in action. The Cleary, Fairgrounds No. 2 champions, "seeded" in the top half of the draw, drew a bye and will not swing into action until the semifinal round of play next Sunday. The best two out of three sereis for the title, now held by the German Sport Club, will begin March 11.

The German Club, which again won the Carondelet Park honors, was "seeded" in the lower half and in the first round will oppose St. Hedwig, Concordia Park, title winner at Sherman Park. In gaining the city honors a year ago, the Germans won from the Clearys after dropping the opening match. While not as strong as a year ago, the club was, nevertheless, good enough to again gain a place in the title series.

The second contest in the lower half to be played at Carondelet Park will pit the Sunshines, winners of 15 consecutive matches in gaining the Forest Park honors, against the Spartons, champions of Sherman Park.

The winner of the match between the Minit Rubs of Fairground No. 4 and the Doyles of Fairground No. 3, to be contested at Fairground Park, will faec the Clearys in the semifinal.

For the eliminations, the double system of referees will be used. P. Garcia and H. Donovan will referee at Fairground, with J. Lydon and C. Brady as linesmen. Harry Ratican and Sam Dueker will referee in the St. Hedwig-German game, with Nick Reidy and A. Walsh running the lines. John Cradock and L. Robbins have been selected to referee in the Sparton-Sunshine match, with W. Rogles and Irv Wimer assisting.

All matches will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

In the eliminations, the halves will be of 45 minutes' duration, instead of 30, as was the case in the group contests. If, at the end of regulation time, a tie exists, the teams will play extra periods of 16 minutes each, divided into eight-minute halves. If, at the end of two extra periods, the score is still tie, the match will be called and the game replayed at a date to be set by the Executive Committee.

"The truth is that these owners will henceforth be made responsible for the acts of their trainers. They must clean out their own stables or face the consequences, thus removing some of the burden from track officials.

"To give them due credit, the owners are awakened at last and will clean house. That will make for a much better and cleaner racing slate than has existed for many years."

Betting for New York.

NEW YORK is destined to have a new race track betting law, according to New York officials on the ground here. It was held up at the previous session of the Legislature.

Apparently the word got around last time, that there was a barrel of pork being tapped in consideration of favorable legislation. But that was a social error, it seems. There was no "pork." Also, there was no legislation.

This year the legislators have decided to give the racing men a favorable law, even without pork, it is said, here. What form it will take, however, is still a mystery. Horsemen all want the bookmaking system, rather than the mutuels. Tracks naturally want mutuels because the revenue is more certain.

The thousands of New York race track men now in Florida prefer the bookmaker plan, according to several spokesmen. That's because a bettor, under the bookmaking system, knows at the time he makes the bet exactly what he will be paid if his horse wins.

Also, he knows that he will be betting against a bookmaking bankroll, instead of his own, as in the mutuels.

ST. HEDWIG TO PLAY GERMANS, TITLE HOLDERS, IN FIRST ROUND

First round matches in the elimination series to decide the Municipal Soccer League championship will be played this afternoon, with six teams in action. The Cleary, Fairgrounds No. 2 champions, "seeded" in the top half of the draw, drew a bye and will not swing into action until the semifinal round of play next Sunday. The best two out of three sereis for the title, now held by the German Sport Club, will begin March 11.

The German Club, which again won the Carondelet Park honors, was "seeded" in the lower half and in the first round will oppose St. Hedwig, Concordia Park, title winner at Sherman Park. In gaining the city honors a year ago, the Germans won from the Clearys after dropping the opening match. While not as strong as a year ago, the club was, nevertheless, good enough to again gain a place in the title series.

The second contest in the lower half to be played at Carondelet Park will pit the Sunshines, winners of 15 consecutive matches in gaining the Forest Park honors, against the Spartons, champions of Sherman Park.

The winner of the match between the Minit Rubs of Fairground No. 4 and the Doyles of Fairground No. 3, to be contested at Fairground Park, will faec the Clearys in the semifinal.

For the eliminations, the double system of referees will be used. P. Garcia and H. Donovan will referee at Fairground, with J. Lydon and C. Brady as linesmen. Harry Ratican and Sam Dueker will referee in the St. Hedwig-German game, with Nick Reidy and A. Walsh running the lines. John Cradock and L. Robbins have been selected to referee in the Sparton-Sunshine match, with W. Rogles and Irv Wimer assisting.

All matches will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

In the eliminations, the halves will be of 45 minutes' duration, instead of 30, as was the case in the group contests. If, at the end of two extra periods, the score is still tie, the match will be called and the game replayed at a date to be set by the Executive Committee.

STIX TEAM AND ANDERSONS PLAY IN LEAGUE GAME

In an effort to keep the club in condition for its western title series St. Louis (professional) Soccer League officials have scheduled a regular league doubleheader at Sportsman's Park for this afternoon. The national champion Stix, Baer & Fullers will oppose the Andersons in the second and feature match, with the Ben Millers and Minit Rubs meeting in the opener. Play begins at 2 o'clock.

There is a possibility that all the players on the Stix roster with the exception of Ollie Bohlman, halfback, who has just resumed practice, will get into the game. Regulars are scheduled to work for the other clubs.

Local officials are hopeful that the Sparta and Wieboldt clubs of Chicago will be able to play in the other cup semifinal this afternoon, sc that the western title series can begin here next Sunday. Two weeks ago, Sparta and the Wieboldts were unable to start, while last Sunday the match was terminated because of a blizzard with the score 0—0 in the second half.

The battle between the two Chicago clubs was described by Robert "Ribby" Murphy, local official, who will again referee tomorrow, as one of the hardest give and take affairs he had ever witnessed. He said it appeared that every player had a chip on his shoulder. Julius Hjulian, Wieboldt "goalie," and Billy Ogilvie, Sparta halfback, suffered injuries, but are expected to play today.

Already in camp are Sam West, outfielder; First-Baseman Jack Burns, and Pitcher Irving Hadley.

The Browns have a holdout problem also, but it is not considered serious, according to L. Carle McEvoy, general manager of the club. In fact, he says that none of the players has expressed dissatisfaction with the terms offered but a few have not sent in signed contracts, a habit with some of them. They merely take the papers to camp with them and sign there.

The Browns' first spring game is set for March 17 against the House of David team at West Palm Beach. They have 17 games scheduled in the south meeting the Giants and Brooklyn, the only major league teams they will encounter, and will play in addition a number of games with Buffalo of the International League. 20,000 SEE U. S. AMATEUR DEFEAT FOREIGNERS IN SPEEDBOAT RACE

By the Associated Press.

NEW SMYRNA, Fla., March 3.—Horace Tennes, slender amateur from Chicago, engineering student at Northwestern University, won the first of a series of international outboard motor boat races here today from a field of the fastest drivers in the world, representing six countries.

Another American amateur, Phil Ellsworth, Bucknell University student from Big Moose, N. Y., trailed Tennessee across the line 100 feet away, in a race that thrilled 20,000 spectators who climbed on their seats to cheer the American contingent.

Manuel Giro of Club Nautico de Barcelona, whipped his redhulled craft into third position to lead the foreign racers.

But it was all the way a race between the two American college boys. Ellsworth flashed across the starting line with the gun and led the field until half way on the second lap when Tennes spurted his Miss Hootnanny VI into the front and he was never headed.

Only seven of the field of 13 starters finished. The others came in in this order:

Baron Alain De La Rothschild of Paris, fourth; C. J. Turner of England, fifth; Francis Luckavecz, Hungary, sixth, and Edward Treglown, England, seventh.

Hungarian Pulls a "Cropper."

One of the thrills of an exciting day came at the end of the Class X international event, when the Hungarion entry Luckavecz, came a cropper in front of the judge's stand.

Speeding down the course, just after he finished the last lap of the 10-mile race, the Hungarian's craft struck the wake of a large boat, bounded fully 10 feet into the air, turned end over end and righted itself with Luckavecz hanging on. He was slightly hurt, but after receiving first aid at the judges' stand, walked smilingly away.

St. Louisan Has Mishap.

As a special attraction the Italian team, which arrived too late to compete in the international event, drove three Class 1 runabouts in the final race of the day. They borrowed entries to race with George H. Townsend, president of the American Power Boat Association.

The event was won by Antonio Becchi, who was trailed by his Italian teammates, Prince Carlo Ruspoli, Count Theo Rossi and Townsend, in order.

The two American professionals in the international race failed to finish. One, Arthur Sauerberg of St. Louis, overturning on the first curve of the dog-leg course early in the race.

FLYERS WIN FROM TULSA SIX, 2 TO 1

son tripped him to prevent a possible goal and was sent to the box. With four Oilers down on attack the going became hot and in about a minute Matte sent Des Jardins somersaulting and joined Swenson in the penalty quarters.

Only Shrimp, Leo Carbol and Paddon were left on the ice to help Murray defend the Flyer goal, but so alert were they that they kept the Oilers' five-man rush from producing even one good shot.

Big Slim Halderson was the hero of the play that enabled Tulsa to tie the score in the second period. After six minutes Slim took the puck from his own blue line and proceeded leisurely into Flyer territory. The defense took the disc away from him and Slim skated sedately around the cage.

He found A. Hughes unwarily in custody of the puck near the sideboards, and promptly took it away from him. In the meantime Bailey had skated down to join in any possible fun and Halderson flipped a long pass to him out of the corner of the rink. Bailey batted it in and the game was even again.

The Winning Goal.

The Flyers picked up their third period goal while Swenson was in the penalty box. The Oilers went down the ice five strong and in the scrimmage the puck was knocked into center ice. Paddon pounced on it there and with no obstacles in his path, found it easy to beat Karakas.

Straight defensive play became the order of the Flyers immediately after their goal. The Oilers tried to offset this by attacking with five men and the remaining five minutes were hectic ones with no more scoring.

to improved support in field and at bat.

Florida, which has been drenched in rain for an entire week, emerged from the deluge here, today, and the sun shone brightly and the wind dried up the moisture. The ball park is green and ready for the Hornsby troupe.

Irving Burns, one of the standouts among major league first sackers, hopes for an improvement over his past two campaigns. If that happens, he will just about move to the head of the class among major league first basemen.

All three players spent the afternoon, not to mention a few dollars, at the Hialeah racetrack.

FLYERS TO PLAY OKLAHOMA CITY HERE TONIGHT

The high-flying St. Louis Flyers will oppose Oklahoma City at the Arena tonight in an American Association hockey game, the first of five contests in which the St. Louis club will engage this week.

Three of the Flyers' games will be on home ice, Tulsa calling Tuesday night and again next Sunday night, while the Flyers make a trip to Tulsa Thursday, thence to Kansas City for a battle Friday night.

Less than three weeks remain of the regular schedule, which will determine the participants in the three-team playoff for the championship, and it appears now that St. Louis will win a berth.

Tonight's game is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock and the prospects are for one of the best crowds of the season.

BLESSED EVENT BREAKS TRACK RECORD WINNING HANDICAP

TWO HORSES DISQUALIFIED IN FOURTH RACE OF MIAMI CARD

Derby Odds on Mata Hari Are Cut to 8 to 1

BETTING odds on Mata Hari to win the Kentucky Derby have been cut from 10 to 1 to 8 to 1, according to Betting Commissioner Tom Kearney. The filly, owned by C. T. Fisher of Detroit, is still favored in the winter book.

Kearney reported that Abe Hollow, a New York bettor, had placed $1200 to win and $1200 to show on Mata Hari.

The Bradley entry—Bazaar, Baker's Dozen, Blue Again, Boy Valet—is now quoted at 12, 6 and 3, and the racing public is backing the entry rather heavily at those prices, Kearney says.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., March 3.—E. R. Bradley's Blessed Event, stepping up from the claiming ranks, today established a new track record of 2:02 4-5 for one and one-quarter miles in winning the $3000 Jockey Club Handicap at Hialeah Park. Springsteel, carrying the top weight of 126 pounds, was second, and Big Beau third in the field of nine.

Blessed Event, winner of four straight races before finishing second in his previous start, stepped home a length in front of Springsteel to beat the record of 2:03 3-5 made by Lightning Bolt two years ago. Despite his consistent record, which extends back to the fall meetings in Maryland, the Bradley four-year-old paid $12.90 for $2.

Springsteel, victorious in three successive races, was the first away from the barrier and under Jimmy Burke's handling set a burning pace to the head stretch. Blessed Event, with Don Meade up, never was far off the pace, however, and when given the word quickly moved into command as the leaders turned for home. In the drive for the finish line the Kentucky gelding easily held command while Springsteel beat the fast closing Big Beau two lengths for the place.

A Double Disqualification.

Two horses, Live One, in the lead at the finish, and Indian Salute, running third, in the fourth race, were disqualified by the stewards and Hokuao, which finished second, was posted as the winner.

Live One, Hokukao and Indian Salute, running over the turf course, reached the finish line heads apart. When the stewards disqualified Live One and Indian Salute it gave Hokuao his sixth straight victory. He paid $7.40 to $2. The time was 1:45 1-5.

Trangular was awarded the place and Vox Pop the show.

Coming to the sixteenth pole, Live One swerved and Indian Salute, just inside the leader, was carried with him and both horses ran outside of the course, or Beacon. Hokuao, on the outside, was not bothered. The latter ran extremely wide at the first turn and ran as if best.

Mrs. Charles S. Bromley's Florida Derby candidate, Chance Flight, was a decisive winner of the mile contest, sixth on the card. The Chance Play gelding uncovered unexpected speed and led Speedy Skippy to the wire by two lengths in 1:37 1-5. Brown Toney lost the place by three lengths, with Boy Valet fourth. Chance Flight returned $11.70.

Another new track record was created when Momo, even money favorite, ran a mile and three-sixteenths in 1:57 3-5 in the seventh race to beat Fairly Wild by a neck. Just Remember was third.

Bowling Notes

The fourth annual handicap mixed doubles sweepstages is in progress at the Heidel Recreation. The winning couple will receive loving cups. Squads will bowl this afternoon and evening and entries can be made by calling Frank Heidel, PRospect 8406.

The Parks topped the teams in the Heidel's Women's League with a total of 2756. All the members of the Park team hit over 500, Gussie Kuehnel leading the team with 575. Leola Tretter was one pin behind with 574. The Parks' good total gave them a 2-1 victory over the Students, who were paced by Helen Wolfsberger's 563. The Don Andersons shot 2569 and won two from the Eurekas, Lucille Wilson getting 548 for the winners and Hester Holtz 575 for the Eurekas. In the other match, the Vescovos won the odd game from the Heidels, Myrtle Schulte shooting 526 and Flo Schlenk 565.

"Red" Rochow's Graham Paper team dropped three games to the Morgans in the Printing Craftsmen's League at Rogers Recreation and as a result of the victory, the Morgans went into a tie for first place with the Hills, who lost three games to the Binghams. Meixner was the best bowler for the Morgans with 633. The team had a 1028 score in the first game. In the other matches, the Service team won three from the Sylvesters, the Kellys took two from the Buschharts, the Superiors won two from the Ganes and the Buckies won two from the Johnsons.

With C. Jorcke collecting 673 on 243, 205 and 227, the Meine's Place team totaled only 2638, but won three games from the Roesch five in the Commercial League at the Century alleys. The Roesch team counted 2255, with Peterson doing the best bowling with 498. W. Mocker scored the only other 600, getting 617 for the Post-Dispatch Annex team, who dropped two games to the Parksiders No. 1. The latter team was paced by Mesplay's 563. The Century five won two from the Parksiders No. 1 and the Whatnots took two from the Watkins in the other matches. L. Pisoni 577, Zinselmeyer 566, Steffan 537 and E. Lecker 565 were the team leaders.

Mary Mangold, rolling in the Friday Night Handicap League at Vescovo's Recreation, scored a 288 game for the Missouri Packers. Mrs. Mangold finished with a 586 total.

SPORT SALAD

by L. C. Davis

Leave 'Em Laughing.

SAYS Casey Stengel with a grin
"I don't expect my boys to win
A row of N. L. championships
But they'll be tough on damaged lips."

Atta Boy!

SCHOOL days, school days,
Good old Spaldi- Rule days;
Pitching and catching and chasing flies
Watching the teachers and getting wise.
I was a young uncultured youth,
Fresh from the sticks and quite uncouth,
Now I can sock them like Babe Ruth,
For I am the walloping kid!

Okay, Colonel.

Colonel Buster Mills is the name of a Cardinal candidate for an outfield job. He should not be referred to as "the" Colonel as in this instance Colonel is a name and not a title if you see the distinction.

Colonel Buster is a product of Oklahoma where "Pepper" Martin and Carl Hubbel came from. Looks like first division.

Ellsworth Vines says he is out to be the No. 1 pro tennis player of the world. He'll make it all right if somebody doesn't get his number.

See where the Yale polo team took Princeton for a ride the other day. Looks like a horse on the Tiger.

Casey Stengel has his own ideas about how to handle the Dodgers. The idea being that Casey intends to show some of those pennant contenders how to take a joke.

Casey Stengel is a big favorite with the Brooklyn fans. Back in 1913, when Casey was a member of the Dodger outfit, he pulled a stunt that practically made him. In response to the cheers of the multitude that greeted him on his first appearance at the bat, he doffed his cap and a sparrow flew out. It was a bird of a trick and established him firmly in the hearts of his Flatbush clientele.

Now, Casey might be something of a magician, but pulling sparrows out of baseball caps is quite different from materializing pennants out of thin air.

Why Not?

The Dodgers were once called the Robins in honor of their manager, Wilbert Robinson. Why not give their new manager a nod and call them the "Sparrows?"

"Senators Deny That Stone Is a Bad Bargain."

He may be a diamond in the rough.

Johnny Layton, who won the three-cushion championship for the eleventh time, hails from Sedalia, Mo., and Allen Hall, the runner-up, is a former St. Louisan. Show the boys from the Show-me State a shot they can't make.

"Keep Rassling Referees Outside Ring."

And keep the rasslers in the ring.

The spectator is entitled to some sort of protection. Instead of renting him a cushion to sit on, he ought to be provided with a rubber mat with spikes in it to lay across his lap.

Although Joe Shaute had one of the finest tenor voices in the National League, the Dodgers gave him his unconditional release when they might have sold him for a song.

MAPLEWOOD GIRLS DEFEAT LOUISVILLE; 7TH VICTORY IN ROW

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 3.—Louisville's basketball crowd tonight saw the Shaw-Stephens girls' basketball team of Maplewood hand the local Eppings their first home defeat in two seasons. The final score was 26-13.

Due to the absence of Marie Madison, who was unable to make the trip, Gladys Freeman was inserted at guard and she soon measured off the basket for five field goals to take high scoring honors. Mary Rudis and Mattie Luepke, however, drew the biggest applause for their exceptional floor playing and fine pass work.

The victory was the seventh straight for the Shaw-Stephens girls, who have won 10 of their 11 engagements this season.

ST. PAUL TEAM BOWLS 3560 TO LEAD FOR WEEK

The Hamms, St. Paul's star bowling team, was bent on cracking another world's record last week, but finished its league play with 3560 pins. This total is 150 short of the record score, but good enough to again give the five top place in the International High Score Honor Roll. Two games of better than 1200 were rolled in registering the score. The quintet opened with 1222, followed with 1110 and closed with a neat 1228 game.

Four members of the club shot better than 700, Tom Harkins, veteran Twin City kegler, led the parade with 780. The Hamms made but one error in the series even though they had 39 spares to shoot at.

Schemansky of Detroit topped the individual department with a 799 count.

Only four St. Louis teams and seven individuals landed in the week's "honor roll." The Hermanns had 3423 to finish second on the honor roll, followed by the Alexanders 3234; Silver Seals 3158, and Fishers, 3141. Roy Holmes hit 758. Among the individuals: W. Ludwig 750, Ray Zeigler 738, Fechter had 724, Vokert 711, Kessler 711 and Ens 709.

First Nationals Win

First National virtually clinched the title in the Employed Boys' Basketball League by defeating the Trojans, 34 to 16, in the feature of four played last night at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. In the other games, the Wutcos defeated the Wildcats, 39 to 25, the Stix, Baer and Fuller five won from the Tigers, 18 to 15, and the Thomas Dunn Memorial nosed out the Comets, 16 to 13.

Some Good Trout Catches.

FISHERMEN who helped open the 1934 trout fishing season March 1, regardless of the low temperatures, generally reported both anglers and catches plentiful. Most of the fishing was done on the State parks, principally Bennett Spring, Roaring River and Montauk.

Many excellent specimens of rainbows were taken. Some weighed as much as five pounds. They were taken largely, as usual, on live bait, doughballs and liver.

All game fish are now in season and will remain eligible for the creel until April 1 when the bass goes on the protected list until Decoration day.

Experiment With Grouse.

Game and fish and State parks are being given special attention by the State Planning Board now making a survey of the State's natural resources. Research on these subjects is being compiled by a part of the staff of 14 workers in the statehouse at Jefferson City for inclusion in the general State report which will be filed with Federal authorities at Washington, June 1.

It is believed that the Washington State Park, a 1933 gift to the State of a St. Louisan, near De Soto, will provide a possible experimental ground for ruffed grouse, owing to the excellent stand of junipers on that 700-acre tract.

E. E. Breisch, Windsor, Mo., quail breeder who has a State contract for 8000 birds this year will take a State quail exhibit to the American Royal Small Livestock Exposition at Kansas City, April 13 to '5.

Dr. G. B. Herndon, Chief of Hatcheries for the State Game and Fish Department this week reported his division spent $31,487 during 1933 as compared to $60,032, the previous annual average.

Gov. Park Speaks.

Gov. Guy B. Park was the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Carthage Sportsmen's League, which has a membership of approximately 2000 persons.

Wild boars, once so common in the Ozarks as to be a danger to sportsmen and natives, have been killed recently in Miller County.

46 LOCAL FIVES TO COMPETE IN A.B.C. TOURNEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., March 3.—First tabulation of the entries in the thirty-fourth annual American Bowling Congress tournament shows that 257 cities of the United States and Canada will be represented by 123 five-man teams, 2601 two-man teams and 5231 individuals, paying entry fees totaling $85,390.

While the total entry is smaller than a year ago, the out-of-town representation is larger. Peoria, the tournament city, did remarkably well with 272 teams, an increase of 10 per cent over 1927, when the A. B. C. was held here last. The outside representation is almost 15 per cent greater than in 1933.

Chicago, as usual, with the aid of nearby communities which are members of the Windy City Bowling Association, leads the parade of out-of-town entries, being credited with 157 teams, 390 doubles and 785 singles.

Detroit holds second honors by virtue of 63 teams. Springfield, the capital of Illinois, follows with 40 quints, and St. Louis, because of its proximity to Peoria, has 46 teams entered. Cincinnati and Cleveland are neck and neck for the honor of having the largest Ohio delegation, the Queen City having one more team.

SUPER-SHELLS WIN GRANITE CITY "Y" BASKETBALL TOURNEY

Led by Leo Grandone, who scored 14 points, the Alton Super-Shells defeated the Granite City Pals, 43 to 40, in the final round of the second annual Granite City Y. M. C. A. basketball tournament last night. Carlinville defeated Ralston-Purina, 36 to 19, for consolation honors.

46 LOCAL FIVES TO COMPETE IN A.B.C. TOURNEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., March 3.—Final tabulation of the entries in the thirty-fourth annual American Bowling Congress tournament shows that 257 cities of the United States and Canada will be represented by 1328 five-man teams, 2601 two-man teams and 5231 individuals, paying entry fees totaling $85,390.

While the total entry is smaller than a year ago, the out-of-town representation is larger. Peoria, the tournament city, did remarkably well with 272 teams, an increase of 10 per cent over 1927, when the A. B. C. was held here last. The outside representation is almost 15 per cent greater than in 1933.

Chicago, as usual, with the aid of nearby communities which are members of the Windy City Bowling Association, leads the parade of out-of-town entries, being credited with 157 teams, 390 doubles and 785 singles.

Detroit holds second honors by virtue of 63 teams. Springfield, the capital of Illinois, follows with 60 quints, and St. Louis, because of its proximity to Peoria, has 46 teams entered. Cincinnati and Cleveland are neck and neck for the honor of having the largest Ohio delegation, the Queen City having one more team.

GIRL SCOUTS

ABOUT one-half of the $17,000 sought in the campaign of the St. Louis Girl Scouts has been raised.

Mrs. Louis Guerineau Myers of New York, vice-president of the National Association of Girl Scouts, who was a guest at a meeting yesterday at the University Club, said the rapid growth of the St. Louis organization in recent years was paralleled by that of the national membership, which increased 50 per cent since 1930.

Miss Jennie Wahlert, chairman of the court of awards, reported that other organizations were cooperating with the Girl Scouts. The St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross, she said, had invited leaders of Girl Scout troops to attend Red Cross courses in first aid and home hygiene, and the Occupational Therapy Workshop had opened classes to scout leaders.

Two new Girl Scout troops and three new Brownie Packs were registered with the Girl Scout Council in February. The new troops are: Troop 105 at St. James Church, Tamm and Nashville streets, under the leadership of Mrs. Bess Gallagher, assisted by Miss Anna Ahren, Miss Virginia Coad and Miss Grace Kelley, and University City Troop No. 8, at Jackson Park School, under the leadership of Miss Margaret Ramsay.

The Brownies, representing junior scouts ranging from 7 to 10 years of age, have formed new groups at Garfield School in Normandy, Tyler Place Presbyterian Church, and at Baden School, Halls Ferry and Newby. Leaders of the new packs are Mrs. Laura Longhoffer, Miss Margaret Miller and Mrs. Lee Bonhoff.

The Girl Scout organization in the St. Louis area now has 153 troops and 22 Brownie Packs, with more than 4200 members.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, March 3.

WHEN real winter comes to Manhattan the city more nearly approaches the simplicity and neighborliness of the New York of half a century ago. A heavy blizzard constitutes a sort of minor but common emergency, a problem to be tackled with a certain civic gaiety. Strangers push each others' cars out of snow banks. Policemen are more helpful than is customary in getting pedestrians through traffic. Commuting office workers arrive late and nobody cares.

Tavern keepers prepare for calls for Tom and Jerry from oldtimers, and Paddy Raffertty appears on the Plaza cab rank with his ancient sleigh and buffalo robes to drive gay young people through Central Park to the astonishment of street urchins, who have never seen a sleigh before. We were at the opera the night of last week's blizzard and such a collection of oldtime furs, earmuffs under shiny toppers and a few old tall fur hats hasn't been seen since the memorable snowfall in '88.

Later that night, about 3:30 to be exact, we walked from Murray Hill up Fifth avenue to our home in Fifty-eighth street. In 20 blocks we saw only three people, two of whom were officers and the other a youth who had fallen into a snowdrift outside the University Club. We pulled him out and walked him down to the Dorset, where he said, not every clearly, that he lived. On the way down John D. Rockefeller's front yard and oldtime stables gleamed white under a sputtering arc lamp like a scene from a Christmas card.

WE reported, a fortnight since, on the trek to Hartford for the opening there of Gertrude Stein's daffy opera called "Four Saints in Three Acts." The nonesuch has eventually arrived in town and you aren't welcome as a dinner conversationalist unless you've seen it. The Manhattan premiere was, perhaps, the high point of the theater season and the intelligentsia in tortoise glasses and the representatives of fashion with monocles descended in an avalanche of broadcloth on the old Forty-ninth Street Theater.

Everyone had a dandy time except the music critics and drama reporters, who were just as baffled as the next man, but had to write about it and try to make sense. The words are simply meaningless, either grammatically or by implication or suggestion, the stage business and movement is the last word in baroque insanity, but Virgil Thompson's music, sung by a cast of 60 odd Negroes attired in blazing and absurd saint's costumes, is pretty grand stuff at times.

At the first night Carl Van Vechten, pioneer Harlem exploiter, whooped his emphatic approval. Florine Stettheimer, who did the sets, took a modest bow from the stage box; Burns Mantle was pathetically bewildered; the young art enthusiasts howled for more than 20 curtain calls from the cast; John Chapin Mosher of the New Yorker looked vastly sapient but wouldn't commit himself; for the first time in recorded history the Countess Ghika dropped her single eyeglass in her enthusiasm; John Marshall burst his evening waistcoat laughing and the fireman on duty in the rear of the auditorium said "Jeez, has everybody gone crazy or are they just stewed?" "Four Saints" will be most oppressively the vogue for the next few weeks.

ONE of our favorite retreats of a Saturday afternoon, located far below the lowest level of the near-by Grand Central Station, is the Turkish bath department of the Biltmore. There to wallow and recline among the steams and vapors, sprays, showers and hoses of its steam rooms and hot rooms, pools, cabinets and rubbing apartments is, evidently, a pastime highly esteemed by many of the great. We have watched Al Smith bubble and stew and bellow greetings at political porpoises splashing ponderously in the pool. Judges and magistrates have a peculiar affinity for heat and steam. Gen. Johnson is an occasional devotee of parboiling.

Wolves of Wall Street, shorn of their fur, paddle wetly about with final stock editions rushed down at their behest. Kermit Roosevelt was having himself pounded into an almost hamburg-like condition by Louis the rubber last week. Postmaster-General Farley was there another day, Al Jolson's head can sometimes be seen projected above a baking cabinet. A literary looking fellow who puts in an occasional appearance wears a monocle through the entire course of a Russian bath.

Jack, the head rubber, knows the choice in mineral waters of scores of financiers, real estate operators and statesmen. It's all very soothing, very steamy, very splashy.

THE arrival of film celebrities of the moment at either of New York's main railroad terminals is always something of a trial for the special police of the Penn or Grand Central stations. The technique preferred by most actors and actresses is to announce their impending arrival, even to such details as the numbers of their Pullman drawing rooms, and then make a valiant pretense of outrage when discovered by camera men and admirers. For days before the arrival of a Dietrich or a Garbo or a Joan Crawford or Franchot Tone city editors are harassed and radio studios invaded by hysterical press agents clamoring for camera men, reporters and broadcasters to be present when the Century rolls in.

Just so that a crowd of morbid curiosity seekers and waiting-room loungers will be on hand, "movie" cameras are installed and ushers are present with huge floral tributes from local film executives. Then when the great personage actually steps from the train his or her instant reaction to all this hoopla must be one of violated privacy and shrinking modesty. Smoked glasses are whisked into position, coat collars turned up and flight and panic similated. The crowd shouts, the flashlights explode and, like a terrified faun, the celebrity flees in search of privacy, surrounded by shouting press agents, gesticulating servants and a baying chorus of minor home office executives.

Usually a leather-lunged publicity expert is on hand to bellow the name of the hotel where, in strictest retreat and absolute secret, the celebrity will seek repose and tranquillity, so that a few thousand autograph collectors may flood the lobby and knock down the bellboys whenever the great personage goes or comes. Three minutes after the train has arrived the crowd has dissolved and vanished, as unsubstantial and transient a manifestation as, shall we say, the fame of a film star itself.

WASHINGTON U. HAS 4905 STUDENTS; 114 DROP IN YEAR

Enrollment Includes 2746 Taking Full-Time Work; Evening Extension Classes Gain.

Washington University has an enrollment of 4905 students in all departments, 114 fewer than it had a year ago, it announced yesterday. Included are 2746 full-time students. The evening classes in extension work show a gain of 194 pupils.

The decrease in full-time students in the last year has been 270, or less than 10 per cent. At the end of the last semester 128 full-time students dropped out, the smallest number to quit the campus at that time in several years.

University officials gave the following reasons for the trend towards a diminishing loss of students: A special arrangement by the College of Liberal Arts for freshmen entering in midyear; the opportunity for those working their way to get CWA employment; a more serious attitude towards class work, resulting in fewer failures; general improvement of economic conditions. A change in CWA regulations has made possible the addition of more than 60 students to the CWA work rolls. It is expected the entire quota of 296 will be filled this week.

Hobbies

OF PROMINENT ST. LOUISANS

"SEEING" BY MEYRIC R. ROGERS

Director of the City Art Museum of St. Louis

I have a hobby that requires no special room or equipment, no money, little time—but some concentration. This is the hobby of "seeing". I know I find myself continually looking but not seeing, and most people, I imagine, do much the same thing. Perhaps only a few of us do much with paint, pencil or chisel, but back of the artist's use of these is his habit of seeing in a concentrated way what most of us merely look at.

This is not intended for a homily, but railroad fare is not always a necessity for the changes of scene available if we cultivate this interest which, by the way, is a good starter for any hobbies we may run into.

FRANCE'S CHIEF AUTO MAKER ACCEPTS BANK SUPERVISION

Andre Citreon Deals for Financial Aid After Inadequate Car Sales.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 3.—Bankers are likely soon to sit on the board of the Citroen Automobile Works—the biggest automobile enterprise in France. Andre Citroen still holds heavy control of the stock in the company but slow business and the cool reception given his smallest model resulted in a creditors meeting at the bank of France Thursday.

Financial aid was reported to have been given on Citroen's promise to accept the financial supervision which the Bank of France will outline. Citroen, himself, would concentrate on the manufacturing end of the business.

The Citroen plant is valued at more than 2,000,000,000 francs ($130,000,000) with an annual business of 1,000,000,000 francs. Since Jan 1, however, the car sales have been inadequate to meet the heavy costs of manufacture. Several hundred million francs have been devoted to equipment for building a new front wheel drive, resembling the German Adler Automobile, which will soon be placed on the market.

Social Life in the National Capital

WASHINGTON, March 3.

IN spite of Lent and the period of mourning being observed by the Embassies and Legations of countries whose royal families are connected with the reigning house of Belgium, there has been no lack of interesting events the past week.

Many functions have centered about that distinguished of Japanese "elder statesmen," Prince Iyesto Tokugawa, who arrived here Wednesday.

The Prince, for 30 years head of the House of Peers in Tokio, and successor to the late Yoshinobu Tokugawa, last of the Shoguns, has been in Ottawa visiting his son, Prince Iyemasa Tokugawa, Minister to Canada. The Minister and his young daughter, Miss Toya Tokugawa, are here with the Prince.

The new Ambassador from Japan and Mme. Saito did their first entertaining here in honor of the distinguished countryman, a dinner the evening he arrived.

President Roosevelt gave a luncheon for Prince Tokugawa Thursday, and Secretary of State Hull gave a luncheon today. Yesterday the Prince was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Ambassador of Spain and Senora de Cardenas, who were long stationed in Tokio.

Chief Justice Hughes and William R. Castle Jr. were among those who gave dinners in the Prince's honor.

When Prince Tokugawa attended the arms conference in Washington in 1921-22, he and Chief Justice Hughes, head of the American delegation, discovered that they had many sympathies, tastes and interests in common, and they have kept up their friendship since.

Mr. Castle, former Undersecretary of State, went to Japan a few years ago as a special Ambassador for the United States, and formed then a warm friendship with the Prince.

In the sitting room at the end of the second floor of the White House, a screened-off end of the long corridor, now stands Jo Davison's fine bronze bust of President Roosevelt, presented last Sunday.

This Mrs. Roosevelt admires extremely. She thinks it is one of the best likenesses of her husband. But she admits she has a great affection for a head by a lad named Garrett, for whom the President could not sit formally. Out of glimpses while the President was at work, he produced a bust, which Mrs. Roosevelt thinks is perfect in profile.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth went to New York to attend the marriage today of her niece, Miss Grace Green Roosevelt, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, to William McMillan of Baltimore, which took place in Christ Church, Oyster Bay, L. I. Paulina Longworth was a flower girl at the wedding.

GRACE ROOSEVELT AND BALTIMORE MAN WED

Granddaughter of Late President Becomes Bride of William McMillan of Baltimore.

By the Associated Press.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., March 3.—Grace Green Roosevelt, the eldest granddaughter of the late President Theodore Roosevelt and the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, was married to William McMillan of Baltimore, in Christ Episcopal Church.

Through three feet of melting snow, several hundred guests came to see the ceremony. In costumes ranging from formal morning attire to tweeds and gaiters, they packed the little chapel.

Bad weather prevented the presence of Mrs. James Delano Roosevelt, President Franklin D. Roosevelt's mother, who had been expected. Her branch of the family was not represented.

But the Republican Roosevelts were all there. Little Paulina Longworth, daughter of the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth, was acting as flower girl in her first bridal party; and her mother, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, was looking on.

It was a green and white wedding. Ferns, smilax and white flowers decorated the chapel, and the bridal attendants wore the same shades.

The bride wore the wedding gown her mother wore in 1910, with no stitch altered. It was made of old lace and ivory satin. The skirt was covered with lace and tulle. She wore a tulle veil, and a wreath of orange blossoms.

Because of snow-packed roads, the bridal reception was changed from Sagamore Hill, home of the bride's grandmother, to the little parish house. Not all the guests could get it at once, and they lined up at the door, waiting their turn.

Do as your dentist does—
when he cleans your teeth

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

● Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

● No Grit—No Pumice

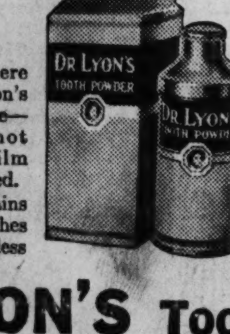
Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

● Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.



Dr. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER

STAR'S 1901 CATASTROPHE DESECRIBED BY ASTRONOMER

Brilliance of Body Increased 25,000 Times, But Nobody Knows What Happened.

PASADENA, Cal., March 3. — A catastrophe which happened in 1901 to the star Nova Persei, causing it to throw off great volumes of gas which is now speeding out into space at a rate of 775 miles a second, has enabled Milton L. Humason to measure accurately its distance from the earth.

"This faint star flared up suddenly until in two days it was as brilliant as any in the sky," Humason told fellow astronomers at the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson Observatory.

"Its brightness increased 25,000 times. The star retained most of its brilliance four or five months, then gradually became fainter and fainter until it has returned to approximately its original magnitude and is no longer visible to the naked eye.

"Just what caused the catastrophe scientists have been unable to explain. It may have been a collision with another star or a smaller body, or it may have been the sudden release for below its surface of energy believed to be stored in atoms."

Humason calculated the star's distance from the earth at 2000 light years, or 12,000,000,000,000,000 miles. The distance formerly had been estimated at 350 light years.

TWO-YEAR TERM FOR GERMAN WHO FAILED TO REGISTER $130

Found Guilty of Treason in Hiding Gold Pieces and Czech Crowns in Coffee Can.

FREIBURG, Saxony, March 3.—Failure to register his $120 in gold pieces and 400 Czech crowns (about $10) with the Reichsbank cost Albert Balkowski of Dresden a sentence of two years in the penitentiary, a fine of $200 and confiscation of the foreign money.

Hiding of the money in a large can of coffee was held by the Saxon emergency court as an intentional violation of the law regulating traffic in foreign exchange. It therefore found Balkowski guilty of treason against the national economic system.

The law forbids German citizens to possess more than $80 worth of foreign currencies.

$65,000 IN MUNICIPAL OPERA RESERVATIONS

Sixteenth Season to Start June 4—New Working Plan for Association.

Requests for more than $65,000 in season reservations already have been received by the Municipal Theater Association, although the opening of the summer opera is still three months away. Last year's subscribers are being allowed several weeks to renew their seat locations for 1934.

The sixteenth season, opening Monday, June 4, will continue through Sunday evenings, Aug. 26.

Scope of activity scheduled this summer has brought about a new working plan in the organization of the theater association, a plan designed to gain a greater flexibility and to emphasize, even more than in seasons past, the civic control of the opera organization.

In previous years the detailed supervision on behalf of the Municipal Theater Association has been through an executive committee composed of the president and first vice-president of the organization, the various divisional directors and committee chairmen who have been assigned to specific departments. Heretofore the divisional directors and committee chairmen have shouldered the work and responsibility with little designated aid. In the coming season they will have the assistance of picked committees, the members chosen for the most part from those among the association's board of directors who have been most deeply interested by training or through hobby with the departments of the organization to which they are assigned.

The executive committee is composed of Nelson Cunliff, Max Koenigsberg, William A. Miller, Arthur Siegel and Charles M. Talbert. President Henry W. Kiel and First Vice President Joseph M. Darst are ex-officio members of the committee. M. E. Holderness, treasurer of the association, Otto E. Rugg, divisional director of concessions, and Paul J. Wielandy, divisional director of welfare, are associated with the executive committee in developing plans for the opera season.

The personnel of the other committees follow:

Cast: Arthur Siegel, chairman; J. M. Lashly and Parker H. Woods.

Repertory: Max Koenigsberg, chairman; A. M. Keller and F. A. Sudholt.

Stage and Settings: Nelson Cunliff, chairman; A. B. Elias, Ralf Toensfeldt and Arthur Kocian.

Costume: Charles M. Talbert, chairman; Martin J. Collins and Oscar B. Fischer.

Auditorium: Park Commissioner William A. Miller, chairman.

HEARING ON TIRE AGREEMENT TO BE MOVED TO ST. LOUIS

Complaints Before Federal Trade Commission Apply to Alleged Price Discrimination.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 3.—A Federal Trade Commission hearing into complaints against an alleged agreement by which the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. sold tires to Sears, Roebuck & Co. at prices far below those offered competitors, will be continued here Monday and Tuesday by Examiner John W. Bennett and then will be moved to St. Louis.

Seven witnesses were heard here Thursday and yesterday, among them Bernie Harper of Fort Smith, Ark., a former president of the National Tire Dealers' Association and now a member of the National Tire and Battery code committee.

Harper termed Sears, Roebuck competition with independent tire dealers "the greatest evil in the retail tire industry."

Referring to charges by Memphis tire retailers that Sears, Roebuck competition was ruining their business, Harper said that situation also prevails in Dallas, Atlanta, Birmingham, Kansas City and St. Louis.

DENTISTS CUT PRICES FOR NEEDY CHILDREN

Co-operate With City as Doctors Are Doing—Free Care Any Unable to Pay.

Acceptance by "an overwhelming majority" of St. Louis dentists of a plan to provide dental care to needy children at reduced rates was announced by the City Health division yesterday as another step toward giving every St. Louisan adequate preventive health service.

The plan, which sets maximum fees for the needy at a fraction of the usual fees, was unanimously adopted by St. Louis Dental Society as an emergency measure, on the showing of a survey that 95 per cent of all school-children, probably 150,000 children in all, were suffering from neglected teeth.

A great part of that neglect, a committee of dentists reported to the society, was due to the inability of many parents to pay the regular fee and their reluctance to ask for charity. For these children, the co-operating dentists adopted a maximum scale, including such strikingly reduced items as 25 cents for an extraction if simple; $1 if difficult.

Dentists Respond Promptly.

These children form but one of three classes. Those unable to pay anything may obtain the preventive services free of charge, but those able to pay usual fees will be expected to do so. Children of needy families, however, will be eligible for the free or reduced-fee service from pre-school age through high school.

In the last week the Health Division has sent letters to about 500 reputable dentists, both members and non-members of the Dental Society. Replies already are pouring in, said Health Commissioner Bredeck, at a rate to indicate virdtually 100 per cent co-operation. Lists of those co-operating in each neighborhood will be given to the schools and social agencies.

Although dental clinics are working at top speed at the 10 City Health Centers, it was explained they could not provide for all the children needing dental care.

Doctors Co-operate.

A somewhat similar plan, along lines which have reduced the diphtheria death rate in Detroit to a fraction of what it was only a few days ago, has been adopted by about 1000 St. Louis physicians in co-operation with the Health Division and St. Louis Medical Society. Both members and non-members of the society have set aside hours at which they will vaccinate children against smallpox and administer toxoid to prevent diphtheria. Those unable to pay usual fees may obtain each service at $1, while those unable to pay anything may have them free.

Lists of the physicians in each neighborhood, with the hours they designated for the preventive treatments, have been given to schoolteachers so that parents of children needing them, and without a regularg physician can select a physician in walking distance.

Recently when three cases of smallpox were found here, none of the three patients had ever been vaccinated. Vaccination of one promptly after exposure mitigated his illness to a very light form, and, to prevent an epidemic, 600 persons exposed to the disease were vaccinated in two days.

L. Bower, 7222 Richmond place, University City. The order was granted by Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton.

Collins testified the marriage took place in Waterloo, Ill., March 20, 1933, and that he, being under age, did not realize what the marriage vows meant. His wife was not in court, but was represented by counsel.

Even the Best of Chefs

CAN BE AN ENEMY OF YOUR GUMS

Keep your Gums Firm against "PINK TOOTH BRUSH" with IPANA and Massage . . !

The art of the chef is to please your palate with his sauces and his viands. There is no reason in the world why he should even consider your gums!

Yet his sauces, his entrees, his desserts, give to your gums none of the stimulation they need for health. Your gums become weak, tender. One day you discover "pink tooth brush."

Intelligent persons who find "pink" on their tooth brushes speak to the dentist about it! And any good dentist will explain:

"Go on eating the delicious foods of today. But—you must care for your gums! "Modern gums," he will tell you, "are flabby, touchy gums because modern foods give them too little stimulation. Most people tend to have bleeding gums.

"This is a serious warning. Let it go on and on, and you may find yourself with gum troubles as serious as gingivitis or Vincent's disease or even pyorrhea, though the last is rather rare. You may even find your sound teeth in danger."

It isn't necessary to let "pink tooth brush" go on and on. First get some Ipana Tooth Paste. Clean your teeth with it in the regular way. But afterward, put some Ipana on your brush and lightly massage it into your flabby gums.

Your teeth will recover their natural sparkle and feel thoroughly clean. And within the month your gums will have become firmer. The ziratol in Ipana, together with the massage, aids in firming and strengthening the gum walls.

Today—get a tube of Ipana at your druggist's. Use Ipana with massage every time you clean your teeth—and you can forget "pink tooth brush."

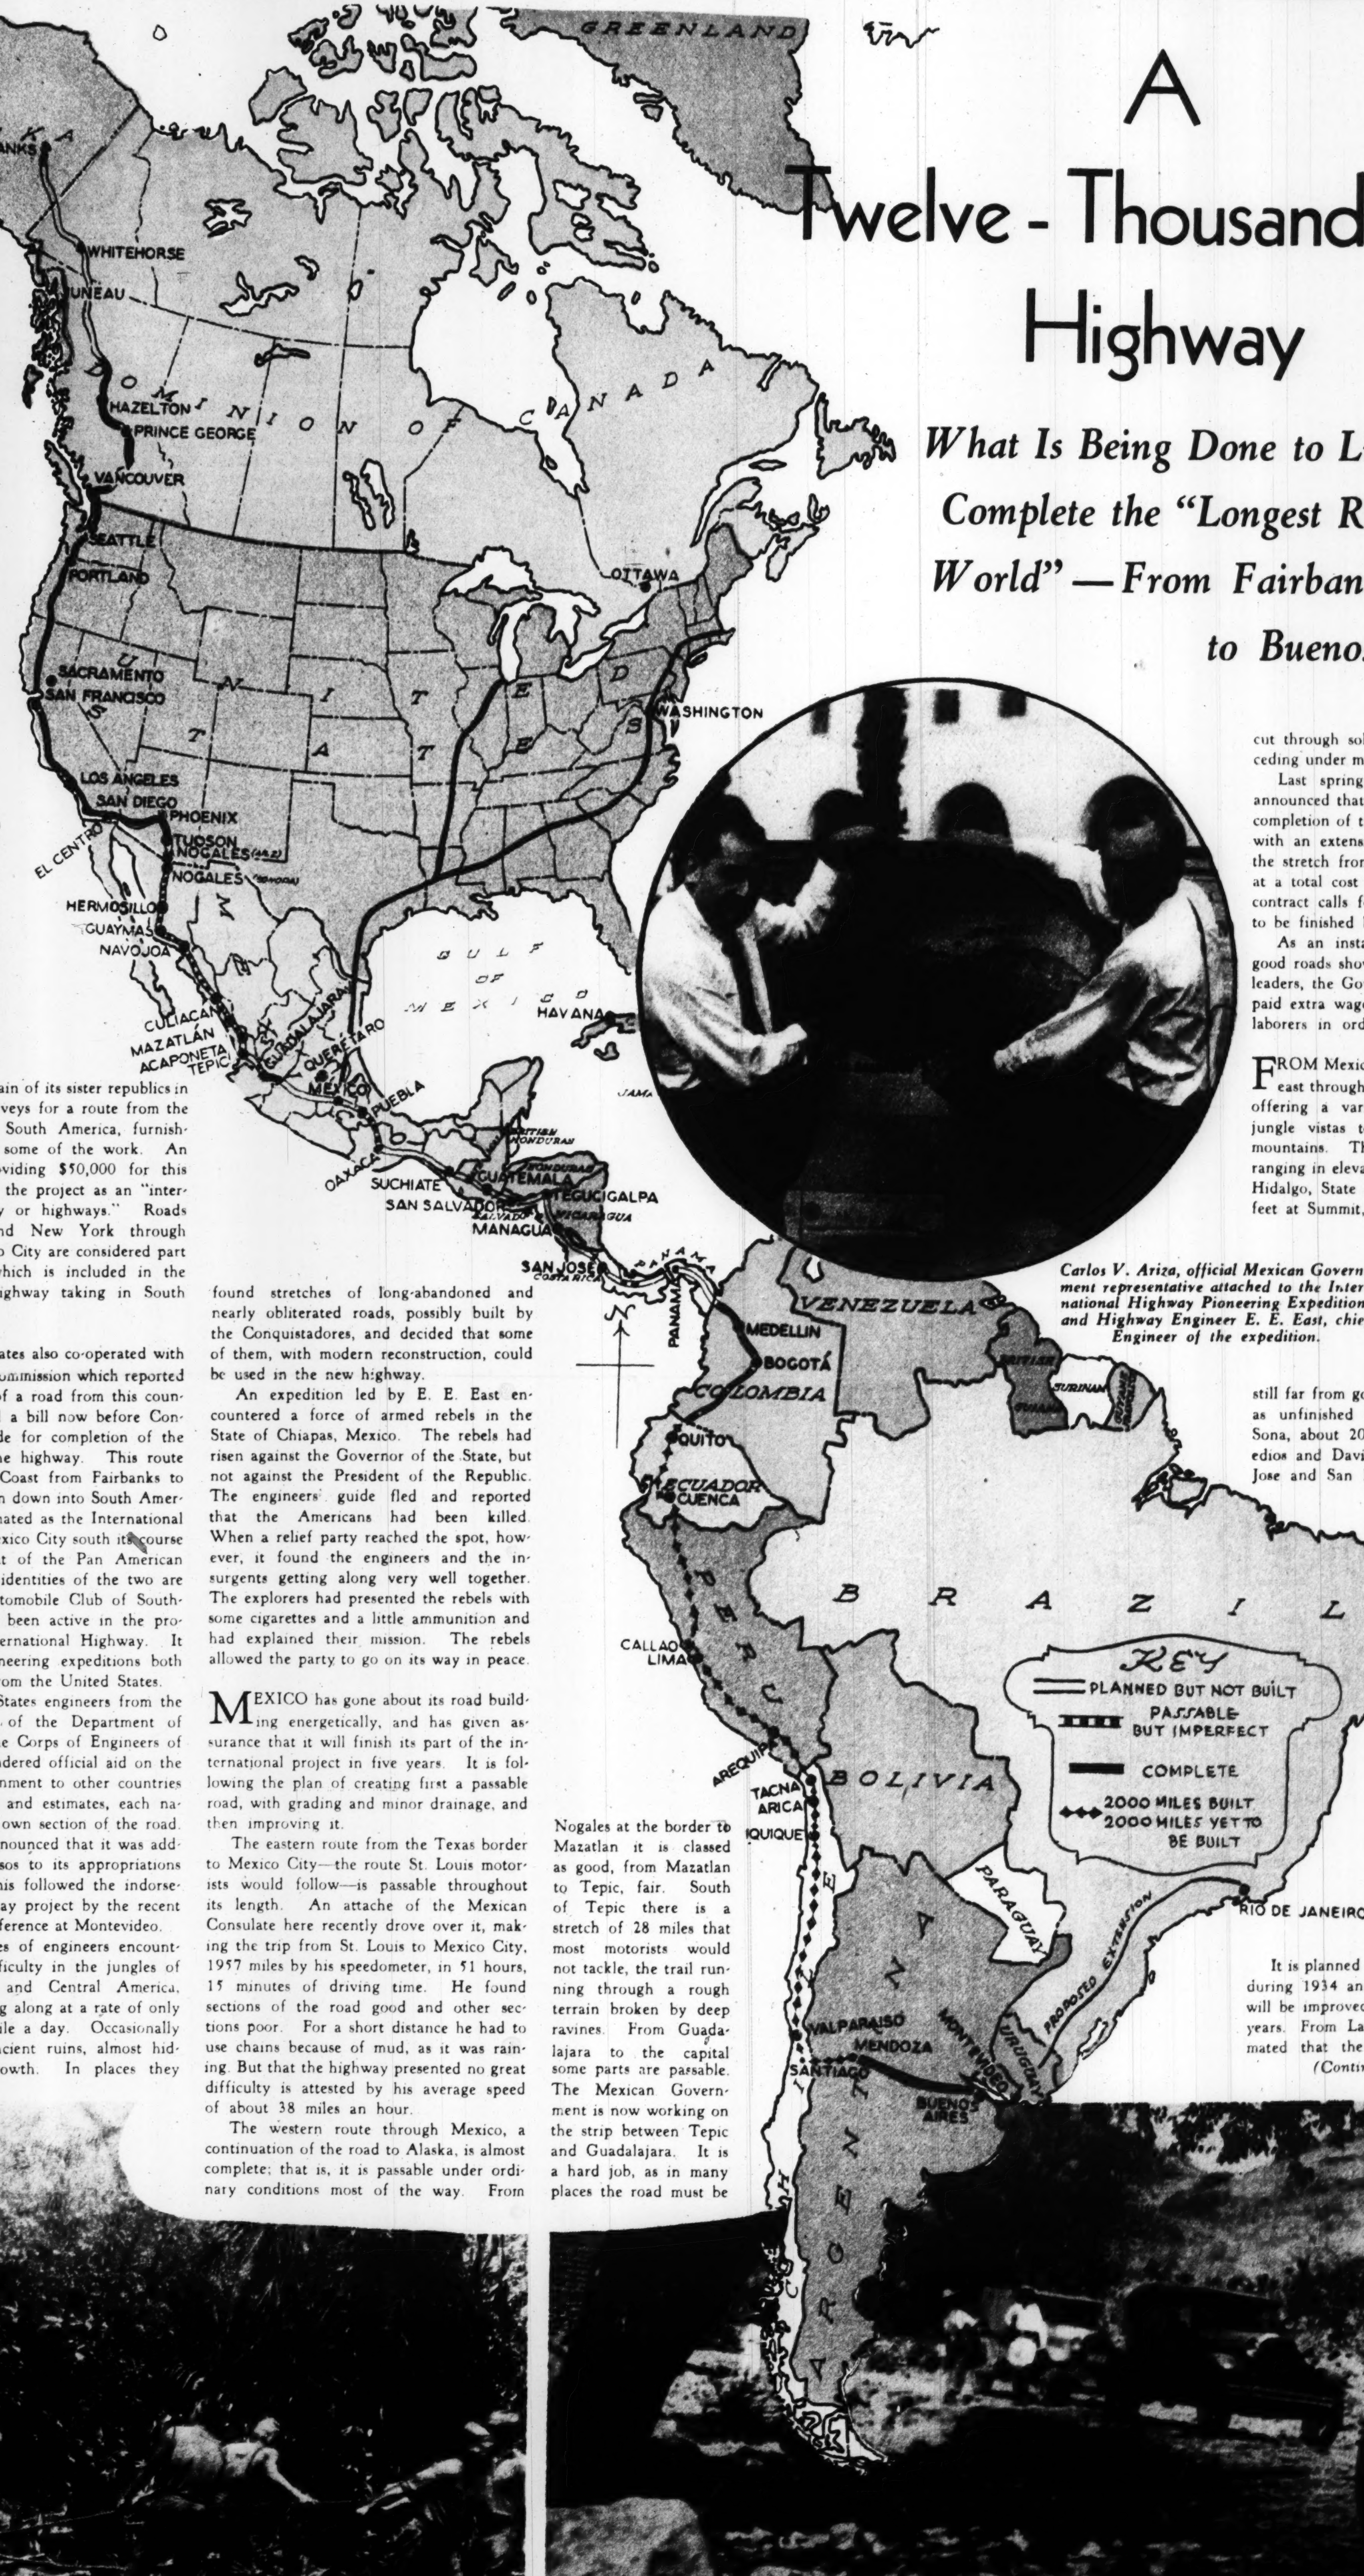
Part of American International Highway Expedition working in the Barancas section of Mexico.



A Twelve-Thousand-Mile Highway

What Is Being Done to Link Up and Complete the "Longest Road in the World"—From Fairbanks, Alaska, to Buenos Aires.

Carlos V. Ariza, official Mexican Government representative attached to the International Highway Pioneering Expedition, and Highway Engineer E. E. East, chief Engineer of the expedition.

By KEITH KERMAN

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

A ST. LOUISAN may stick his head out of the door some morning, survey a cold, gray sky, and decide it would be a good day to drive down to Buenos Aires. He will take U. S. Highway 67, or possibly 66, for the Southwest, cross the border at Laredo, Texas, pass through Mexico City, on through Central America and across the Panama Canal, traverse Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Chile as far as Valparaiso, then turn east and cross Argentina to Buenos Aires. Perhaps he will feel enterprising enough to proceed beyond his original goal and go rolling up to Rio in Brazil. On the homeward journey, if he still hankers for new scenes, he may turn west at Mexico City and drive northward along the Pacific Coast, up through California, Oregon and Washington, through Canada and clear up to Fairbanks, Alaska. By that time he ought to be ready to go on home.

A St. Louisan—or anyone else for that matter—may make such an automobile tour less than a decade in the future if plans for the International Highway are carried out on schedule. Present estimates are that the project will be completed in seven years—a 12,000-mile automobile road from Fairbanks to Buenos Aires, with an extension to Rio de Janeiro and an eastern branch from Mexico City to the Texas border.

Long stretches of the highway system are already in existence. In the United States, of course, a motorist can start from New York, Chicago, Seattle or many other places and drive over good roads all the way to the Mexican border. In Mexico there is a passable road from Nuevo Laredo, at the border, to Mexico City, and there are intermittent stretches from there south, in Central and South America. From the Canadian border north a large part of the highway has been built. The route has been planned virtually throughout its length. The feasibility of such an intercontinental highway system has been established, and the time is thought to be not far distant when residents of the two Americas will be motoring back and forth between the northern and the southern continent on tours covering thousands of miles.

The idea of a highway linking the United States and Latin American countries was definitely formulated some 10 years ago and the first Pan-American Highway Congress was held in 1925 in Buenos Aires. Similar conferences have followed and the movement has received the support of the United States Government and the Pan American Union. The Government has co-operated with certain of its sister republics in reconnaissance surveys for a route from the United States to South America, furnishing engineers for some of the work. An act of 1930, providing $50,000 for this purpose, spoke of the project as an "inter-American highway or highways." Roads from Chicago and New York through Laredo and Mexico City are considered part of this system, which is included in the Pan American Highway taking in South America also.

THE United States also co-operated with Canada in a commission which reported on the feasibility of a road from this country to Alaska, and a bill now before Congress would provide for completion of the Alaskan end of the highway. This route along the Pacific Coast from Fairbanks to Mexico City and on down into South America has been designated as the International Highway; from Mexico City south its course coincides with that of the Pan American Highway and the identities of the two are merged. The Automobile Club of Southern California has been active in the promotion of the International Highway. It has financed engineering expeditions both north and south from the United States.

While United States engineers from the Bureau of Roads of the Department of Agriculture and the Corps of Engineers of the Army have rendered official aid on the part of this Government to other countries in making surveys and estimates, each nation is building its own section of the road. Mexico recently announced that it was adding 40,000,000 pesos to its appropriations for the work. This followed the indorsement of the highway project by the recent Pan American Conference at Montevideo.

Exploring parties of engineers encountered plenty of difficulty in the jungles of Southern Mexico and Central America, sometimes struggling along at a rate of only a sixteenth of a mile a day. Occasionally they ran across ancient ruins, almost hidden by jungle growth. In places they found stretches of long-abandoned and nearly obliterated roads, possibly built by the Conquistadores, and decided that some of them, with modern reconstruction, could be used in the new highway.

An expedition led by E. E. East encountered a force of armed rebels in the State of Chiapas, Mexico. The rebels had risen against the Governor of the State, but not against the President of the Republic. The engineers' guide fled and reported that the Americans had been killed. When a relief party reached the spot, however, it found the engineers and the insurgents getting along very well together. The explorers had presented the rebels with some cigarettes and a little ammunition and had explained their mission. The rebels allowed the party to go on its way in peace.

MEXICO has gone about its road building energetically, and has given assurance that it will finish its part of the international project in five years. It is following the plan of creating first a passable road, with grading and minor drainage, and then improving it.

The eastern route from the Texas border to Mexico City—the route St. Louis motorists would follow—is passable throughout its length. An attache of the Mexican Consulate here recently drove over it, making the trip from St. Louis to Mexico City, 1957 miles by his speedometer, in 51 hours, 15 minutes of driving time. He found sections of the road good and other sections poor. For a short distance he had to use chains because of mud, as it was raining. But that the highway presented no great difficulty is attested by his average speed of about 38 miles an hour.

The western route through Mexico, a continuation of the road to Alaska, is almost complete; that is, it is passable under ordinary conditions most of the way. From Nogales at the border to Mazatlan it is classed as good, from Mazatlan to Tepic, fair. South of Tepic there is a stretch of 28 miles that most motorists would not tackle, the trail running through a rough terrain broken by deep ravines. From Guadalajara to the capital some parts are passable. The Mexican Government is now working on the strip between Tepic and Guadalajara. It is a hard job, as in many places the road must be cut through solid rock. The work is proceeding under military discipline.

Last spring the Mexican Government announced that it had let a contract for the completion of the Laredo-Mexico City road, with an extension south to Acapulco, and the stretch from Guadalajara to the capital at a total cost of about $8,400,000. The contract calls for a hard-surfaced highway, to be finished by the end of 1936.

As an instance of the enthusiasm for good roads shown by many of the Mexican leaders, the Governor of one Mexican state paid extra wages out of his own pocket to laborers in order to speed the work.

FROM Mexico City, the route runs southeast through Central America, a highway offering a variety of scenery, from rich jungle vistas to the rugged grandeur of mountains. The roadway climbs and dips, ranging in elevation from sea level at Union Hidalgo, State of Oaxaca, to about 12,000 feet at Summit, in Guatemala.

Except for a few stretches, an automobile can travel the route from Mexico City to Panama, although included in the passable portions are some strips which are still far from good. The sections still listed as unfinished are: Between Panama and Sona, about 200 miles, and between Remedios and David, in Panama; between San Jose and San Ramon, in Costa Rica, and between Las Canas and La Cruz, Nicaragua. There is not even a path in the 197 miles from San Jose to Volcan. For a while there was doubt that a road could be built through the Nicaraguan strip between Las Canas and La Cruz, but recent reports from engineers who were investigating the possibilities of a canal through Nicaragua, show that a highway can be constructed there without much trouble.

It is planned that these gaps will be filled during 1934 and 1935, and that the road will be improved during the following four years. From Laredo to Panama it is estimated that the road will cost $50,000,-

CHICAGO.

NO OTHER sculptor in the world ever had such a commission as was given to Malvina Hoffman. The directors of the Field Museum of Natural History here said to her, in effect, "Go to every corner of the world and reproduce in bronze the peoples of the earth. Don't pose them in formal attitudes, but immortalize them at their work and play."

The sculptures which Miss Hoffman made as a result of that phenomenal assignment are now nearly all completed. Ninety-one of them have been assembled in Chauncey Keep Memorial Hall at the Field Museum. When Miss Hoffman has completed the nine remaining figures that the contract calls for, each race and important racial variant will be represented.

She traveled many thousands of miles. Her models were Breton women in their Sunday hats, naked African tribesmen, a Tibetan jewel merchant, a primitive Ainu of Japan, a Basque fisherman. It was, she has written, a "peaceful head-hunting expedition."

In more ways than one the Field Museum exhibit of the Races of Mankind is a departure from traditional anthropology. Hitherto the custom has been to make plaster figures to represent racial types. These were never very successful. The idea of getting a sculptor of major rank to do figures in bronze originated some years ago with officials of the Field Museum. In particular, Henry Field, the youthful assistant curator of physical anthropology, was enthusiastic about it.

He had seen in the Corcoran Gallery in Washington six bronzes of African Negroes that not only recorded racial lineaments and type, but as well they did what no plaster models could do—they caught a sense of living beings. But, unfortunately, the sculptor, Herbert Ward, was dead.

At about this time Marshall Field, who lives in New York, heard that the museum was interested in finding a sculptor to model the races of the world. While in Chicago he suggested to Henry Field the name of Miss Hoffman, in whose work he had become very much interested. Miss Hoffman came to Chicago and submitted an estimate of the cost of such a commission. It was a figure that bore some resemblance to the current war debt. The trustees of the museum asked the sculptress to reduce it to an absolute minimum, which she did. And still it was much larger than the $50,000 Chauncey Keep fund which it had been decided would be expended for the project.

Marshall Field guaranteed an additional $100,000 and the contract with Miss Hoffman was signed. Later Mrs. Stanley Field and Mrs. Charles Schweppe made generous contributions to the fund. After completing some types in her New York and Paris studios, Miss Hoffman set out around the world, by way of the Pacific, accompanied by her husband, Samuel B. Grimson, in the role of manager and photographer of the expedition, and Jean de Marco, a French plaster caster, whose duty was to cast into transportable form the clay heads and figures which Miss Hoffman was to make at each stopping place.

There were many obstacles. Plaster and plasteline were shipped from Paris in sealed containers, but even so, it was difficult to keep them sufficiently moist for modeling purposes. The way was smoothed for at least half the journey by the fact that the museum had sent Miss Gretch[illegible] Greene around the world, by way of the Mediterranean, to prepare contacts in advance for Miss Hoffman and her party.

SHE BROKE UP a POKER GAME SINGLE-HANDED

And Now 'Mother Gower' Has Been Proposed as Sheriff of Williamson County.

By F. A. BEHYMER

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CARTERVILLE, Illinois.

IT HAD been a long session of the little poker game above the grocery store—all night and half a day—and the men who sat around the tables were playing silently. The time-honored persiflage of the game had fallen into disuse. Nothing was heard in the smoke-filled room save the slap of the cards as they were played. The slap of the cards was enough, however, for the woman who had come tiptoeing up the stairs and stood listening at the door. It told her that this was the place.

The door was flung open and into the room swept a fury—the fury of a mother who finds her son "wasting his substance" in such riotous living as a little game affords. The little game ended right then and there in a confusion of scattered cards and money and overturned chairs. That is why Mrs. Ethel Gower has been proposed as Sheriff of Williamson County.

Mrs. Gower is the 44-year-old wife of Charles Gower and the mother of five children. Up to the present she has been content to run her family and has taken no part in affairs outside her home except as a quiet member of the First Baptist Church. Taking no part, that is, except once, when she broke up that little game. In the light of that people are saying that there are other things in Williamson County that need to be broken up and asking among themselves whether Mrs. Gower isn't the person to do it.

Two of Mrs. Gower's sons are 25 and 28 years old and are married and have families of their own, but that has merely extended the boundaries of her realm. She watches over the married sons and their families, and they depend on her. Earl, 25, with wife and two children to support, had been out of work for several months, and then, at last, had obtained CWA employment, and when, on payday night, he did not come home, she felt it was clearly a case for mother to deal with.

First, Earl's older brother was told about it. This was in the morning, and Earl had been gone all night. The older brother went uptown and inquired around, and someone told him he would find Earl in the game above the grocery store. The brother went there and found Earl deep in the game. "If you don't come home," he said, "mother will come and get you." Earl said he would come right away.

He did not come. The older brother had been reluctant to tell his mother about it, knowing how she would take it to heart, but when dinner time came and passed and Earl did not appear he said to his mother: "Well, if you want to know where he is I can tell you." And he told her where Earl could be found and what he would be found doing.

"I'll get him," said Mrs. Gower. She slipped into her coat and clapped on her hat and was off. She was mad when she started and more so when she reached the foot of the stairs back of the grocery store, leading to the floor above, but she was cautious. She tiptoed up the steps and listened at one door and another. At the third she heard the gentle slapping of the cards as they fell on the tables. So this was the place.

The violence with which the door was flung open galvanized the sleepy players. The woman who had flung it open paused at the threshold only long enough to locate her son, who was at the second table. She swept past the first and came to the second and, as the men pushed back their chairs, some of them rising, she snatched the cards and tore them up and scattered the money and kicked over the chairs that had been vacated.

THEN she turned to the other table and repeated. She tried to turn the tables over, but they were too heavy. Up to that time she had said nothing, and the men were too astonished to say anything, until Earl found his voice.

"Mother," he said, "are you crazy?"

"Yes," she cried, "I'm crazy. You have run me crazy being in a place like this."

Earl hung his head at that, because he was sensitive to his mother's distress and knew that she was deeply hurt to do a thing like that.

Mrs. Gower turned upon the other men. "Don't one of you leave till I've counted you," she commanded. They stood meekly until she counted them. There were 16. Some of them she knew, and they knew, by the way that she looked at them, that she knew them, and shrank from the recognition. One of them, when she was not looking at him, tried to sneak out the back way.

"Come back here," she commanded. "I'd as soon shoot you as any of the rest." She had slipped her right hand into her coat pocket. Now the side of her coat swung around and the hand in the pocket seemed to be clutching something, something that pointed. To a poker-minded person it appeared she had an ace in the hole. As a matter of fact it was only her finger that was pressed menacingly against the pocket lining.

By that time the man who was running the game found his voice. He made a threatening move and announced that he had a notion to put Mrs. Gower down the steps. She "raised" him and put the notion out of his head. Planting herself in front of him she said: "You didn't bring me up here and you are not going to put me down."

"And he didn't," she says. That time it wasn't a bluff. The man knew what kind of a hand she had. They say she seized him and shook him, and one of the players, with a talent for detail, says he distinctly heard the able form the clay heads and figures which Miss Hoffman was to make at each stopping place.

There were many obstacles. Plaster and plasteline were shipped from Paris in sealed containers, but even so, it was difficult to keep them sufficiently moist for modeling purposes. The way was smoothed for at least half the journey by the fact that the museum had sent Miss Gretch[illegible] Greene around the world, by way of the Mediterranean, to prepare contacts in advance for Miss Hoffman and her party.

MISS GREENE made certain, at the various points at which she knew Miss Hoffman was to work, that a studio with north light was available, that clay might be obtained, that models representing native types would be produced. The 'Cocktail-Drinking' Grandmother and the De Ruyter Children

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

A PUZZLED Judge struggled recently with this question—ought he award custody of two minor children to their divorced and re-married mother, who was accused by a Socially Registered dowager of drinking straight whisky, or to their paternal grandmother, also a registered blue-blood, who admitted quaffing gin and an exhilarating "nerve tonic" pretty regularly?

Connoisseurs of distilled liquors rejoiced when he turned the youngsters over to their mother, although the court seemingly was far from convinced on the straight liquor issue. Comely and stylish, Mrs. Adolph Spreckels Jr., fearing a "plot," whisked her attractive boys off to Napa, California, where her second husband, heir to a sugary sugar fortune, has a ranch.

This ended for the time being a battle of writs, motions, decrees, charges, recriminations, separations, reunions, crack-ups and alienation suits centering about the children's father, handsome Jack De Ruyter, whom Mrs. Spreckels uncoupled via Reno.

De Ruyter spends much of his time in the courts, a habit that seems to afflict some of the upper strata with almost endemic virulence. But he was not kidding when he swore he would have his sons back in three months, court order or no court order.

"I'm going to fight it to the last ditch," he said. "I'm going to have her every movement, night and day, watched constantly. I'm going to get my boys back again."

If that is the "plot" referred to by his former wife, her fears may be justified. The statement was made just after De Ruyter had bidden good-by to Jack, four and a half and Michael, two. The children had a suite on the [illegible]h floor of the Hotel Pierre, five stories above their mother's. Possibly the father's natural anguish was aggravated by the legal definition of the "reasonable intervals" at which he was to be permitted to visit his boys.

One of the weakest points in the case De Ruyter presented in his effort to get his children under the wing of his own mother, the aristocratic Mrs. John De Ruyter, was the evidence linking his name with those of Peggy Rich of the Ziegfeld Follies, Broadway, Paris, London and South Africa; and Peggy Joyce, who needs no introduction. But the real fireworks came when the tippling testimony began.

Clara Harris, elderly nurse of Michael and Jack when they stayed at Mrs. De Ruyter's manorial home in Leonia, New Jersey, was the star witness for the other side, unwittingly. At the second hearing she testified that after her first appearance on the stand her mistress had taken a few cuffs at her for giving a wrong impression of the drinking schedule in the mansion.

"I WANT to say," stuttered the flustered servant, "that Mrs. De Ruyter told me after my testimony last Wednesday that she has taken a nerve tonic for months that gives her the appearance of intoxication. It acted like alcohol on her. She staggered around and got very talkative and then very dizzy-like. I sure thought it was alcohol. And then, you know, I had to take away a lot of gin bottles, sometimes 12 at a time. Naturally, I thought she was drinking liquor."

Her apologetic attitude won a compromising smile from the icy Mrs. De Ruyter. But the smile froze when the nurse blurted out: "I was so shaken when she attacked me, Judge, that I decided to leave right away, but the children screamed so much and clung to me so that I agreed to stay."

Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins favored Mrs. De Ruyter with a glare and told the nurse to let him know if there were any more tossings-around over what she told in court.

The nurse stepped down and Mrs. De Ruyter gathered her wraps and ascended the witness stand. There was a craning of necks.

"I never drink intoxicating liquor," the dowager proclaimed with a frown for the unnerved Clara Harris.

"What do you drink, then?" asked a lawyer.

"I may take a cocktail or two at dinner," was the reply. "And sometimes when I have guests for luncheon, I drink a little gin and ginger ale. That is, I take gin occasionally. It's absurd to say I was drunk all the time."

"How often is occasionally?"

"Fairly often."

"How often is that?"

"Well, nearly every day. But I have to run a large house and my husband is under my nose all the time. He orders a dozen bottles of gin every 10 days or two weeks, but if I have staggers and dizzy spells it is from the nerve tonic my physician prescribes."

She rummaged about her reticule and brought forth two little bottles, one containing amber, the other pink fluid.

"See," she said, with a smile of triumph, "smell for yourself. One is a reducing preparation and the other is the tonic."

The lawyer sniffed the bottles, grinned and handed them across the bench. Justice Collins took a few whiffs and grinned broadly. Neither commented. Mrs. De Ruyter stuffed them back in her bag, snapped the catch and finished her testimony.

A blue-blooded aunt of De Ruyter's, Mrs. Moses Taylor Campbell, made a stiff witness.

"I've often seen her drinking straight whisky in the afternoon," she said of Mrs. Spreckels.

"You never saw Jack De Ruyter drunk, I suppose?" interjected a lawyer.

"No, I never did," the aunt retorted.

She continued, saying that Mrs. Spreckels cared little for the children and made them call her "Lois," instead of "Mother."

"Once when Michael was sick in Leonia," the witness said, "I called Mrs. Spreckels over. She came and I said: 'Your son is very ill.' She said: 'I want Pookie.' That's her dog. She always asked for her dog first. She didn't seem to bother about the children."

A reporter who called at Leonia the day after Justice Collins had taken the case under advisement was surprised to find Clara Harris still in the De Ruyter employ.

"I was flustered on the stand," the servant explained, as Mrs. De Ruyter nodded approvingly. "I never said Mrs. De Ruyter was drunk. I am willing to take the stand again and swear I was mistaken. When I said that at the first hearing, I didn't know what she drank from the bottle was tonic."

The mistress of the house sat beneath the portrait of Adriantsz De Ruyter, famous Dutch admiral-general of the seventeenth century, who swept the British fleet from the English Channel.

"So I am called an inebriate!" she said, with a short laugh. "It's all a mistake because the nurse saw me pour a drink from a bottle which was nothing more than a drug store prescription ordered by my doctor as a nerve tonic. Of course, when Jack entertains his friends here, cocktails are served but charges of excessive drinking are preposterous."

To prove that the children had had every advantage under her roof, Mrs. De Ruyter guided him through the mansion. There was a large bedroom attractively decorated, a spacious play room and nursery, private bath and sun porch and play-yard.

"Their father gave them duplicate gifts," she declared. "In that way, neither could want the other's present. He is so thoughtful and attentive to them. After he and his wife separated a year ago, the mother had the children and when Jack got back from Miami he found them sleeping with four children in one small room heated only by an oil burner. They were brought here when Michael developed a severe attack of pneumonia and diphtheria."

The marriage of Jack De Ruyter and Lois Quaintrain Clarke took place in 1928 when the two eloped just as everybody was expecting De Ruyter to marry Peggy Rich. That elopement has been attributed to the aforementioned aunt, Mrs. Moses Taylor Campbell. She is said to have put her foot down rather harshly on the De Ruyter arrangement after the rest of the socially prominent family had taken Peggy Rich into its midst and sent out engraved announcements for the wedding.

Peggy Rich, it happened, had a glamourous background. The restless daughter of a British army captain stationed in Cape Town, she had first married James B. Robinson, a wealthy Britisher, when she was 16 years old. They were divorced and she fell in love with Prince Carvalho, nephew of the then King Alfonso.

THAT romance ended when she came to New York and entered the Follies. It was Freddie Rich, an orchestra leader, that made her forget the Prince, and she became his bride. That was in 1926.

For two years Rich and his wife alternately quarreled and patched things up and then the trails of Peggy and De Ruyter crossed at Sherry's. A few months later, Rich filed suit for divorce in Reno, naming De Ruyter as co-respondent. He got his divorce and before expiration of the year needed to make the interlocutory decree final, Peggy announced her engagement to De Ruyter. One night she and De Ruyter even went so far as to drive to Morristown, Pennsylvania, for a marriage license, only to be reminded that the Rich divorce decree hadn't yet become effective. Then it was that Jack's aunt stepped in and De Ruyter made his decision to marry Lois Clarke, of the Social Register.

Then the injured Peggy came back with a breach of promise suit for $250,000. It's still pending and Peggy has a new interest in Edward Maxwell Cherkose, a Detroit broker who wants to be a crooner. Peggy insists she has no hard feelings toward the De Ruyters, who were awfully nice to her.

As for Jack De Ruyter, his antics have earned him the bounce from the Social Register. But his former wife remains in the gilded volume.

What the Celebrities Who Are Lampooned in the Musical Play "As Thousands Cheer" Have to Say About It.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

FOR the first time in the history of the American stage, a show has been built almost entirely around living celebrities. The great and the near great — men and women who are or who have recently been very much in the public eye—are trotted out on the boards and lampooned unmercifully through satirical impersonations and allusions. It is just as if some of the amateur performers of some of the Gridiron Club's dinners had turned "pro" and gone before the public with their roasting of officials high in governmental affairs. Nobody is too high or mighty or sacrosanct to escape, and the strangest part of it is that most of the persons lampooned don't mind it at all. At any rate, they say they don't, and they always laugh good-naturedly when questioned about it.

"As Thousands Cheer" is the name of the piece. Irving Berlin and Moss Hart are the authors. It is a musical play built up on the pattern of a topical revue, with the personalities of politics furnishing most of the topics. The work is holding forth at the Music Box Theater and is said to show promise of outstripping "Of Thee I Sing" in popularity. In some respects, it is similar to that success of three years ago, but it goes to much greater lengths in its satire and burlesque. Even such august personages as King George and Queen Mary of England and the Prince of Wales are made the butts of some extremely daring foolishness.

Former President Herbert Hoover and his wife are shown, in the flesh, giving the "razzberry" over the telephone to former Secretary of State Stimson. This will give a general idea of the lengths to which the show goes.

The Hoovers are presented in the White House on the night of March 3, 1933. The stage is cluttered with packing cases addressed to "Herbert Hoover, Palo Alto, California." Mrs. Hoover is revealed trying to pack up a Gilbert Stuart portrait of George Washington, but is restrained by the former President.

"Here we are," she remarks, "going back to Palo Alto with nothing to show that you've been President except a couple of dozen silver spoons—yes, I took the spoons, and I'd like to see the army and the navy try to make me give them back—with nothing except some silver spoons and a campaign poster that we can't hang up."

"Why can't we hang it up, Lou?" inquires the retiring President.

"Do you want to look at a picture of Charlie Curtis?" she asks in a roar of laughter.

Mrs. Hoover decides that before quitting the White House she's going to make a few telephone calls. She first gets Dolly Gann on the wire:

"This is Lou Hoover," she remarks. "For four years, Dolly, you've been upsetting my dinner parties and getting in everyone's hair. How would you like to take a jump in the lake?"

Mrs. Gann was one of the early visitors to "As Thousands Cheer," and when asked what she thought of it replied that it was "just too lovely." When pressed for a statement about the reference to herself, she smiled and said: "Oh, those things never bother me."

It is not on record that Andrew Mellon has seen the show. He is told by Mr. Hoover (over the phone) to go back to Pittsburgh and "wipe the soup off your mustache." Mr. Stimson, who is given the "Bronx cheer" by both the Hoovers via the telephone, did, however, see the show. Moss Hart happened to be in the theater that night and walked right out into the chill evening air when he heard that the former Secretary of State was in the house.

"I really felt a little guilty," he explained afterwards.

MR. STIMSON was closely watched by the stage manager through the curtains at the side of the stage. His face didn't move a muscle at the crucial scene and he remained to the end of the show.

On the opening night of the revue a distinguished looking gentleman in evening clothes stamped noisily out of the theater at the end of the Hoover sketch.

"That's the most damnable insult ever offered a former President of the United States," he said loudly in the lobby. "The American public will never stand for it."

The management felt a little timorous for a few days after that, and when Theodore Roosevelt, the retiring Governor-General of the Philippines and one of Mr. Hoover's appointees, was seen entering the theater one night someone was delegated to watch his reactions. The former President's son had a seat in the fourth row on the extreme side of the theater and alongside a hanging curtain which shields the stairway leading to the boxes. The spy planted himself behind the curtain. He was delighted to find the former Governor-General laughing uproariously with the rest of the audience.

After the "Bronx cheer," Mr. Roosevelt turned to someone in his party and remarked very audibly: "I'd like to say a few things to Stimson myself."

After that the management stopped worrying about the possible unfavorable reactions of the great American public. If one of the most prominent Republicans in the country found the sketch inoffensive then the rank and file could be expected to do likewise.

One of the most talked-of lampoons in the show is a song satirizing the recent Barbara Hutton-Prince Mdivani nuptials. The Woolworth heiress, who recently came into a small matter of $10,000,000, is impersonated by Marilyn Miller and the gay young gentleman from the Caucasus, who is reported to have had at least $1,000,000 settled upon him before the ceremony, is played by Clifton Webb. Miss Miller, in the role of Miss Hutton, sings:

The nickels and dimes I've got
Have bought me an awful lot;
A great big box
Of bonds and stocks,
A hundred frocks,
A car, a yacht.
But having so much and more
Is getting to be a bore;
It's not much fun
When day is done
Without someone
To love and adore.

How's chances?
Say, how are the chances
Of making you love me
The way I love you? . . . Etc.

Webb, as Prince Mdivani, sings in reply:

My tailor's the best, but he
Is dear as a man can be;
My shoes and spats,
My opera hats
And my cravats
Are made just for me.
I like an expensive car
And when at my favorite bar
I think it's fine
To order wine;
And when I dine
I love caviar.

He then sings that his "castle will need some restoring, ceiling and flooring, furniture, too," and is to be seen carefully appraising the diamond bracelets worn by Miss Miller.

All of this somewhat disturbed Franklyn Hutton, Barbara's father, when the show first opened. At that time Prince Mdivani and his bride were in Paris. Hutton wrote a temperate letter to the office of Sam H. Harris, the producer of the revue, suggesting that he was fearful the song would displease his daughter and urging that it either be eliminated or toned down before her return to the United States. Inasmuch as the number was one of the outstanding hits of the show, Harris was loath to make any changes in it and politely refused to consider Hutton's suggestion.

Came the day of the return of Prince Mdivani and his bride to these shores. They had booked seats for "As Thousands Cheer" by radio, and when word was brought backstage that night that they were in the theater Miss Miller had a bad attack of the "jitters" and hesitated about going on.

"She'll be terribly annoyed, I'm sure," she said to Webb in the wings as the orchestra was playing the introduction.

"Nonsense," returned the tall and rangy Webb. "She'll love it. Watch and see."

Webb was right. Miss Hutton was entranced. Between the acts she sent back a hurriedly scribbled note which read:

"My Dear Mr. Webb: Thank you so much for impersonating my husband so well. I only wish he could have sung such a charming song to me.

"BARBARA HUTTON MDIVANI."

At the end of the performance the Prince and Princess came back stage. The Princess was simply bubbling over with enthusiasm. She sought out Miss Miller and congratulated her and then breezed into Webb's dressing room and told him that he was "simply too good to be true." The Prince didn't have much to say, according to report. He just stood on the sidelines and forced a wan smile.

Some of London's staid and conservative newspapers took the sketch satirizing the British royal family very seriously to heart when "As Thousands Cheer" opened in Philadelphia. Of course no such spoofing of royalty would be permitted in England, and when cabled reports of the content of the lampoon reached the other side, several denunciatory "leading articles" appeared forthwith.

"GROSS American Insult to the British Crown," thundered the News-Chronicle in a double-leaded editorial in a box on the front page. One of the editors telephoned Sam Harris across the ocean and asked him what he proposed doing, in view of what was termed "the rising tide of British indignation." Harris replied that he simply wasn't going to do anything at all and referred the irate journalist to the interesting fact that no less a personage than Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the President of these United States, was playfully referred to in the same sketch and remarked that if she didn't mind he was sure the King and Queen wouldn't either.

The setting of this particular sketch is Buckingham Palace, and Queen Mary, delightfully portrayed by Helen Broderick, is seen fussing with King George because of a paragraph referring to the Prince of Wales which had appeared in the syndicated "column" of a New York gossip writer. A NEW French infantry rifle shoots 450 bullets a minute. It is the lightest, slickest, most perfect, most ingenious, most foolproof of all the automatic rifles that the Continental Powers have developed since the war, for the old-fashioned 1918 rifle that only shoots one ball at a time is simply a joke nowadays.

Naturally, the German military intelligence wanted one, or, rather, they wanted another, as they are making a collection. German agents have slipped off with one now and then ever since France put them into manufacture in 1924—they are known as model '24—but the French are continually improving the gun. On long marches a soldier can fall out for some indisposition, but he cannot keep his rifle. The soldiers are often reminded that the theft of a gun would be a form of treason, which is something to think about. And once outside the barracks the real difficulty just begins, for the frontier is under constant surveillance.

And yet one of these rifles finds its way mysteriously into Germany or Italy from time to time!

How is it done? How do the spies operate? As to the successful "coups," no one knows, for the authorities soft pedal such affairs. But the recent trial of a German agent, "La Belle Sophie," and the story of her dramatic dash through the night with one of these weapons—she was within a hairbreadth of getting away with it—has revealed how it is almost done sometimes. Without being one of the glamorous and seductive "espionnes" who paralyze their male victims with a deep, passionate stare, the French counter-espionage service found her among the coolest, most effective woman spies they have had to deal with.

A German named Joseph Drost and his wife, Sophie, suddenly bobbed up in the town of Saint Avold in Lorraine in the spring of 1928 and opened up a bar and cafe.

Any wise intelligence man would have smelled a rat at once, but the French are overwhelmed by such cases. Saint Avold, a town of 5000, has a garrison, the Eighteenth Chasseurs. It is only a few miles east of the Saar, a bit of German territory administered by the League of Nations, and if all the rest of the Franco-German frontier is watched carefully, this bit between France and the Saar is as open as a sieve. The getaway was satisfactory. Saint Avold is also in the very heart of the gigantic subterranean fortifications France is building along its eastern frontier. But Germans come and go freely in Alsace and Lorraine, and when they have legitimate business they are not troubled.

Drost, a former waiter and cabaret manager, proved to be a shrewd individual. He went away one day and came back with a troupe of snappy waitresses to serve meals in his establishment. He knew how to attract the clientele in a garrison town.

In a month or two he had all the wild boys of the barracks at his place nightly. He was a good story-teller, bought his share of drinks, played cards carelessly and gave credit until pay day. If he aroused any suspicion among the police for several years, he knew how to fix them. Drost's personal spying activities are obscure, but finally neighbors complained of his place being too riotous and the police expelled him from France in the summer of 1932. He went over to Sarrebruck, in the Saar, and camped there, leaving La Belle Sophie to run the cafe along more quiet lines. According to French counter-espionage theories, Drost continued to pull the strings from there, and his wife was only putty in his hands. Anyway, from the minute he pulled out the spying business began to hum.

La Belle Sophie was a plump little brunette in the early thirties, with little sparkle or coquetry about her. La Belle was simply a courtesy to her sex.

As long as Drost was on the job, she sat behind the cash register, looking over the clientele with a hard, cold, appraising eye, saying little, listening a lot. Late one evening, after all the soldiers had gone back to their barracks, she became confidential with Alphonse Choppe, a young foreman who was working on the underground fortresses. Choppe had expensive ideas. He had a new motorcycle and wanted a motor car. "I know how a clever fellow like you can make a pile of money," she whispered. Tossing him a package of de luxe cigarettes and opening a bottle of the best cognac, La Belle Sophie drew even closer.

"You are in charge of the gallery in the fort at Coume, that is down 350 feet, aren't you? There is a man over in Sarrebruck who wants the plans for that job. Nothing wrong about that; everyone around here knows pretty much of what is being done. No one would find out. Would 20,000 francs mean anything to you?" Choppe gasped. It meant about 15 months pay to him, and he needed the money badly.

One day he got away with a bundle of blueprints—the thing has happened dozen of times on this big job—dashed over to Sarrebruck on his motorcycle and got the 20,000 francs from a German engineer named Weber, who was centralizing all the reports about French fortifications. He was suspected, but slipped out of the charges.

After that La Belle had him at her mercy, and this woman drove him to undertake other jobs for her.

Map showing the locations of Saint Avold and Sarrebruck.

"If you weren't such an imbecile," she remarked icily one night when they were alone in the cafe, "you would go and get the thing the man wants, and not sit there lapping up your beer. Don't you need the 100,000 francs he offers?"

"The thing" was the latest model of the French automatic rifle. From the viewpoint of a gunsmith, it is the most ingenious weapon ever invented. The arm weighs only 20 pounds, unlike the heavy machine guns which often weigh several hundred. It can actually fire 600 a minute, for short periods naturally, but has been geared down to 450. The recoil has been very cleverly absorbed by springs in the stock. A man of fair strength can fire it from his shoulder, and even fire it while marching. A second trigger also permits one to fire separate shots. The gun has been continually improved. Weak points have been strengthened. The feed, which jams so often in all automatic rifles, has been simplified.

MOST important of all, the gun has been given such hard usage for 10 years that every weak point has been remedied. It is as much of a veteran gun today as though it had gone through a war.

The gun, incidentally, is part of an entirely new conception of war.

The Continental armies are completely transforming the infantry. Hereafter all charges will be made by baby tanks, armored cars and mounted machine guns, with speed limited only by terrain and opposition. The infantry, so called, may follow behind to clean up and consolidate, but owing to increased automatic firing, the exposed foot soldier in masses is obsolete. He becomes a light machine gunner. He will live in a nest of steel and concrete, and when he travels it will be largely in steel cars.

Although only a civilian, Choppe had frequent contact with the military, notably guards and sentinels around the fortifications. Driven by La Belle Sophie, he did his utmost to steal a rifle, but he failed every time.

La Belle had more than one string to her bow. For months, for years, she had studied the young soldiers in the garrison, to pick out one who would do a job for her. She had to have one who was naturally tricky and crooked, and yet cunning enough to slip a gun out of the barracks. She also had to pick on one whose year of military service had almost expired, and who saw the future as a blank. Finally, she chose Rene Plestan, a country boy from Normandy. He seemed to embody in his character all the requisites for the task she had in mind. By one device or another she kept him at the cafe after all the other boys had left.

The espionne arranged a flirtation with her prettiest waitress that kept him in a fever. She taught him to like expensive liqueurs and gold-tip cigarettes. She talked of big money and an easy life. She mocked patriotism, military service and discipline.

"When is your service up, Rene?" she asked one night after he had fallen entirely under her sway.

"The first of November," he growled, "and I don't know what to do. I have no money, no work, nothing."

"How would you like to make 100,000 francs" she whispered, giving him a smacking kiss. The boy's eyes almost popped out.

"I know a man over in Sarrebruck who wants one of these new model rifles," Sophie went on. "He is an arms manufacturer; he wants to make some, and he needs one to copy. Don't you know that French manufacturers are stealing German rifles all the time and copying them, and the Germans doing the same? Everyone does it nowadays. Where can you find an honest man.

"IT IS a bit risky," she went on, "but a clever fellow like you could get away with one without any trouble. If you will get it out of the barracks some night, I'll be waiting outside in a car, and we'll dash over to Sarrebruck with it. And we'll take your girl friend along and make a night of it over there."

Rene Plestan, who was just 20, hesitated many days, but he finally agreed to make the try on the night of October 6, as certain circumstances would be especially favorable.

La Belle Sophie began to make arrangements to sell out her cafe, for the rifle was the principal objective of her mission, and once she had that her job in France was finished.

As the espionne had patiently figured out, there was no moon at Saint Avold on the night of October 6. It turned out to be darker than usual. By 10 o'clock the town and the barracks were asleep. At midnight Sophie turned out the last clients from her cafe, put on a heavy coat and slipped down a side street to meet a local liveryman she had engaged to drive her to Sarrebruck in his car. At 1 o'clock they pulled up in a side street near the barracks, turned out their headlights, and waited.

The barracks were pitch dark, but Rene Plestan, who had only feigned sleep, crept into his clothes when the clock struck 1:30 and slunk into the gun room, for which he had found a key.

A few minutes later a shadow, bowed down by a package wrapped in cloth, tiptoed across the gravel toward the iron fence which surrounds the barracks. As he waited, a sentinel passed. Hurriedly, the shadow squeezed itself through two bars and fled to where the car was waiting. "You've got it?" Sophie pulled the Poor Grumpy! He hasn't slept a wink all winter. Years gone by he would go to bed in the autumn and sleep soundly until the first warm days of spring. But alas, this year it was different. "What's the matter?" he has asked a hundred times. "Why can't I sleep?" At last some deep thinking soul suggested that the "unrest" that the newspapers have been talking about has finally gotten around to the bears and other winter sleepers. This sets Grumpy thinking, so he goes to the home of his cousin, Rip, and bangs on the door until Rip opens it. Rip is poking his head out as RIP—Hey, what's the matter with you, waking me up at this time of the winter? You're lucky you didn't wake up Redda. She'd have taken a broom to you. What do you want, anyway?

GRUMPY—I just came over to see if you were sleeping. I can't sleep and some fellow just told me that the papers were all talking about unrest; they say it's all over the world.

RIP—What unrest?

GRUMPY—I don't know, but whatever it is, I got it. And I haven't found a cure for it yet. I even counted live sheep, but I couldn't go to sleep. (After assuring Grumpy that he and Redda have slept soundly all winter, Rip closes the door. He is very much excited by what he has just heard.)

RIP—Gosh! Unrest all over the world. Grumpy should never have come here when he knew he had it. I might have caught it from him—come to think of it, I never felt wider awake in my life. Gosh! I'm going to wake Redda and tell her. (He dashes wildly into her bedroom and awakens her. She sits up in bed and glares at him while he tells her all about Grumpy's visit and unrest. When he has finished she gets her broom and makes poor Rip take his clothes and get out of the house.)

REDDA—(Standing at the door.) You old fool. You wake me up to tell me some wild tale about unrest. All that's wrong with that old bear is he ate something before he went to bed that's keeping him awake. Now you get away from here. (Rip dresses and arms himself with a big club and starts following the footprints of Grumpy.)

RIP—All right. I'll get away from here—and I won't come back until I've put Grumpy to sleep.

The Brazilian Jungles HAZARDOUS? ONLY a BORE!

Says Peter Fleming, the Young Britisher, Who Set Out to Solve the Mystery of the Missing Col. Fawcett.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

PETER FLEMING is an explorer who refuses to take exploring seriously. He has just come back from what would seem to most people a perilous adventure through the unknown wilds of Central Brazil and he writes about it as though it had been an amusing week-end at a congenial country house.

The man-eating fish? Nonsense, says Peter Fleming, who swam and waded in an unexplored river where there were shoals of them. The cruel and bloodthirsty savages? On the contrary a very gay and child-like people who will do one's bidding for a few trinkets from the ten-cent store. But the fierce insects, the heartless jungle, the unknown campo where never before the foot of white man has trod? All tosh, says Mr. Fleming, with the ironic, humorous indifference that marks a very definite type of upper class Britisher.

It would be wrong to say that Fleming, in his just published book, debunks South American exploration. He doesn't go to that much bother. It is simply that under the scrutiny of his cool detachment the whole business—from Teddy Roosevelt and his much-heralded River of Doubt on down to the present—seems to have been greatly exaggerated. At least that is the conclusion one draws from his "Brazilian Adventure" (Charles Scribner's Sons, publishers) which is at the top of current best-seller lists.

Not only does Fleming refuse to take exploring seriously, but he has a low opinion of the value of the exploring business. When you come back from some place where no one has ever been before, he intimates, you feel that you must startle, amaze and awe your listeners, it is your duty, one of the conventions of exploring. He is very frank in saying that a part of his journey was uncomfortable, a part amusing, much of it very boring, almost none hazardous.

"So it requires," he says, "far less courage to be an explorer than to be a chartered accountant. The courage which enables you to face the prospect of sitting on a high stool in a smoky town and adding up figures over a period of years is definitely a higher, as well as a more useful, sort of courage than any which the explorer may be called on to display. For the explorer is living under natural conditions, and the difficulties which Nature equipped man to face: whereas the chartered accountant is living under unnatural conditions, to which a great deal of his equipment is dangerously ill-suited. Moreover, and finally, the chartered accountant is doing an essential job and the explorer (in these days) is not."

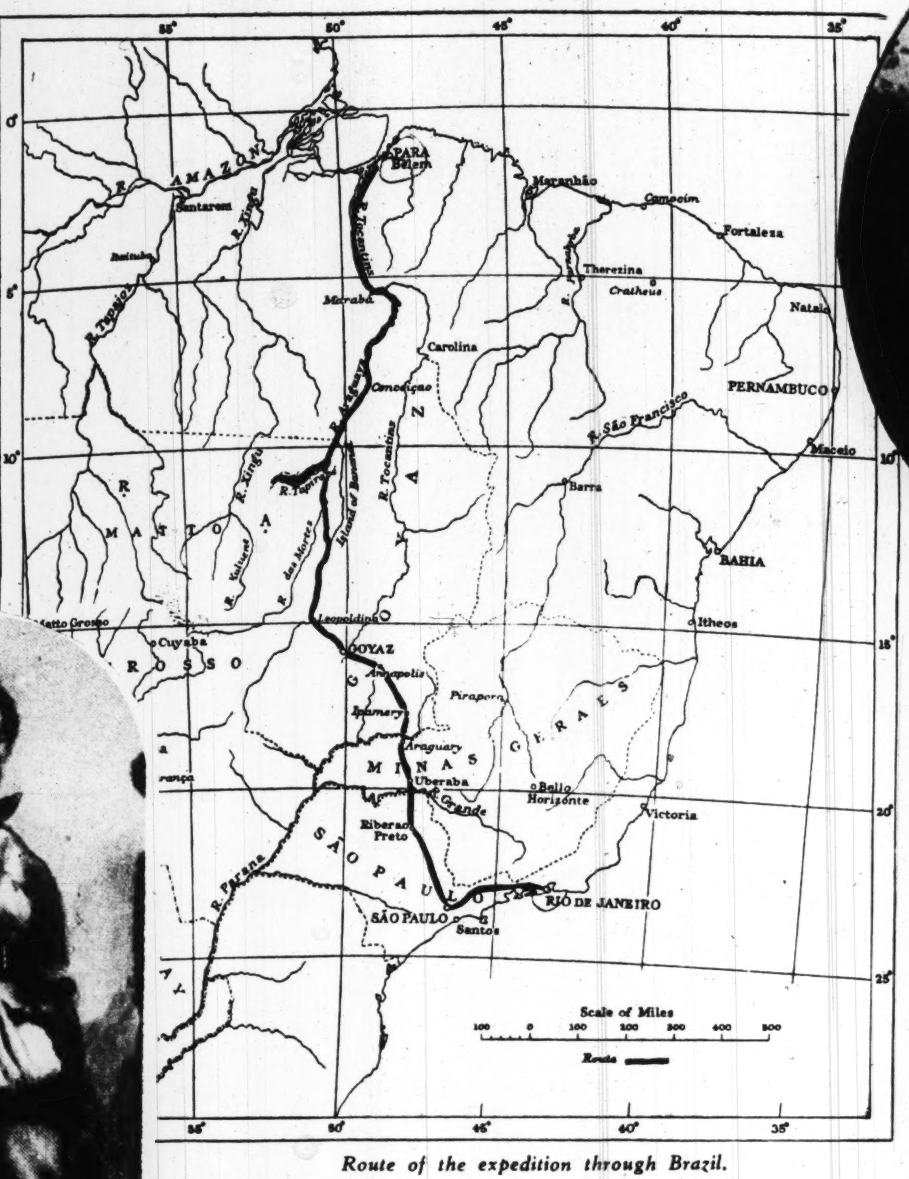
The reader may well ask why, in view of Peter Fleming's low opinion of the exploring business, he should have elected to go with this expedition to Brazil. For he left an excellent post, as literary editor of The Spectator in London, and a very desirable position in the social and literary life of London. The answer is an advertisement of the expedition in the personals column of the London Times which so aroused Fleming's curiosity that, despite his skepticism, he became interested and finally signed up, agreeing to pay about $2000 for the privilege.

It was all very casual. Fleming, emerging from his London offices after he had agreed to go on the journey, encountered by chance a friend, Roger, who was walking along on the opposite side of the street. "Roger, come to Brazil," Fleming called across to his friend. There was a brief exchange of conversation about the expedition and when they parted, Roger said, "I'll let you know for certain on Monday," But, Fleming adds, his fate was already sealed.

THE avowed objective of the expedition was to search for Colonel P. H. Fawcett, his son Jack and another young Englishman, Raleigh Rinnell, missing in an almost entirely unexplored region in the Central Brazilian Plateau since 1925. The Fawcett party was searching for a mysterious lost city and fabulous lost gold mines when last heard from. Colonel Fawcett had told his friends that he might be out of communication for two years—no one should be alarmed for them until the end of that time. Since 1927 the Fawcett mystery has been the subject of much speculation. Commander George Dyott reached a point which he believed to be within 150 miles of the spot where Colonel Fawcett, his son and Rimell were massacred by Indians. But other witnesses, who have also penetrated into the jungle near where Fawcett is reported by Indians to have disappeared, insist that one or more of the party is alive, living in captivity of the most humiliating and galling sort.

Peter Fleming, from a photograph taken on the trip.

From the first Fleming doubted that Fawcett or the other two were alive and he came more and more to doubt that the expedition could get even within striking distance of the point on the unexplored river Kuluene where the Fawcett party is thought to have last been seen. The expedition took on a fantastic quality, it seemed to have almost no direction or planning. And this was particularly true when the so-called leader of the party joined them in Rio de Janeiro. This man, whom Fleming gives the fictional name of Major Pingle, was an American citizen who held a commission in the Peruvian army. He had been engaged by cable from England because of his wide knowledge, or supposed knowledge, of the interior of Brazil.



Route of the expedition through Brazil.

But as the party progressed upcountry from Rio, first by train and then in motor trucks, Fleming's doubts of Major Pingle grew. Gradually he gathered that Major Pingle had little or no intention of leading the party up the unknown Tapirape River, that to the Major it was simply a rather elaborate kind of hunting trip. But Fleming was determined that they should at least try to reach the spot where the Fawcett expedition is thought to have met disaster. Otherwise, he was afraid, the whole thing would take on the air of an absurd fiasco. In several long dispatches to the London Times, he had described the details of the search. He felt he must at least try to live up to the terms. After many days, hot, dusty, tiresome days, they reached the Araguaya, the first river on which they were to travel.

"The Araguaya was there, in front of us and beyond was a reddening sky. We gaped at this river. There was exaltation in the air."

In native dug-out canoes and with native guides the party began the long journey down the Araguaya. In the early morning the river and the jungle that walled it in were a source of strange and beautiful fascination.

"But the magic," he adds, drained gradually out of the day, and you awoke from your thoughts to find that the river had become a hard and customary place. And this was a day like another, without very much enchantment."

He warns those who want information about the country that "This book is all truth and no facts." Paddling up the Tapirape proved far more difficult than going down the Araguaya. And here Major Pingle refused to let the expedition go on to the proposed cross-jungle stretch, about 100 miles, to the Kuluene. Fleming, Roger and one other member of the party rebelled and with one of the Indian guides who remained loyal to them they pushed on up the Tapirape.

But the season of rains was very close. The jungle in drought was one thing, the jungle in the rains was another and quite deadly place. They were soaked and most of their food destroyed by a torrential icy downpour. After some deliberation they at last conceded defeat and pointed the prow of their canoe down the Tapirape. It was a race against a food supply that dwindled with terrifying rapidity.

"We were living now," the author writes, 'under the most satisfactory conditions—conditions in which the mere prolongation of life is all the business and all the pleasure you require. We were troubled by no extraneous hopes and fears. That day we had traveled a certain distance; had filled our stomachs; and were now in a place of great beauty. Night fell on what one might have been pardoned for mistaking for Paradise. But I suspect that there are no mosquitoes in Paradise."

Col. P. H. Fawcett.

When they reached the Araguaya again they caught up and passed the balance of the party. A subdued quarrel resulted. Major Pingle refused to refund to the rebels their money and there began then what was perhaps the most exciting phase of the whole journey—a thousand-mile race down the Araguaya between Fleming's group and Major Pingle's group. The objective was the wireless station at the port of Para. Fleming wanted to reach it first so that he could stop payment on the travel checks he had given the Major and catch the only boat sailing for England that month. The Major wanted to get to Para first, so he could tell the world what a fool and scoundrel Fleming was.

Most of the distance, at first in native canoes, later in launches hardly more reliable, the race was practically neck and neck. Fleming only just won.

"IN THE last analysis," says Fleming in conclusion, "it had been comedy I looked for from Brazil, and comedy had been forthcoming—comedy with a faint but stimulating tang of melodrama."

Shortly after he wrote his book about Brazil, Fleming went to Manchuria. And he was there when word reached him of the American success of his book. For all that he may jeer faintly at the business of exploring, he is himself a traveler and adventurer of first rank, in the great and living tradition that goes back to Drake and the other English voyagers.

The first lady of the land saw a performance in January, and laughed as heartily as the rest.

Strangely enough, Noel Coward, who is reputed to have one of the most highly developed senses of humor in captivity, took umbrage, it is said, at a reference to himself in one of the sketches.

In this particular sketch the curtain rises revealing Coward's hotel suite on the morning after a farewell party which he has given just before sailing for England.

All of the hotel employes have, in a manner of speaking, "gone Noel Coward." They give utterance to a continuous stream of burlesque epigrams which are delightful take-offs on the playwright's rippling dialogue. Webb plays the role of a waiter who has modeled himself after Coward, and Miss Miller is Aggie Reilly, a chambermaid, who has seen Lynn Fontanne about the place so much that she talks exactly like that former Theater Guild star. At the end, as originally written, Webb drinks a toast to the playwright which is a paraphrase of the final toast in "Cavalcade." Raising his glass, he says:

"To Noel Coward, whom we all love. May he find peace, happiness and dignity again."

On his recent flying visit to New York, Coward saw "As Thousands Cheer" on the night of his arrival. He came back stage in a bit of a flutter after the performance and bumped into Moss Hart.

"It's a grand show," he remarked, "but I must make objection to that last line. I insist that I am a dignified person. I resent being considered undignified. I must ask you to change that speech."

AND so the line was altered to read: " . . . May he find dignity, peace and happiness again."

Another sketch pokes broad fun at both the John D. Rockefellers, father and son. John D. Jr. is revealed screwing his courage up to the point where he can break the news to his father that he has invested $250,000,000 of the family fortune in Radio City. It is the senior Rockefeller's birthday and he is planning to give the old gentleman Radio City as a birthday present. At first John D. Sr. thinks he is referring to a radio set and says:

"Wouldn't have one in the house. They're always getting out of order."

When it dawns on him that his son has invested countless millions in the largest theater in the world and 80-story buildings and what not, he becomes petulant.

"That's not a birthday present," he remarks, "that's a dirty trick."

man's teeth rattle, but that may be hyperbole. Mrs. Gower says she doesn't remember shaking him, but she was a pretty busy woman and may have forgotten.

It occurred to the man then that he had a draw coming, so he said he would get somebody to put her out and she said that would suit her to a nicety and invited him to bring on his best, but he changed his mind and stood pat.

By that time all of the men were ready to pass, and it couldn't be too soon. Mrs. Gower saw that they wanted to get away, and she wasn't one to hold them when their wives and mothers might be looking for them, so she told them they could go, and they went. All but Earl. He stood before his mother, crushed and repentant.

"Have you lost any money?" she asked.

"Not very much."

"How much?"

"Well, I had $12, and I paid a couple of little bills in town. I lost the rest, I guess."

Earl fished the receipts out of his pocket, and together they added them up. The difference was what he had lost in the game. His mother gathered up the money she had scattered on the floor, counted up enough to cover Earl's losses and pocketed it.

With that little matter settled, Mrs. Gower cast an appraising eye over the scene—the overturned chairs, the torn cards and the money scattered over the floor—and was willing to call it a day. She turned to her son. "Come," she said, and they went down the stairs and out through a little knot of people who had gathered on the sidewalk, and went home.

And that's why Mother Gower has received so many letters asking her to run for Sheriff.

000. In South America there are long completed strips and long gaps in the international road. The Colombia section is reported as "practically" complete, as is the stretch from Mendoza, Argentina, to Buenos Aires. Two thousand miles of the route in Chile, Peru and Ecuador is listed as passable, but another 2000 miles is yet to be built in those countries. It is estimated that from five to seven years will be required to complete the South American portion of the highway.

Several years ago Miss Clairenore Stinnes, daughter of the late Hugo Stinnes, German steel magnate, drove an automobile through Mexico and part of South America in the course of a world motor tour. Her drive through the Andes in Peru was said to have been the first ever made by automobile over that route.

North of the United States, 450 miles of the International Highway is yet to be constructed in British Columbia, 300 miles in the Yukon and 225 miles in Alaska. More than 800 miles of paved road has been built north from the United States-Canada border, and highway construction has been started south from Fairbanks. It is estimated that the Canada-Alaska road will cost about $12,000,000.

Development of this vast highway system between the American continents will involve, of course, the creation of many new business enterprises—gasoline stations, repair shops, tourist camps, hotels, refreshment stands and such—along the route, and it is thought that the Central American people particularly will benefit economically; and that profits from business brought by the highway will raise living standards. Short wave radio stations will be a necessity along the highway, it is believed, and undoubtedly there will be international agreements to provide for keeping the road open even in case of war. That contingency, of course, may be fairly remote by the time the road is in use throughout its length, for it is expected that this great highway will knit more firmly the bonds of peace among the nations of the Americas.

package into the car and gave the boy, who was in civilian clothes, a caress. The car dashed off on the road to Sarrebruck. Sophie put her plump little arms around his neck, huddled close and prevented him from babbling. One never knew about chauffeurs; this one was merely the best one available.

The espionne drew a long breath of satisfaction. They had almost arrived at the Saar frontier, which meant safety. French guards ask only to see permits.

WHAT is it that makes things often go wrong when persons are under an intense strain? Suddenly, the chauffeur stopped. "I am not going any farther," he said. "What's biting you?" the espionne asked sharply. "Please, mister!" pleaded Rene Plestan. "Take us just to Sarrebruck." The chauffeur was obdurate. He sensed something queer, and he didn't want to be mixed up. He never tattled later; he simply wanted to go home, and he went home to Saint Avold with his passengers and the automatic rifle.

It was after 2 o'clock in the morning, and here they were with their rifle. It was enough to rattle some persons, but the espionne kept her wits. She hunted up another chauffeur, who was under obligations to her, and borrowed a one-ton truck, which was the only car he had in working order. Rene Plestan took the wheel. La Belle jumped in beside him, and they flew over to Sarrebruck in half an hour without an incident. They handed the rifle over to a German agent and drove back to Saint Avold. Sophie said they would arrange about the money the next day. Plestan slipped into the barracks and tried to sleep.

The next afternoon she was at the railway station with all her baggage, ready to say adieu to France, when a man touched her arm lightly.

A few minutes later she was in the office of the local Surete Chief. "I have three things to tell you, Sophie Drost," he said coldly. "Choppe was arrested at the fortifications this morning, and has confessed. Rene Plestan was arrested at the barracks this morning and confessed. And we seized the rifle at Sarrebruck this morning, just as it was ready to be sent to Germany. What have you got to say?"

The espionne turned deathly pale, the words stuck in her throat and then she tumbled into a faint.

She got three years; Drost, who is in flight, 10 years; Choppe, eight years, and Plestan, three.

"Ben-Gay" penetrates deeper, stays in longer, routs pain quicker!

Don't be a slave to pain—kill it this quick way. Rub on "Ben-Gay," the original Baume Analgesique. Its hyposensitizing (pain relieving) action is sure because it penetrates through the skin into the muscles and the joints themselves.

Because "Ben-Gay" gives such relief, hoards of imitators have sprung up. They do not possess the same hyposensitizing and antipyretic action of "Ben-Gay." Look for the red "Ben-Gay" on the box—it's your guarantee. Don't suffer pain an hour longer.

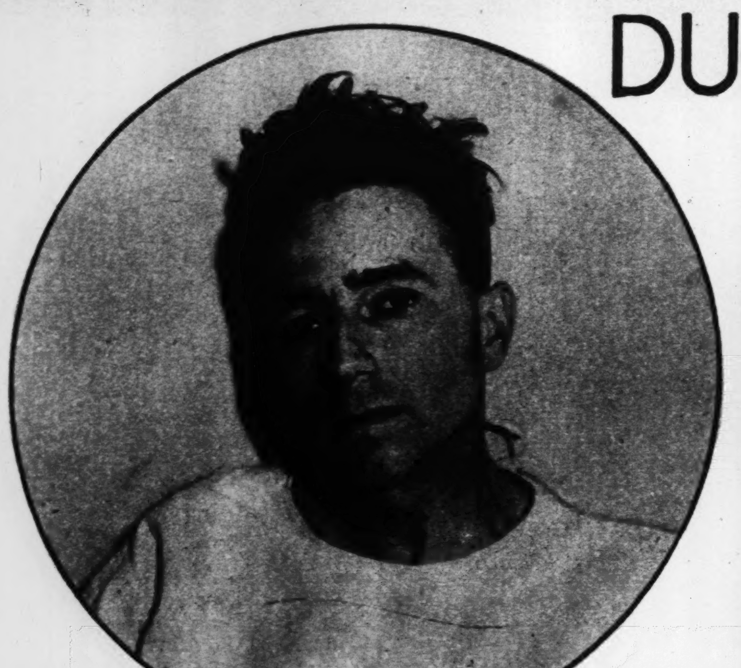
DUG OUT a SECRET HOME in the CELLARS of HOLLYWOOD

For Two Years Herbert Wright Used a Convenient Drug Store as His Commissary and Wine Shop—and Then the Police Arrived.



Herbert Wright.

By A. L. WOOLDRIDGE

HOLLYWOOD.

TWO years as a human mole—two years as a dweller in dark passages and burrows in the heart of Hollywood's business district! That's the life that has been lived by Herbert C. Wright, 33-year-old mechanic. Beneath the streets and in the basements of office buildings he has prowled at night exploring conduits and caves, poking into mysterious vaults and drifting as a wanderer in a subterranean world.

He emerged the other night something like a limited emerging from a tunnel, while slugs from a sawed-off shotgun peppered his hide and two Los Angeles detectives extended their waiting arms.

A strange case, this, a man who voluntarily turned his back upon the world and decided to hobnob with the rats, mice and slinking shadows which populate the basements of city cellars. He chose as his basis of operation the southeast corner of Hollywood and Cahuenga boulevards—one of the busiest suburban corners in Los Angeles. By taking out partitions between basement buildings, providing ingeniously concealed trap doors and constructing sliding panels from one cellar basement into another, he took unto himself an area of half a block as a playground. There unhindered, he had the general run from the Owl Drug Store at the corner to and through a hosiery store, pen shop, dress shop, typewriter store, tennis and golf store, pawn shop, cigar store and tailor shop. Beneath a stairway in the dress shop he fixed his bed made of sacks, cushions and even linens.

The Owl Drug Store served as his commissary — cuts of roast beef and roast pork, chili, tamales, pie, cake, milk and ice cream in wide variety. In addition there were chocolate bars, chocolate creams, peppermints, coconuts, caramels, fudge and on top of this limitless cigars and cigarettes—only he didn't smoke. At the cigar store were imported stogies in endles variety.

A detective crawling through one of the passages dug out by Wright.

According to a confession signed at police headquarters, Wright's daily routine consisted of something like this:

Upon arrival at home he went to his understairs boudoir beneath the dress shop, if necessary, to change to street clothes. Carefully waiting until everyone was gone he would proceed to the ladies' wash stand to clean up After combing his hair, which was always after 6 p. m., he would go for his evening stroll on the boulevard or possibly to a theater, always a disinterested onlooker at the boulevard activities. It was only after theater hours that his real life began.

Using a skeleton key to give him admittance to the woman's dress shop he entered a closet where a hole had been made through a wall into the drug store, and carefully covered it over with cardboard. There his world was his own. The contents of a whole store lay spread at his feet. Behind the prescription case were choice wines and rums and brandies. In the ice box, on prescription, was beer from the vats of Germany, champagne from the wineries of France, and from the Orient were those exotic beverages which lend languor to the racked bodies of stricken men; a Utopian dream. And yet, with all let it be said that Wright never abused his opportunities. Night after night he wined and dined but adhered to temperance.

This condition might have gone along for years but in time the drug store began to miss things. In the first place there was a general run on bottles and cans of vaseline, of glue and plaster of Paris. The vaseline was used in drilling out bricks and stones from dividing basements. The plaster of Paris was used as a mortar very lightly applied.

A time came when he would rather be underground, under streets and prowling, than in the company of his fellow men.

THEN Herbert Wright made his mistake. One day's receipts at the drug store exclusive of the sum deposited in the bank amounted to more than $800. For a long period of time from a secure hiding place, Wright had watched the manager, A. B. Humphries, work the combination of the safe each morning. And Wright secured the complete dial arrangement. That night while the store was dark and the city still, Wright crept to the safe and tried his set of figures. The safe opened, the $800 was carefully extracted from the salesmen's envelopes and each replaced with infinite care.

Eight hundred dollars in cool cash, according to his confession at the police station! He boarded a train and went back to Detroit where he deposited the money in a bank. Salted away! Safely cached.

And then the bank went broke!

That was in March, 1932. In February of 1933 Wright decided to make a second haul. Again he got approximately $800, according to his confession. Business was going high. This time, however, the loot was not deposited in Detroit. It was put in a little hole gouged out in the Owl basement. Again the police and detectives were called. The officers found holes had been drilled in the ceiling of the cellar in an attempt to make trap doors. They also found bricks had been removed from the foundation wall back of a waste paper can in the cellar and replaced with plaster of paris stolen from the Owl Drug Store. This was to avoid detection and still leave it accessible.

Still the petty thefts went on with the growing suspicion that they constituted an inside job. Next thing, Humphries noticed powder on the dial of the safe and inquired of one of the employes if he spilled it there. This was in December of 1933. At about the same time a typewriter was reported missing from a store next door. This aroused suspicion, so Bill Smith, special investigator for the drug company, was assigned to the case.

To a trained eye it's the little things that lead to the big disclosures. Smith discovered that in a balcony above the show windows there were no cobwebs. He also noticed that there were a lot of glue and vaseline tubes tossed aside as though discarded hurriedly. Likewise, he found a hole bored in a partition, a hole about an inch in circumference through which operation of the safe dial might be observed.

Wright's bedroom.

From that time on the case developed into one of watchful waiting. Night after night hidden eyes were kept on entrances with employes carefully checked and locks examined. Still no burglar.

But one night not long ago, Smith and city detectives C. W. Gains and Leon Egan found a trap door loosened. Finding the entrance to one of the tunnels, the first of three men crawled in. He lay down in the cellar beneath the woman's dress shop where the others joined him.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the body of a man slowly began appearing in an aperture in a partition and dropped to the floor.

"Throw 'em up!" ordered Gains. The reply was a sudden dart towards the entrance hole and a scramble to get through the opening. Gains leveled a sawed-off shotgun and fired, the body of the man toppling outside. The officer did not pause in his pursuit but fired into the gaping darkness. A moment later he had plunged through the narrow opening and engaged in a struggle. Wright managed to wrench loose and gain the outside of the building where there were more detectives. Wright fell exhausted, blood gushing from a wound in the [illegible]. He was found to be peppered from shoulders to heels, although not dangerously wounded. Once again he managed to break away but was recaptured.

DETECTIVES found in the mole's den maps of all nearby safe combinations. They found along the tunnel passageways trap doors studded with nails so ingeniously arranged that they would fall on an intruder's head when touched. Every measure calculated to expedite his movements and comfort was supplied. He had one exit into a telephone tunnel which terminated at a school nearly two blocks away. There he had fitted up a second den, installed a typewriter stolen from the typewriter shop, had cut into an electric light and, all in all, arranged for a life of comfort and ease.

Calumet cakes have "Velvety Crumb"

YOU DON'T have to be told when a cake has been made with Calumet Baking Powder. That glorious "velvety crumb" spells "Calumet" every time!

Feel it! Velvet itself is no softer. Touch the cut surface! See how gently it springs back . . . temptingly moist . . . delicately elastic. Now taste it! Your tongue, too, tells you of exquisite fineness!

Why does Calumet give cakes such a remarkable texture? It's because Calumet is really two baking powders in one. A quick one for the mixing bowl... its action set free by liquid. A slower one for the oven... held in reserve to act in the oven heat. These two actions gently, steadily raise the batter all through the mixing and baking, creating cake as soft and airy as a cloud.

This Double-Action makes Calumet so efficient that you use less... only one level teaspoon to a cup of sifted flour in most recipes.

Try Calumet in this Regal Caramel Cake. Send today for the new picture-lesson book of baking!

REGAL CARAMEL CAKE

(three eggs)

- 2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
- 2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅜ cup butter or other shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 eggs, well beaten
- 6 tablespoons milk
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ teaspoon lemon extract

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add flavoring. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375° F.) 25 minutes, or until done. Spread Caramel Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake.

CARAMEL FROSTING

- 1½ cups brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1½ cups granulated sugar
- 1½ cups milk
- 2 tablespoons butter

Combine sugars and milk and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Then boil, without stirring, until a small amount of syrup forms a very soft ball in cold water (232°F.). Add butter and remove from fire. Cool to lukewarm (110°F.); beat until thick and creamy and of right consistency to spread. If necessary, place over hot water to keep soft while spreading. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers.

(All measurements are level.)

9,000 MILES IN A 26-FOOT SLOOP!

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO SAIL A TINY BOAT ACROSS 9,000 MILES OF OCEAN

HOW ARE YOUR NERVES?

A TRUE TALE OF THE SEA IN WHICH TWO YOUNG MEN SAIL 9,000 MILES AND WIN A 4,000-MILE RACE ACROSS THE ATLANTIC — WHILE THE NEWSPAPERS OF THE WORLD SING THEIR PRAISES.

NOW MEET TOM OLSEN, WHO TELLS THE STORY—

"WE STARTED FROM TALLINN, ESTONIA, HEADED FOR NEW YORK VIA LONDON, SPAIN AND AFRICA. FIRST THING WE HIT WAS WEATHER, AND PLENTY OF IT."

"ENTERING THE HARBOR OF KIEL IN A BLINDING SNOWSTORM WE MISTOOK A LIGHTHOUSE FOR A LIGHTSHIP, AND TRIED TO PASS TO STARBOARD WHEN WE SHOULD HAVE GONE TO PORT."

"THERE WE WERE—STUCK! GETTING LOOSE AGAIN WAS GOING TO BE SOME JOB, SO WE SET TO WORK—"

"IMMERSED IN ICY WATER WE STRUGGLED FOR TWO HOURS AFTER SHIFTING ALL OUR WATER, FOOD, AND FUEL."

"WE GOT THROUGH THE KIEL CANAL, TOUCHED ENGLAND, AND THEN IN THE BAY OF BISCAY WE CAUGHT A TERRIFIC HURRICANE!"

"I WAS ON DECK, AT THE HELM—WHEN A MOUNTAIN OF A WAVE SLAPPED ME OUT INTO THE RAGING SEAS. ONLY A LIFELINE AND SNAPPY SEAMANSHIP SAVED MY LIFE."

"WE RODE THE STORM OUT SUCCESSFULLY AND HAD A QUIET TIME OF IT FOR A CHANGE, UNTIL ONE DAY, OFF THE COAST OF AFRICA"

"—SEVEN SMALL MOORISH CRAFT HEADED FOR US. THAT SECTION OF THE COAST HAD A BAD NAME—SO WE UNSLUNG ALL OF OUR ARTILLERY. WHEN THEY SAW WE WERE READY FOR THEM—THEY STOOD BACK—TO OUR GREAT RELIEF."

"AT DAKAR, WE MET AN OLD FRIEND, OWNER OF THE 'ENTERPRISE.' HE SAID HE COULD BEAT US TO NEW YORK. WE SAID HE COULDN'T. AS WE PREPARED FOR THE RACE, A FUNNY THING HAPPENED."

"JUST BEFORE WE SHOVED OFF A FRIEND GAVE US A CARTON OF CAMELS. WHAT A BREAK FOR US! THEY SURE LOOKED GOOD."

"THE RACE STARTED WITH THE 'ENTERPRISE' IN THE LEAD, BUT AFTER HITTING THE TRADE WINDS, WE QUICKLY OUT-DISTANCED THEM—"

"BUT WE GOT BECALMED IN THE DREADED SARGASSO SEA WHERE WE SLATTED ABOUT FOR 8 LONG DAYS WHILE WE DARNED NEAR STARVED!"

HERE'S WHAT "TOM" OLSEN SAYS ABOUT CAMELS—

"THERE'S ONE CIGARETTE THAT I CAN SMOKE STEADILY WITHOUT GETTING NERVOUS OR "FED-UP" WITH SMOKING. I MEAN CAMELS. THEY TASTE MILD—NEVER FLAT—AND THERE IS A DELICATE FLAVOR TO CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS THAT CERTAINLY DOES SET CAMELS APART FROM THE ORDINARY RUN OF CIGARETTES.

FOR THE SAKE OF YOUR NERVES—

CAMELS ARE MADE FROM FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS THAN ANY OTHER POPULAR BRAND. THEY ARE MILDER—AND HOW GOOD THEY TASTE! YOU CAN SMOKE CAMELS STEADILY... ALL DAY LONG... WITHOUT UPSETTING YOUR NERVES, OR TIRING YOUR TASTE.
